BLANTON ASKED TO JOIN INQUIRY IN POLICE GRAFT

Texan's Return Speeds Up Case Against Captain of Capital Force.

LAST TO TALK WITH ACCUSER OF OFFICER

Representative Refuses to Discuss Case Until He Clears Up Business.

The return to Washington yesterday of Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, gave impetus to the investigation into the charges of Mrs. Helen Blaylock, a Seventh street palmist, that a local police captain had piled up $14,000 in graft.

Learning that Blanton was back, Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins immediately sent him a letter asking him if he knew the whereabouts of Mrs. Blaylock. Collins also asked the Texan to furnish any other information he had on the case.

So far as is known, Blanton was the last person now in Washington who talked to Mrs. Blaylock. The two conferred at Blanton's home in Abilene, Tex., early this month. Her movements since then are unknown to Collins and as a consequence he has reached an impasse in his investigation.

Subpena Issued for Woman.

The day after the graft case was turned over to him by the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee, Collins issued a subpena for Mrs. Blaylock and turned it over to Deputy Marshal John Clarkson.

Clarkson searched in vain for the woman. Persons living below her palmistry establishment on Seventh street said she had not been seen since shortly after the New Year.

Collins also has announced that he will interview former Policeman Orville Staples in connection with the case, although he declines to state what connection, if any, Staples has with it. Representative Blanton served as counsel for Staples when the latter was dismissed from the police force.

Shortly after his return yesterday, Representative Blanton announced that he soon would be ready to join other members of the Gibson subcommittee in investigating District affairs.

The prospect is that Blanton inevitably will be drawn into the investigation now being made into the charges of Mrs. Blaylock.

Blanton yesterday declined to discuss the case in any way. However, he did not deny that Mrs. Blaylock had been down to Abilene, Tex., to see him.

Busy With Correspondence.

The dynamic Texan was busy late yesterday trying to dispose of a great mass of correspondence that has collected during his absence from the city. As soon as he has this out of the way, he said, he would be ready to join with members of the Gibson subcommittee in any investigation that needs to be made. He would not say, however, that he was interested in any particular investigation.

Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican) of Vermont, chairman of the investigating subcommittee, said he was gratified to hear that Blanton would soon be back with the subcommittee.

At the same time, Gibson made it very clear that the subcommittee has by no means given up its interest in the charges of Mrs. Blaylock, even though it has turned them over to the office of the District Attorney.

Judging from Gibson's attitude, it seems certain that the subcommittee will give much more of its time and attention to the case. The subcom-

COOLIDGES RECEIVE IN FINAL FUNCTION

FIRST LADY IS IN TEARS

Tinged with an air of sadness that underlay all the brilliant flowers and full-dress uniforms, the White House last night glittered for the last time during the present administration, when President and Mrs. Coolidge—the latter with tears in her eyes—regretfully bade farewell to scores of friends at the final reception of the season in honor of the Army and Navy.

It was the end of the reception—of all the receptions which have been given by the present host and hostess of the Nation during their years in Washington. Mrs. Coolidge wept quietly as she passed through the long lines of guests, leaning on the arm of the President. She dabbed at her eyes with a tiny handkerchief, smilingly, wistfully at the crowd of well-wishers about her. The handclapping and low murmur of applause which greeted the march across the Blue Room died imperceptibly as the throngs realized that the "First Lady" felt poignantly her departure from a home and an atmosphere that have become dear to her.

Almost in that silence described by poets as "laden with sighs," President and Mrs. Coolidge walked through the hall and up the grand stairway. Then, tension suddenly relaxed, and the Marine Band played for those who remained and danced in the East Room for the remainder of the evening.

Sabers rattled. Epaulets flared magnificently. The gayety which had

HOOVER SEEKS REST ON FISHING JAUNT

Morrow Is Definitely Out of Cabinet Race; To Return to Mexico Soon.

FLETCHER'S NAME HEARD

By CARLISLE BARGERON,
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 24.—President-elect Hoover was riding easily tonight out on the moon lighted waters of what has been referred to as the deep sea, and behind him there was at least one very important matter disposed of, that of what part Dwight W. Morrow will play in the next administration. It will be the same as that he is taking in the Coolidge administration, Ambassador to Mexico.

It had been learned on the highest authority that this would be Mr. Morrow's lot before his arrival, but today there was a definite understanding reached between him and Mr. Hoover on the subject. They talked for more than two hours, the most lengthy conversation Mr. Hoover has had since his arrival here, and at the end, with formal statements from neither side, it was so arranged that no one had any doubt as to the ambassador's future.

He was en route to New York tonight but will probably stop at Washington for a conference with Secretary of State Kellogg. He expects to be again on his way to his Mexican post in two weeks.

It was the fact that political circles have been so abuzz with speculation on Mr. Morrow's possible accession to the Secretary of Stateship, and the fact that considerable pressure has been brought to bear upon Mr. Hoover to this end, rather than any likelihood that Mr. Morrow himself coveted the office, that attached so much significance to his visit today.

The movement in his behalf had bounded far beyond the formal start given to it by Senator Edge and Senator-elect Kean, of New Jersey.

But the fact that Mr. Morrow should bounce suddenly out of the hard school

TAYLOR IS HELD GUILTY BY JURY; THREAT FEARED

Suspended PolicemanShot McBreen, Is Verdict; Court Guarded.

HIS WIFE SEARCHED ON REVENGE REPORT

Rumors Said Prosecutor Collins Would Suffer if Prisoner Were Convicted.

Edward M. Taylor, suspended policeman, was convicted of an attempted murder charge by a jury in criminal division of the District Supreme Court shortly before 6 o'clock last evening. The two women and ten men jurors deliberated two hours before reporting their findings to Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy.

Rumors of a threat on the life of Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, who prosecuted Taylor, resulted in the presence of more than a dozen United States marshals about the courtroom when the jury filed in.

Collins, according to the rumors, would pay with his life in open court in the event the jury reported a verdict of guilty.

Matrons Search Wife.

As a result of the reported threat, the former policeman's wife, an attractive brunette, was taken in custody by a court matron and searched. No weapon was found on her, but while the jury was deliberating she was ordered by a deputy marshal to remain away from the windows in a corridor of the courthouse, from which a view could be had of the courtroom and jury room.

The jury retired for deliberation at 3:40 o'clock and returned two hours later. At the request of Joseph Salomon, defense counsel, Taylor's wife and sister left the courtroom before the foreman of the jury reported Taylor was guilty of both counts of an indictment charging assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to kill.

When informed of the verdict, Mrs. Taylor wept hysterically in the corridor outside the courtroom, and had to be assisted from the courthouse. She appeared on the verge of collapse.

Wrong Man Shot, Claim.

Taylor was accused of shooting William S. McBreen in a gasoline filling station at 2637 Banning road northeast, on the night of August 30, 1927, the prosecution, conducted by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, contending Taylor shot McBreen, mistaking him for another employe of the filling station.

The other employe, the prosecutor charged, took some money from an envelope left at the station by two negro bootleggers as graft for Taylor.

Testimony of two firearms experts, Maj. Calvin Goddard, former Army officer, and Sergt. Benjamin Cornwell, of the Police Department, was the keystone of the prosecution's case.

The experts declared the bullet removed from McBreen's body was fired from a revolver used by Taylor throughout his career on the police force.

The defense, conducted by Joseph Salomon, contended Taylor was at the home of a friend when the shooting occurred. With him were his wife, his sister and the latter's suitor. Witnesses were produced to support this alibi, including Taylor himself.

In final arguments to the jury, Collins branded Taylor as a "murderous hijacking police officer." Salomon attacked the testimony of Goddard and Cornwell, particularly reminding the jury that Goddard was paid $100 a day for his expert testimony.

Blanton Exhibited Truck.

There is another indictment charging hijacking pending against Taylor. This charges that he hijacked a truckload of liquor at Fourteenth street and Maryland avenue northeast in December, 1927. It is probable this indictment will never be tried, as two negro rum runners and their employer who owned the truck are the principal witnesses in the case.

Following Taylor's suspension from the force in February, 1928, on the hijacking charge, Representative Blanton, of Texas, exhibited the truck alleged to have been hijacked to members of Congress. He also made much of the case before the House of Representatives.

Board Delays Action.

A few weeks after his suspension, Taylor was hailed before the Police Trial Board on charges of prejudicial conduct, growing out of the hijacking charges. His defense was that he was confined to his home, unable to walk as a result of an injury to his foot at the time of the alleged hijacking.

The trial board delivered a sealed verdict in the case, the contents of which were not disclosed. It is believed that the board acquitted Taylor of the charges.

Taylor was never out-and-out dismissed from the police force but was suspended pending the outcome of charges against him. Conviction by the jury last evening may result in the final dismissal of Taylor.

32 RESCUED FROM SEA IN BATTLE WITH GALE SAFE EN ROUTE HOME

MEN WANTED MORE HELP APPEALS SENT

S O S APPARATUS FAILS AT CRITICAL MOMENT

Rescue Ship Arrives After Last Prayers Are Said; Foodless Three Days.

The following story was received from Samuel J. Downing, a passenger aboard the S. S. America, who witnessed the rescue of 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida, sinking off the Virginia Capes. Downing's story brings out for the first time the plight of the radio operator on the Florida and the desperate circumstances of the crew, which had been without water or food for three days.

By SAMUEL J. DOWNING.
(Copyright, 1929, by the United Press.)

Aboard the S. S. America, Jan. 24 (By radio to the United Press).—The rescue of the crew of 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida was carried out under the most dramatic and thrilling circumstances.

Chief Officer Harry Manning and eight men left the America at 7:15 p. m. Wednesday, when weather conditions were fair, but immediately after their departure a snow squall blew up and developed into the worst gale of the year, requiring superhuman efforts to reach the Florida.

The Florida was listing 38 degrees to starboard. The America had been trying to locate the vessel since the first S O S call was sent out Tuesday noon.

Threatened by the Crew.

The Florida wireless operator, according to the story told by survivors on board the America tonight, was threatened by the crew for two days because no aid arrived, although he had informed the crew that aid was under way.

The radio operator barricaded himself in the wireless room to escape.

The compass and navigating instruments were out of order and hence it was impossible to broadcast the position of the ship.

Shortly after last prayers had been said by the men at 6 p. m. and after all hope had been abandoned, the America was sighted.

Manning and his men reached the vessel at 7:45 p. m. and threw a line from the lifeboat. By this time the Florida was almost entirely submerged on the starboard side.

After fifteen members of the crew had slid down the rope to the lifeboat, the rope broke, necessitating the installing of a new rope for the remaining men on board.

Captain and Engineer Last to Leave.

Capt. Giuseppe Favalaro and Engineer Pasquale Maccio were the last to leave the sinking ship.

The gale increased in velocity and Manning had to battle to keep the lifeboat from overturning. Exactly one hour after leaving the stricken ship with the rescued crew, Capt. Fried of the America, by brilliant maneuvering, brought his liner around and picked up the lifeboat and 41 men.

The passengers collected a purse of $1,000 for the crew of the America's

BORAH FEARS NAVAL RACE WITH ENGLAND

Urges New Ruling on Seas in Opening Cruiser Bill Discussion.

OPPOSES 3-YEAR LIMIT

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Warning the Nation that Great Britain and the United States are building their respective navies against each other and adding that disclaimers would be futile and serve no purpose, Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, initiated the full-steam-ahead discussion of the cruiser bill in the Senate yesterday.

To cope with this situation, which the senator clearly views as a serious menace to international relations, Mr. Borah introduced the following amendment to the bill, which was later approved by Senator Hale, in charge of the cruiser bill:

"First. That Congress favors a restatement and recodification of the rules of law governing the conduct of belligerents and neutrals in war at sea.

"Second. That such restatement and recodification should be brought about if practically possible prior to the meeting of the conference on the limitation of armaments in 1931."

Contrary to expectations, Mr. Borah's discussion of the bill proved in many respects acceptable to the naval affairs committee, and the frank statements by the Senator from Idaho clearly showed the imperative need of protecting America's stupendous commerce at all times by the American Navy. The consequences of any other policy were stressed by Mr. Borah in a manner which affords little solace to the professional pacifists and internationalists who are pleading for a pacifist policy of surrender to the British in the matter of parity on the seas.

Only in one respect was the Borah speech pleasing to the internationalists and the possible damage which this feature might do to adequate naval defense is to a great extent offset by the general tenor of the senator's address.

Mr. Borah wants the three-year time limit struck from the cruiser bill so that the President could refrain from actually building the ships if he so desired. This proposition will be opposed by the supporters of national defense

Florida Crew Is Nearing Port on Board the Famous America.

SIX SERIOUSLY HURT; OTHERS ARE VERY ILL

All Are Exhausted in Fight With Huge Waves, Ice and Snow.

ONE SMALL LIFEBOAT BESTS TERRIFIC SEAS

Victims Taken From Stricken Craft, One by One, Captain Being Last.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Thirty-two men of the sea were homeward-bound tonight, snatched from death almost after all right to hope was gone. They were the crew of the Italian freighter Florida, storm wrecked at sea, and they were alive only because the courage of seamen from the land their countryman, Columbus, discovered was joined with the mysterious power of radio to determine the direction of an object out of sight.

Six of the crew were seriously injured, four others were very ill, and all were exhausted from their fight for life. But they were alive, and that was almost more than any one would have thought could be their lot who could have seen their plight yesterday as Capt. George Fried, of the rescue ship America, described it today in his first account of the rescue in a dispatch to the Associated Press.

Three years ago Capt. Fried, then commander of the President Roosevelt, proved himself a colorful writer of sea epics when he wirelessed to the Associated Press the story of the rescue of 25 men from the foundering British freighter Antinoe, and today he told an equally stirring tale of skill and courage victorious over the rampant forces of angry Nature.

Two Appeals Picked Up.

The America, Capt. Fried said, was inbound from Europe when it picked up two S O S calls from both the Florida and the American tanker Dannedalke last Tuesday morning.

The America was 350 miles away, but when Capt. Fried determined that although other ships were nearer only one had a radio direction finder, he swung away from his course and pushed toward the belt of windy fury in which the freighters lay disabled.

The Dannedalke subsequently pulled off for Bermuda under a jury rig, jauntily reporting that it had apparently called the turn on Davy Jones this time; but the Florida was wounded by the storm beyond any chance of helping herself.

She must have been in a bad way long before she swallowed a seaman's pride and called for help, for Capt. Fried revealed today that she lost a man overboard last Sunday, two days before her SOS crackled from the wireless room.

Lashed By Ice and Snow.

Before the America reached her, groping through roaring seas lashed by a snowy gale, the Florida's bridge had been washed away. She was listed so far her Captain feared she would roll completely over, and her crew had been practically stripped of their clothing by the waves that battered unceasingly and the wind that lashed them with ice and snow.

The two other craft besides the America that started to the rescue but could not find the Florida and had to abandon the search, the President Harrison and the York, had proceeded on their way long before the America reached the scene and Capt. Fried revealed today why it was that they had failed.

Because of the list of the Florida, he said, her skipper felt that the only way to keep her afloat was to keep the engines turning over. And so while

Mrs. Dallett Wilson Guilty Of Assault, Jurors Decide

Faces Term in Prison by Verdict; Sentence Set for January 29.

New York, Jan. 24 (United Press).—Mrs. Esther Evans de Forrest Wilson, haughty huntress, on trial for shooting her husband while carrying a revolver without a license, was found guilty of second-degree assault by a jury here this afternoon. She will be sentenced January 29.

Judge Nott, presiding, commended the jury for its verdict.

"It is in accordance with the law and the facts," he said. "The excuse of a woman who shoots a man and then forgets has been tried too often before."

He was referring to Mrs. Wilson's plea that when her husband, Dallett Wilson, prominent politician and attorney, cursed her, that her mind went blank and that she did not remember the shooting which followed.

Under the jury's verdict Mrs. Wilson is liable to imprisonment of from 2½ to 5 years and to a fine. Under the Baumes law an additional five years must be added to the sentence because she was carrying a deadly weapon without a permit, but there was still some

Trotsky Watches Kabul, Is Report

Deposed Soviet Leader Has Army at Afghan Border, London Is Told.

London, Friday, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The London Express says today that it is authoritatively stated at the Afghan legation in London that an army commanded by Leon Trotsky, deposed Soviet leader, is on the border of Afghanistan, awaiting the course of events.

It is said that the great Afghan provincial chiefs, each possessing an army, are only awaiting now the melting of the snow to march on Kabul and restore the royal family. The most powerful of these chieftains are said to be with Amanullah now at Kandahar.

In the meantime, Habibullah Khan, or Bachai Sakao, Afghanistan's new king, is represented as doing nothing and as being quite bewildered at the new power thrust upon him by his followers.

Quick Wit of Woman Nabs Man in Hit-Run Auto Death

Orders Husband to Trail Machine After Victim Is Knocked Down.

Rare presence of mind on the part of Mrs. Frederic Newburgh, 1630 Fuller street northwest, last night, resulted in the apprehension of a 27-year-old colored man, who is believed to be the one who fled the vicinity of the Harris Hotel on Massachusetts avenue after running down and fatally injuring Frank Archive, 54 years old, 601 New Jersey avenue northwest.

Mr. Newburgh, an employe of the Income Tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, and Mrs. Newburgh were driving east on Massachusetts avenue near North Capitol street early in the evening, when Mrs. Newburgh noticed a figure step from the curb opposite the Harris Hotel. An automobile preceded their car about 60 feet and she remarked:

"That man is hit!"

Simultaneously, the man was struck to the pavement and the body dragged for several feet.

"Step on the gas," Mrs. Newburgh directed. Newburgh, at the wheel, forced his car alongside the car ahead and he and his wife ordered the colored man, Calvin Richardson, 27, 933 N street northwest, to pull to the curb. Richardson paused, then shot ahead. Newburgh pursued, forcing his car ahead of the other machine, he gradu-the Harrison and Yorck were approaching the position he gave in the SOS he was steadily steaming away from it and they, without radio direction finding apparatus were unable to locate him.

The America, however, had an efficient radio compass, which is a sensitive receiving set with a revolving loop antenna.

Although misled at first by the difference between the Florida's given position and the direction indicated by the radio compass, it was the direction finder in the end that led them to the Florida. They found the Florida 150 miles from the position it had given long after dark last night.

Fried Recognized Dangers.

Capt. Fried well knew the danger of the next task to be attempted. When he directed the rescue of the crew of the Antinoe three years ago, he lost two of his own men who were washed out of a life boat and drowned, but the law of the sea is ingrained in the men who follow its calling, and he did not hesitate.

Lifeboat No. 1 was swung out and down, though a full gale was blowing and the wind carried a smother of spray to make things harder. Chief Officer Manning took command of the little boat and eight men sat at the oars.

The America's searchlight was playing on the Florida as it tossed, broken and awash, in tremendous seas. Manning approached to within 50 feet and dared go no closer. He got a rope on the Florida's deck and one after another shivering sailors from the sinking wreck hurled themselves into the sea and pulled their way hand over hand to the cockleshell that was their one remaining hope of life.

Captain is Last to Leave.

There was one terrible moment during this time when the rope parted and some poor seaman, half way across, had to be hauled back to the sodden deck he had been glad to leave. But another rope was got across and the transfer was completed.

The captain of the Florida was last to leave his ship. He came crawling through the waves, and, like the rest, was hauled aboard the lifeboat. Capt. Fried said the Florida's crew were dazed, hysterical, practically naked. Some were injured and others ill. They must all have been nearly frozen. And yet when the Italian captain was yanked aboard the lifeboat he thought first of all of reporting that the laws of the sea had been complied with.

He told Chief Officer Manning that everything alive was off his boat, even remembering to say that no pets had been left behind, for it is one of the rules of the sea that animals can not be left to suffer after humans have been taken off.

Unable to Climb Ladder.

Not one of all the 32 men from the Florida had strength to climb the ladder to the America's deck after what must have been an exceptionally perilous journey in the heavily loaded lifeboat. Home-made breeches buoys were lowered and they were hauled aboard, safe at last after a long tussle with death that could scarcely have been more closely drawn.

The waves were so high that Capt. Fried was afraid his men would be injured if they attempted to hoist the lifeboat back to its davits. It had served its purpose and served it well, and it was cut adrift to be battered apart, no doubt, and sink with the derelict Florida.

The America is expected to reach New York Saturday unless continuing rough weather should delay it longer. Plans for the reception of the rescued and rescuers were not completed, but whatever official action may be taken, it seemed certain that there would be a popular and spontaneous welcome at least as tumultuous as that accorded Capt. Fried and his men when they returned from the rescue of the Antinoe's crew.

Six of the rescued men suffered from minor injuries and exposure; four were seriously ill. The crew of the lifeboat was in fine shape, but exhausted.

The lifeboat was cut adrift.

The crew of the Florida had not had water or food for three days. All food on the ship was watersoaked and the water tanks were torn open by the storm. The men were in deplorable condition when rescued and hoisted to the America by breeches buoy.

NEW YORK TO GREET FRIED ON SATURDAY

Captain of Rescue Ship Is Anxious to Avoid Cheers of Admiring Crowd.

PRAISE IS SENT TO CREW

Marine Conference Honors Sea Heroes

(Associated Press.)

A resolution congratulating Capt. George Fried and the officers and crew of the steamship America for their rescue of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida Wednesday was adopted unanimously yesterday by the second national conference on the Merchant Marine, meeting here under the auspices of the Shipping Board.

The resolution praised Capt. Fried, his officers and crew "for the great bravery and masterful seamanship displayed in this noble act of heroism, so thoroughly in keeping with the best traditions of the American Merchant Marine."

Representative Black (Democrat), New York, introduced a bill in the House proposing that Congress tender its thanks to Capt. Fried and the members of the America's crew and authorizing the award of gold medals to the ship's commander and such members of the crew as he might certify as having shown "special courage in said rescue."

New York, Jan. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Although "no more parades" has become his official slogan, Capt. Fried will bring his ship into port, probably Saturday morning, to a city anxious to honor him again for his rescue at sea.

"Still northwest gale" was his message to the United States Lines tonight. "Expect to arrive Ambrose 8 Saturday."

This message has been interpreted to mean 8 a. m. Judging from his previous position given in the morning as 650 miles east of Ambrose. If a relentless sea would pause to honor him and his ship, and permit him to reach Ambrose at the given time, the America will be in quarantine by 9 and dock between 11:30 and noon.

What recognition for his feat will be accorded Capt. Fried, Chief Officer Harry Manning and the members of the boat crew, is still undetermined. Capt. Fried has expressed his lack of desire for any ceremony, although it is probable he will receive a reception as great as when he returned from Europe after the Antinoe rescue.

Many congratulatory messages have already been received aboard the America. Davis A. Burke, general manager of the United States Lines sent his, saying:

"In expressing my own admiration for your skill, daring and courage, I compliment you, captain, Manning, and the members of your command, upon the success in rescuing the crew of the Florida. I am voicing the sentiment of the entire United States Lines organization as well as that of the American people, who have reason once again to be proud of you and the American merchant marine which you represent."

Emanuel Grazzo, Italian Consul General, added his thanks on behalf of the Italian government and the Italian people in America.

Besides Capt. Fried and Chief Officer Manning, who duplicated, almost to a day, a thrilling rescue on the high seas, another member of the boat crew is a veteran of rescues at sea. Chief Storekeeper S. Bracco, who lives with his father, James Bracco, in Union City, N. J., holds a gold medal for his work when the crew of the sinking Italian freighter Ignazio Floria were rescued by the United States liner President Harding. It is believed that Bracco was the member of the America's boat crew who gave directions in Italian to the Florida's crew.

Captain Honors Radio Man For Part in Rescue at Sea

Nelson Smith Took Readings Steadily to Guide America to Scene; Held Same Role on Roosevelt When It Saved Crew of Antinoe.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—From the comparative obscurity of his calling, a young radio operator emerged today to share with Capt. George Fried, of the United States liner America, the starring role of another drama of the sea.

The operator is Nelson Smith, 29, of Portchester, who was mentioned in the skipper's own account of the America's rescue of the crew of the freighter Florida as the man who stood by a radio compass until the stricken freighter was sighted, just as he stood by the compass and a radio key three years ago when Fried guided the liner President Roosevelt to the rescue of the stricken Antinoe.

Smith remained unidentified as a hero of the Antinoe rescue and one of the stars of the latest rescue until his name came through in Fried's own story. Then Smith drew the praise of Kenneth Upton, who was chief radio operator on the President Roosevelt at the time of the Antinoe disaster.

"I thought some one ought to know about Smitty," Upton said, modestly. "He was on the President Roosevelt when we picked up the Antinoe crew three years, working under the same skipper, Fried."

Upton explained how the three radio men aboard the larger ships work ordinarily in regular shifts, but through his meager and modest explanation it readily was apparent that regular shifts are forgotten when an S O S crackles over a sounder.

Three years ago the radio men on the Roosevelt remained on duty for days in their midget quarters far up on the ship, and from their experience then Upton visualized how Smith, chief radio operator on the America; Lester Bowman of New York second operator, and Charles Maass, of San Francisco, third operator, helped guide the giant America to the side of the disabled Florida yesterday.

"They have regular shifts," Upton said rather casually, "one man standing watch at one time. But I guess if there was work to be done they'd all be at the instruments—one man at a key, another at the compass and the third helping the other two. Yeh, you don't get much sleep when things are happening."

That was all Upton said, but from Capt. Fried, who presumably meant his entire radio crew when he spoke of one, came this mention:

"Chief radio operator Nelson Smith was stationed at the radio compass finder and took bearings continuously. We proceeded on these courses."

Upton resigned a week ago as an operator on the Leviathan where for a time he was a shipmate of Smith's. Upton now is with a moving picture corporation here.

WIFE NOT TO MEET CAPT. FRIED AT PIER

Besieged in Home by Friends, Reporters, Cameramen and Others.

RECALLS OTHER RESCUE

New York, Jan. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"Well, anyhow, it's not quite as bad as it was three years ago."

So spoke Mrs. George Fried, wife of the captain of the America, as she surveyed the scribbling reporters who overflowed the living room of her home here today. She referred to the siege laid upon her by the newsmen three years ago following the rescue of the crew of the British freighter Antinoe by the President Roosevelt, of which he, husband was then in command.

Pff-ff! The movie photographers setting up their cameras in the middle of the room blew a fuse.

"And tell me," a reporter persisted, "after the United States Lines called you up last night and told you your husband had rescued the crew of the Florida, what did you do then?"

A Little Bit Excited.

"I shut off the radio and went to bed. Well, first I calle up a few friends and relatives and told them. Then I went to bed. Right to sleep? Well, no. I was a little bit excited, of course. No, not worried—not for my husband. For those poor Italians, of course.

"Yes," with a jolly laugh, "it was just ten years ago we met, aboard the America, the same ship. Yes, I hope—oh, will you answer that, Helen?" This last to a friend who had come in to help tend the almost constantly ringing telephone.

"No, I'm not a New York girl. I'm from Cincinnati—Laura Parmenter. Oh, a friend introduced us. Yes, of course, I hope he'll—oh, for me?"

She went to the telephone. A dinner was being arranged for Capt. Fried. No, she could not accept for him.

Photographers and Smoke.

"He's 51. Oh, I do—I long for the day when he can give up seafaring. But we don't know just when that will be. You see—oh, are you ready for me?"

A news photographer asked her to smile. His flashlight boomed, and the neat, cozy room was filled with smoke.

"No, I'll not go down to the dock to meet him. Where? Right in this very house. Yes, sir. No, he hates all that fuss, too. I wish he were here now. He'd know how to turn away you ladies and gentlemen without being unfriendly. I can't. I'm helpless.

"And the photographers! They insisted on showing me cooking—I used an empty frying pan, but they didn't mind. And getting news of the America over the radio—they were broadcasting dance music at the time. And reading letters of congratulation.

"Oh, yes, I'm sorry. You've been waiting a long time. Let's go into the bedroom."

An "Intimate Glimpse."

And she retired to another room with a young lady from a magazine, who wanted to talk about books, and food, and clothes, and other such chit-chat, for an "intimate glimpse."

The movie photographers blew another fuse. A neighbor's daughter, who had come in to wash the dishes, but had abandoned the kitchen sink for a point of vantage in the living room, giggled in delight. Most of the reporters departed. More reporters arrived. The phone rang.

The young lady from the magazine departed and Mrs. Fried returned to the living room. The movie men were now ready for her.

"Is this where you want me to sit? Oh, those lights! The movie men this morning took me out on the street. Say something? All I can say is that I wish Capt. Fried were right in this room this very minute. But I am smiling or trying to. Helen—are you there? Take my advice, don't ever marry a seafaring man."

AMERICA HAS KILLED AS WELL AS SAVED

Until Florida Episode, Liner Had Seventeen Fatalities Against Her.

HAS KNOWN FIRE, MUTINY

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—By the rescue of 32 men from the steamer Florida, the liner America has more than evened an old score; for the America has taken lives as well as saved them, and until the present rescue the ratio stood at 17 lost and two saved.

In the 24 years since it was built, the America has packed as colorful and exciting a career as almost any ship on the ocean. It accidentally has rammed and sunk a British submarine with 15 men aboard, it has been swept by fire, it has grounded three times, it has been the scene of a large jewel robbery, it has known mutiny and it has sunk at its pier with a loss of two lives.

The ship was launched in Belfast in 1905, built for the ocean trade by the Hamburg American Line, and christened the Amerika. For two years her name appeared seldom in the newspapers outside the routine shipping news, but in April of 1907 she ran aground in the River Elbe and two weeks later she grounded off Altenburgh. Neither mishap was serious, however, and for three years more she pursued a quiet existence shuttling across the ocean.

Rammed, Sank Submarine.

In 1910 the Amerika was proceeding eastward when news was flashed ashore that jewels valued at $40,000 had been stolen from one of the first class cabins and when Plymouth was reached detectives swarmed aboard to search for clews that might lead them to the thieves.

Two years later the Amerika accidentally rammed and sank the British submarine S-2 off Kent, England, and 15 men aboard the submarine drowned. This was the Amerika's first experience in loss of human life.

The Amerika dropped out of the general news, then until 1913 when it grounded, its third experience of the kind, off Staten Island. It was refloated without serious damage. In 1917 the ship was taken over by the United States, renamed the America and put in troop transport service.

"After being remodeled for transport use it sank at its Hoboken pier and two men were lost, bringing its score of lives lost to seventeen, and as yet it had saved not a one.

Mutiny Aboard in 1919.

In 1919 officers reported mutiny aboard, which was subdued without loss of life, and the next year the Shipping Board offered the vessel for sale and it was chartered to the United States Mail Steamship Co. Later it was acquired by the United States Lines, its present owner.

In 1922 and again in 1924 it went far out of its course to aid sick men on other ships and in each case the man was saved, setting the score at seventeen lost and two saved.

While being reconditioned at Newport News, Va., in 1926, the America caught fire and damage estimated at $2,000,000 was done. It was out of service for two years and when it was ready for the seas again Capt. George Fried was transferred from the bridge of the President Roosevelt to command it.

And then it picked up the SOS of the Italian steamer Florida and 32 men were rescued, raising the number the ship has saved to 34, as against the 17 who have died.

CAPT. FRIED DETAILS RESCUES OF 32 MEN

Commander of America Gives Graphic Story of Saving Florida's Crew.

BATTLE FOUGHT IN GALE

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—For the second time Capt. George Fried, of the liner America, proved today that he was a first-rate reporter as well as a first-rate rescuer.

Three years ago almost to the day the 25 men of the crew of the British freighter Antinoe were rescued by the United States liner President Roosevelt, Capt. Fried in command. After the rescue was completed Capt. Fried sent a graphic account to the Associated Press.

In recognition of his ability as a reporter, the Associated Press presented to Capt. Fried an inscribed watch commemorating the occasion and named him an honorary reporter.

Today Capt. Fried showed that he was still a good reporter, sending to the Associated Press a detailed wireless story of the rescue of 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida. This story told of the crew of the sinking freighter, injured, sick from exposure, most of their clothes torn away, and hysterical from the strain of their ordeal, being snatched from death and rushed toward shore.

His report follows:

By GEORGE FRIED
(Captain of S. S. America).

Aboard S. S. America, Jan. 24 (By wireless to the Associated Press).—On our homeward-bound voyage we experienced a succession of westerly and northwesterly gales with a very high, rough sea accompanied by heavy snow and hail squalls. On January 2 we received S O S calls from the American steamer Dannedalke and the Italian steamer Florida. Both vessels giving their positions in latitude 38 north and longitude 60 west.

We ascertained then that several vessels were in their vicinity, but only one had a radio compass and the distressed vessels could not be located, so we decided to proceed to their assistance about noon January 22. We were then 350 miles north of their reported positions.

We were covered with ice in freezing weather and having violent snow and hail squalls, with a heavy gale. Chief Radio Operator Nelson Smith was stationed at the radio compass direction finder and took bearings continuously.

Florida's Bearings Erratic.

We proceeded on these courses. The bearings of the Florida were erratic—that is, they appeared so because they were not checking or agreeing with his reported position. We kept searching and taking bearings, but these bearings all placed him north, which we believed to be in error, due to his given position.

From 9 a. m. until noon of Wednesday the weather cleared and moderated. Observations were taken and our position found. We asked the Florida to obtain a position, but she informed us they had no navigation books, as all equipment was destroyed when their bridge was carried away. However the master had a sextant and he took an observation and gave us his observated altitudes. We worked them out and plotted him in latitude 40.30 north, longitude 57.30 west, which was 150 miles northeast of his given position. We immediately turned about and proceeded to take radio bearings which checked with our findings, proceeding full speed on our new course. Her radio signals were getting stronger all the time. As darkness came on our searchlight was lighted so he could see us, and at 6:30 p. m. we sighted the Florida dead ahead.

Praises Radio Compass.

This proved the accuracy and efficiency of the radio compass without which the Florida could not have been located. We took a position on the Florida's weather beam a quarter of a mile distant, with the weather overcast, light snow squalls and threatening.

Chief Officer Harry Manning, with eight members of the crew, Junior Engineer W. J. Clark, Boatswain Mate A. Wilson, Chief Storekeeper S. Bracco, Sailmaker J. Palts, Quartermaster W. Trettin, Seaman F. Kellam, Seaman J. Harobin and Master at Arms V. Waleck were lowered in No. 1 lifeboat and proceeded to the Florida.

Getting alongside the Florida was very difficult owing to her heavy list and her lee rail being under water sending out a tremendous surge. Getting nearer, Officer Manning found all hands ready to abandon the ship. Maneuvering the lifeboat as close as permissible to the Florida he threw a line on board, keeping at a distance of about 50 feet and instructed the Florida crew to come off one at a time, pulling themselves through the water by a line to the boat where they were dragged on board by the boat crew.

Nine Carried Away.

The bow oarsman spoke Italian and translated all instructions and orders. Things went along in this fashion until the line carried away due to a heavy surge.

A man half-way over had to be hauled back on board the Florida. The lifeboat again was maneuvered successfully and a line placed aboard and this succeeded in getting the entire crew off and into our boat. The captain was the last to leave and informed Officer Manning that there was none left behind and no pets on board.

The boat then, loaded with 41 men, nine members of the boat crew and 32 rescued, turned about and headed for the America which was then in a position to the leeward of the Florida.

The weather by this time had reached gale force with violent rain and snow squalls with a high, rough sea running.

The boat proceeded running to leeward, the oarsmen being assisted by the able members of the rescued crew. Meanwhile the America manuvered into position and the boat reached the ship's starboard side. The ship's side was strung with ladders, monkeyropes and cargo nets and our highly prized two home-made breeches buoys which proved invaluable in getting the injured men on board.

Men In Pitiable Shape.

Not a single man of the Florida's crew was able to climb up the ship's side unassisted. They were in a pitiable condition, half of them being nearly naked and the other half with very little clothing.

They were dazed and hysterical from their long exposure. With the rescued all hoisted and lifted safely on board and rushed below for urgent medical attention, the boat's crew came up and the boat was cut adrift. Owing to the high sea running it was impossible to hoist the lifeboat without prospects of severe injury to members of the crew.

Chief Officer Manning had to be pulled up on board by Mr. King and the first assistant engineer. Six of the Florida's crew were severely injured and four were very ill. One man was lost overboard on Sunday.

At 10 p. m. all was secured and we proceeded toward New York leaving the Florida in a sinking condition without lights. I do not think she could outlive the night in this gale.

We now found out why it was so difficult to locate her. Due to her heavy list and the loss of her rudder her captain believed she would capsize if he did not keep his engines turning over slowly. He was steaming at about three knots, changing his position constantly. As commanding officer of the America I want to recommend that every member of the boat crew be presented with the Treasury Department gold medal which is presented for courageous acts of this nature. I feel that these men are entitled to high decorations by the United States Government. It was a splendid piece of work.

SENATE COMMITTEE ENDS VARE INQUIRY

Three-Year Investigation Is Closed; Chairman to Seek an Early Vote.

SEAT REFUSED IN 1928

(Associated Press.)

The inquiry into the primary campaign and election of Senator-elect Vare (Republican), of Pennsylvania, extending over almost three years, was concluded last night by the Senate's investigating committee and a decision on the seating of Vare will be sought at this session.

Mr. Vare, who now is in Florida, was unable to be present because of illness, and counsel for him closed his case before the committee with a general denial of charges of irregularities and fraud in the 1926 election in Philadelphia, which had been cited by committee investigators.

Senator Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, the chairman of the committee which set out almost three years ago to inquire into campaign expenditures in the senatorial races of 1926, was the lone member present yesterday when he brought the investigation to a close.

The Missourian retires from the Senate March 4, and he is hopeful of a final decision on the Vare case before that time. On the basis of a partial report submitted a year ago by the committee the Senate declined to administer the oath of office to the Pennsylvanian.

The committee at that time reported expenditures of $785,000 in Vare's three-cornered primary fight with Gifford Pinchot and former Senator Pepper. Since then the special committee made an inquiry into Vare's election and subsequently a contest against his election was instituted by William B. Wilson, his Democratic opponent.

Chairman Waterman, of the Senate elections subcommittee, said last night there was little prospect of concluding this inquiry before the end of this session. Regardless of the outcome on the seating of Vare it is likely no final disposition of his case can be completed until the election contest is concluded next session.

The Reed committee made exhaustive investigations into two Republican primary campaigns in the 1926 race. As a result the oath of office was denied to both Senators-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois, and Vare. Smith resigned and ran again in the Illinois senatorial primary last spring, but was defeated.

40 Called for Vare.

Anxious to bring the long Vare inquiry to a close, Senator Reed yesterday balked at hearing 40 witnesses summoned here from Philadelphia by Vare's counsel to answer charges that their names were forged in lists. Instead he had all of the witnesses sign an affidavit.

How soon the Missourian can get a report from his committee is problematical. Three of the members are ill—Senators La Follette, Wisconsin, and Goff, West Virginia, Republicans, and King (Democrat), Utah. Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, is the other member.

Two years ago at this time a move was launched by Senator Reed for continuation of the committee and it tied the Senate up in a filibuster for the closing days of the session. Another such event is not beyond the realm of possibility, although friends of Vare have not indicated what course they will pursue against a committee report at this time.

Mr. Vare was given the right in a Senate resolution to present his case before the Senate. His counsel stated that he was seriously ill and would be unable for many months to make an appearance.

In this connection the committee yesterday took a deposition from Judge Thomas E. Walsh, secretary of the Municipal Court Judges of Philadelphia, regarding the participation by Mr. Vare in a recent election in Philadelphia. He said that Vare had called him from his sickbed in Florida over the telephone. The conversation, however, lasted but three minutes.

Hearing of bad check accusations against Mme. Henrietta Coquelet, widely known local concert singer, 36 years old, of 1800 I street northwest, was continued for a week yesterday in Police Court.

Mme. Coquelet was arrested Wednesday night on a warrant sworn out by officials of a downtown department store. It is alleged that she cashed checks totaling $1,210 at the store and the checks subsequently came back from the bank marked "not sufficient funds."

Adolph Magnus Sued for Divorce.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Adolph B. Magnus, capitalist and grandson of Adolphus Busch, founder of the Anheuser-Busch Brewery, has been sued for divorce on grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Magnus charges he slapped her. Attorney said a settlement has been reached whereby Mrs. Magnus will be given $100,000 in cash, property worth $200,000 and $250 monthly alimony.

Spanking in Court Followed By Conviction for Cruelty

Foster-Father Demonstrates. Punishment Given Girl, 7; He and Wife Indignant When Jury Holds They Burned Child and Hung Her by Wrists.

Camden, N. J., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Allen E. Robertson and his wife were convicted by a jury tonight of assault and battery against their foster daughter, 7-year-old Betty Hinkle. They were charged with burning the child's hands with hot wires, beating her with a belt buckle, hanging her by the wrists in a closet, beating her with a hammer and forcing her to eat from the floor with a dog.

The jury of ten women and two men deliberated less than three hours. Counsel for the defendants announced he would appeal.

Standing with his arm around the shoulder of his wife, Robertson broke down and wept as the foreman of the jury announced the verdict.

"We are innocent!" he sobbed. "How can people be so cruel? Is there no justice?"

Mrs. Robertson calmed her husband and declared the verdict was "outrageous."

Mrs. Robertson on the stand had asserted that the girl had received the burns when she picked up a hot soldering iron that was being used by a radio repairman, and that scars on Betty's face and head had been caused by disease.

Betty Hinkle was in the custody of the Robertsons from February 1 to May 24, 1928, when she was taken to a hospital.

Of all the places in the big world the last that Betty might think would be chosen for a spanking would be a courtroom. Yet Betty got a spanking in county court today at the trial. Sobs were audible throughout the room.

The spanking took place when Robertson was being cross-examined.

Producing the belt with which the child testified she had been whipped, the prosecutor directed the foster father to show the jury "how you whipped Betty."

Wrapping to buckle around his wrist, the witness "spanked" her three times. A little sob which Betty emitted at the first touch crescendoed to genuine cry at the others. And she ran to her seat in the first row of the courtroom. It was ten minutes before a woman attendant was able to quiet her.

From the stand Robertson told the prosecutor that he and his wife were being "framed by somebody."

Evidence in Kresge Suit Cost $46,000

Detective Sues for Balance of $32,000 Claimed Due From Second Wife.

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Although she got her divorce and an alimony settlement that went into the millions, the second wife of Sebastian S. Kresge, chain store magnate and Antisaloon League "angel," ran up a $46,000 detective bill gathering the evidence of his alleged improprieties.

This postscript to the story of Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge's suit, which was fought bitterly for many months by the millionaire 5-and-10-cent store merchant, was added today when a detective agency filed suit to recover $32,000 of the bill, which it charged was still due.

The detective said he gathered evidence in eight States and made a trip to Paris, but Mrs. Kresge refused to pay him more than $14,010. In her suit the wealthy merchant's wife charged misconduct, naming Miss Gladys Ardelle Fish, of Natick, Mass. Kresge recently married his third wife, a resident of his mother's home town in Pennsylvania.

M'BRIDE WILLING TO HALVE DRY JOB

Antisaloon League Head Tells Critics He Would Welcome Legislative Director.

STANDS PAT ON BUDGET

(United Press.)

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, fired back at his critics yesterday and expressed willingness to have a legislative superintendent appointed to take over a portion of his present duties.

McBride also declared he had not wavered on his stand regarding the additional $24,000,000 prohibition enforcement appropriation.

"I believe I have been consistent in my stand," he said. "From the very first advocated the increased appropriation, but I also agreed with Mr. Mellon that the additional funds should not be handed out haphazardly.

"The original amendment, as drafted by Senator Harris, was a blanket appropriation, and it was later changed in accordance with my views.

"I could not tolerate careless or loose appropriations, and the business men who back the Antisaloon League would not stand for our indorsement of such appropriation."

Enemies Have Sore Thumbs.

McBride said there was some disaffection in the league, but he held that the dissatisfied groups were in the minority.

"I have enemies within the league and some have 'sore thumbs' because of my selection as general superintendent, but I believe the league is operating as harmoniously as it ever has," he said.

Critics of McBride charged the general superintendent had neglected his legislative work, which is one of the most important of the league's activities. They also regarded a statement issued by Bishops Nicholson, president of the league, and Cannon, of the executive committee, condemning Secretary Mellon's stand on the $24,000,000 as a "repudiation" of the general superintendent for agreeing with Mellon.

"I do not so regard Bishop Cannon's statement," McBride said. "If I had written the statement I would not have included certain parts, which were intended as a move to force Mellon to accept the appropriation. With a dry majority in Congress, there was no need to have Mellon's indorsement. But I do not believe either Bishop Cannon or Bishop Nicholson intended it as a repudiation of me."

McBride denied he was neglecting the legislative work of the league but expressed willingness to have a legislative superintendent appointed.

Would Welcome Assistant.

"I would be glad if the executive committee of the league would select a man to handle the legislative work under my jurisdiction," he said. "It would certainly take a great amount of detail from my shoulders.

"The average person does not realize that the league's legislative work in Washington is but a small part of its activities. Our real legislative work is done in the congressional districts and not on Capitol Hill.

"That we are successful in this can best be seen by the fact that the next Congress will have 329 dry members in the House, compared to 106 wets and 80 drys in the Senate against 16 wets. I directed our activities in the last election and no one found fault with them at that time."

McBride said a legislative superintendent might be appointed at the next executive committee meeting, to be held here March 5.

"It was rather unfortunate that I had to be away from Washington just at the time the appropriation was being discussed but I had a number of important meetings to attend from Maine to Iowa," he remarked in reply to charges that he spends too little time at his desk.

$20,000 Gift by Dawes To Help Rebuild School

Lawrenceville, N. J., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Vice President Charles G. Dawes has given $20,000 to the Lawrenceville School for the rebuilding of the Dawes House, which recently was destroyed by fire. Dr. Mather A. Abbott, headmaster, in announcing the gift today, said others from friends and alumni the past week puts the total sum received at $80,000. The new building will cost $200,000.

The dormitory, a frame structure, had been donated by the United States Government in memory of Rufus Dawes, the Vice President's son.

DEFEAT OF DRY FUND IS EXPECTED IN HOUSE

Wood, Cramton and Others Line Up Forces Against $24,000,000 Item.

HARD BATTLE IS CERTAIN

(Associated Press.)

Signaling the approach of a storm of debate over the proposal to place $24,000,000 in the hands of the President for prohibition enforcement, Democratic members of the House yesterday made an unsuccessful attempt to learn when the deficiency bill carrying this Senate amendment would reach the floor.

The formal announcement that the Senate had passed the measure had hardly died away before Representative Hastings (Democrat), Oklahoma, asked Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the Republican leader, as to his plans for calling the bill up in the House for consideration.

Representatives Garner and Blanton, both Texas Democrats, joined in pressing the inquiry, and urged that ample notice be given the House in order that members who were interested in the legislation might be present.

"I have asked the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Wood, who is the ranking member of the appropriations committee, to give me a day's notice before calling it up," Tilson said.

"But will the House be informed in advance?" asked Garner. "I know of many members who are interested in the legislation, and who would like to be present when it comes up."

His Purpose, Says Tilson.

"That was my purpose in asking for the information," replied Tilson.

At this juncture Representative Edwards, a Georgia Democrat, inquired if it was in order to move that the conferees on the bill be instructed, and was informed that it was not. The conferees have not yet been named.

Edwards did not signify how he wished them to be instructed, but the Georgia House delegation in caucus yesterday voted unanimously to support the amendment which was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Harris, the senior member of that body from Georgia.

While the Southern Democrats were indicating that they would press for adoption of the proposal by the House, a number of the wet Eastern Democrats were making plans to join dry Republicans in opposition.

Representative Weller (Democrat), of New York, issued a statement characterizing the amendment as "just a gesture on the part of the ultra drys," and an instance of "throwing good money after bad." He added that it "is a confession that the prohibition laws can not be enforced as at present constituted."

Defeat Is Predicted.

"It is apparent," he declared, "that the Senate is no longer regarded as the Upper House of Congress, but that the House of Representatives has become the steadying power and the steady hand of the 'ship of state,' and I predict that the House will never adopt the amendment."

Similar predictions have been voiced by Representatives Wood, of Indiana, and Cramton, of Michigan, both members of the appropriations committee, which first will consider the amendment.

Cramton, one of the dry leaders in the House, has taken the attitude that appropriations for prohibition should come through the same channel as appropriations for other purposes, and should not be made until definite plans for their use have been submitted.

There was no indication from the appropriations committee as to the time it proposed to call up the bill in the House. Should the House fail to accept the Senate amendments the measure would be sent to conference to smooth out the differences.

JUDGE ALMOST ENDS COAST GUARD CASE

Central Figure Walks Out Free, but Court Changes Mind, Rearresting Him.

LAW POINT BRINGS ERROR

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 24 (United Press).—Federal Judge John R. Hazel, presiding in the trial of two Coast Guardsmen accused of shooting Jacob Hanson, whom they suspected erroneously of rum running, exercised judicial right and changed his mind today to give Boatswain Frank L. Beck a moment he will long remember.

As court adjourned at noon Judge Hazel granted a defense motion to dismiss the charges against Beck, who was indicted because he had given the orders to Surfman Glenn Jennings, under which Jennings was allegedly acting when Hanson was shot.

Beck left the courtroom a free man, smiling, happy, and shaking hands with his friends.

But when court resumed for the afternoon session Judge Hazel began proceedings with a frank statement that he had made a mistake. He withdrew his order freeing Beck, reinstated the indictment, and directed that Beck be returned to trial.

Beck Returned to Court.

Attendants brought Beck, crestfallen, back within the rail.

"I regret very much," said Judge Hazel, "that this has happened. It is most unfortunate. But one of the attorneys should have refreshed my mind before I ruled and my attention should have been drawn to certain authorities which I did not recall until after court had adjourned."

A motion for the dismissal of the charges against both Beck and Jennings had been made by the defense immediately when the prosecution rested its case, not long before noon adjournment. The motion was argued first as it affected Beck and it was then the court granted it and freed Beck. A few minutes later Judge Hazel had overruled the motion as it affected Jennings and directed that his trial proceed.

In view of the situation created by the reinstatement of the indictment, the trial was recessed until tomorrow morning.

The chief witness of the day was Lieut. Rasmussen, of the Coast Guard, who discussed orders given to Coast Guardmen engaged in prohibition enforcement.

"Necessary Force" Discussed.

The law governing the Coast Guard, which says that "necessary force" is to be used in overhauling rum runners was discussed. Rasmussen believed that "necessary force" generally was interpreted as the use of firearms.

"But is there anything in your rules and regulations which tells you to shoot pistols into automobiles?" he was asked.

"There is nothing I know of relating to shooting into automobiles," Rasmussen admitted.

The point was of importance, for the decision may set something of a precedent as to the legality of the use of firearms in prohibition enforcement.

Woman Gives Life In Fire for Friend

Insists Firemen Save Other Woman First; Charred Body Found Later.

Montreal, Quebec, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A woman was burned to death today when she insisted that firemen who attempted to rescue her first save her close friend and companion who had been overcome by smoke on a top floor apartment of a four-story building.

The victim was Mrs. N. Raipe, widow of Col. W. W. Raipe, of London, England, who was trapped in the apartment with Miss Harriet Barr as flames swept through the lower floors. Mrs. Raipe was near a window when firemen reached the apartment by a ladder, and started to carry her to safety, but she insisted they first save Miss Barr.

The firemen carried Miss Barr down the ladder and returned to the apartment to find it seething in smoke and flame. Their efforts to rescue Mrs. Raipe were in vain. It was not until four hours later they were able to carry out her charred body. Miss Barr, who was nearly suffocated, will recover.

Henly, Dole Flier, Loses Life Film Stunt Aviatrix Killed

Three Men Die in Texas Fall; Lita Bell Wichart Plunges to Death.

San Angelo, Tex., Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Al Henly, Dole flight aviator, W. E. Shytles, Fort Worth theater manager, and Don Frazee, former San Angelo baseball player in the Texas League and now of Shreveport, were killed here late today in an attempt to land their airplane at the municipal airport.

The men were coming here for the formal opening of the airport Friday. They were only a short distance from the ground when the plane crashed. They had attempted a landing with the wind.

The bodies were badly mutilated.

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Lita Belle Wichart, 22, who made 140 parachute jumps from speeding airplanes was killed today when she attempted the 141st jump during the filming of a Hoot Gibson movie thriller near Newhall.

The girl plunged 3,000 feet from a biplane to the ground apparently having failed to pull the release ring of the parachute, which did not open.

Miss Wichart's fall was watched by Floyd Bowman, her husband and fellow "chute" jumper; Gibson, star of the picture; Arthur Rosson, director, and others of the cast. They stood helpless as her body spun and twisted toward them.

Ruth Elder, transatlantic aviatrix, is Gibson's leading lady in the picture. It was at first reported that Miss Wichart was doubling for Miss Elder, but this was denied by Gibson. He said the jumper had a small part in the production.

Jim Grainger, pilot of the plane from which Miss Wichart made her stunt jump, reported that she had cleared the craft easily, but made no visible effort to pull the release on her parachute.

"I don't know how it could have happened," Gibson said. "When I reached her side the parachute was intact and the ring had not been pulled."

Tommy McLaughlin, who made a parachute leap a few minutes before, suffered a sprained ankle when he landed in a tree top.

Miss Wichart had escaped serious injury in previous jumps and, with her husband, composed one of the best stunt teams in the country, officials of Universal Pictures said.

Stunt scenes for the picture were being filmed over Wiley Canyon in the foothills.

WOMAN CRIMINAL'S WILL AIDS CHILDREN

Litigation Settlement Leaves $115,000 of "Sophie Lyon's" Estate.

LED LIFE OF ADVENTURE

Detroit, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Provision for a home in Detroit for children whose parents are confined in State penal institutions was made in the will of Sophie Lyons Burke, one of the most colorful women criminals of the Victorian age, who died here in 1924 after reforming and leading an exemplary life for a quarter of a century. Now, after four years of litigation, $115,000 of her estate, which totaled nearly a quarter million, is available for the construction of the home.

A compromise agreement was reached yesterday between the executor and trustees of the estate and the guardian of Madeline Brady, one of Mrs. Burke's daughters, now a patient in an English hospital. Approximately $50,000 was awarded to the guardian of Madeline Brady and a similar amount was bequeathed to Mrs. Florence Bower, another daughter.

Delicacies for Convicts.

Other bequests in the will provided for furnishing delicacies to sick inmates of Sing Sing Prison at Ossining, N. Y., and to inmates of the death house at Sing Sing.

During her career as an international confidence woman, Mrs. Burke, then known as Sophie Lyons, had known confinement in many of the larger prisons of the world. After her reform she wrote a book, "Why Crime Doesn't Pay." During her declining years here she was a real estate developer.

Sophie Lyons Burke, at one time called "the greatest criminal of modern times," was reputed to have made $1,000,000 in her early criminal career, lost it at Monte Carlo and later accumulated $500,000 in honorable business enterprises.

She was not quite 6 years old when she stole her first pocketbook at the behest, she said, of a stepmother, with whom she was left when her father went to war in 1861.

Married Bank Robber.

Romance came into her life through her association with a gang of bank robbers and she married Ned Lyons, with whom she participated in the burglarizing of numerous banks in the East. For 25 years she was known as the "queen of bank burglars," the leader of many criminal expeditions in various parts of the world. With her were associated about all the most notorious criminals of Europe and America.

It was said that she had been arrested in nearly every large city of North America and in every country in Europe except Turkey. Great jewel thefts, confidence games, burglarizing of art galleries and other crimes were charged to "Sophie Lyons."

It was while serving a prison sentence that she decided that crime did not pay, gave it up and turned to real estate investments in Detroit.

KEYES' GIFT CLAIM HIT BY PROSECUTOR

Former Los Angeles Attorney Admits Returning Auto After Indictment.

WIFE MAY MOUNT STAND

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Former District Attorney Asa Keyes, on trial for bribery with two others, was dismissed from the witness stand today after undergoing a severe cross-examination at the hands of the prosecution regarding "valuable gifts" received by him when he was trying defendants in the Julian Petroleum Corporation crash.

The wife of the former district attorney and his daughter, Elizabeth Keyes, previously had been summoned to the courtroom to appear as witnesses for the defense.

Keyes, leaving the stand without redirect examination, was followed by John J. Murphy, attorney for Jacob Berman, former Julian promoter and one of the State's principal witnesses. At the same time United States District Attorney Samuel McNabb was subpenaed as a witness for the defense. Keyes had testified that McNabb had lunched with him and Ben Getzoff, a codefendant in the trial.

"Gifts" Subject of Quiz.

Prosecutor William Simpson, setting out to break down Keyes' assertions that alleged bribes given him by the promoters of the defunct Julian Petroleum Corporation, whom he prosecuted and who were acquitted, were solely "gifts," attacked the testimony relating to Getzoff. Getzoff, pictured yesterday by Keyes as posing as a wealthy man, was owner of the tailor shop in which the alleged "fixing" of the Julian case occurred, and is accused of giving Keyes numerous bribes.

Simpson asked Keyes if he were not aware of many suits filed against Getzoff for nonpayment of notes and other obligations, running from several hundred to thousands of dollars. Keyes denied any knowledge of the actions. Simpson also asked him if he knew that Getzoff paid only $22.22 in county taxes in 1925 and but $31.60 in county taxes last year. Keyes said he never had seen the figures.

Tells of Giving Back Auto.

Turning to the automobiles which Getzoff was alleged to have presented to Keyes, Simpson asked what had become of the expensive coupe which Keyes admitted Getzoff had given to him.

"Some time in November, 1928, I turned it back to Mr. Getzoff," Keyes said.

"Was that after the indictment was returned against you and Getzoff in this case?" Simpson asked.

"Yes; the indictments shot my plans full of holes and I knew that I could not pay for it, so I wanted to be relieved of the obligation."

STUDENT NEW MATE OF MRS. WOODHOUSE

Woman Who Won $465,000 Alienation Award Is Wed at Port Chester.

WOOED IN HUMBLE HOME

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 24.—The "little girl from just around the corner" whose broken romance won an award of $465,000—one of the largest alienation verdicts ever given—from a jury of Vermont farmers in 1922, has been remarried.

She is Mrs. Dorritt Stevens Woodhouse, and she was married to Williams Wells Brock, 25, of New York, who said he was a student at Columbia University, late Tuesday night in Port Chester, N. Y., by Justice of the Peace George Balle. She now lives in Stamford, Conn.

The statesque Dorritt, daughter of a soap salesman, had lived in the rear of the stables of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse in Burlington, Vt., and their haughty refusal to accept her as their son's wife nearly cost them one-third of their fortune. Upon appeal they were able to have the amount cut down to $125,000, which was paid when they were unable to have the verdict set aside.

Douglas Woodhouse was already known colloquially as a "speed merchant" in Burlington when he began to woo Dorritt. His daily vists to the humble cottage in the rear of his parents' stately mansion averaged six or seven for nearly three years. Then he joined the Army and they were wedded.

Along with this pretty romance was unfolded to the jury—in session 37 dramatic days—the extraordinary picture of the successful campaign of the rich banker and his wife to strangle their son's love and marry him to a woman more satisfactory in social position and fortune. A dashing Washington, D. C., divorcee, Mrs. Lillian McClelland, was named as the woman chosen.

After brief deliberation the jury returned its record verdict on February 23, 1927. Mrs. Woodhouse was granted a decree of divorce in Paris.

Women Ready to Duel As Police Intervene

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Police this morning prevented a duel between two Hungarian women. Challenges and acceptances were exchanged between Mme. Kovach, wife of a rich industrialist, and Mlle. Targo, a music teacher, whom Mme. Kovach accused of alienating her husband's affections.

This morning, very early, the two, supported by a group of men and women seconds, assembled in the snow in a park and were ready to vindicate their honor. Before they could exchange thrusts, however, the police interfered. The unrequited participants left the scene angrily, vowing they would find other means of settling their differences.

MORROW TO KEEP MEXICAN POST

of finance into a diplomatic role without any serious criticism attaching to it, and within the span of a few months be mentioned for the Presidency and the Secretary of Stateship, is rather high evidence of his diplomatic ability.

It is just such an excellent quality that Mr. Hoover wants to keep at Mexico City for a while. The ambassador's personality was striking with those who met him today after his call upon the President-elect. Short of stature, quick witted and pleasant, he was the last person in the world that one would pick out as a master of finance.

Discusses Mexican Visit.

He discussed with Mr. Hoover the advisability of his making a visit to Mexico and it is a safe prediction that the President-elect will do so, not necessarily in the immediate future but at the first opportunity that presents itself during his administration. Mr. Hoover had wanted to visit Mexico upon his recent Latin American tour, but lack of time precluded his doing so.

Mr. Morrow believes that such a visit would go far towards improving the relations between the two countries just as the Latin American trip furthered good will.

With the ambassador's definite elimination from Cabinet speculation the prospects of Ambassador Fletcher who made with Latin American tour with Mr. Hoover were considered by most of the political observers here to have enjoyed a definite boost.

There is no more basis for the belief that he will get the Secretary of Stateship, however, than the fact that Mr. Hoover was well pleased with his work on the tour, and that Fletcher has the reputation of being well able to sell himself when close to one as long as he was to Mr Hoover. There is the belief, too, that he would ideally fit in with what is believed to be Mr Hoover's plan to be his own Secretary of State.

Boyden Not Eliminated.

But there is no reason to believe that Roland P. Boyden, of Boston, who served as American observer on the reparations commission, and to whom it was understood rather definite overtures were made some time ago, has been eliminated from consideration.

There have been happenings down here to give weight to the belief that Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine will remain at their present posts for a while.

From California has come a report to the Hoover headquarters that Dr Lyman Wilbur, brother of the Naval Secretary, and close personal friend of Mr Hoover, will take over the Navy portfolio. In the absence of any authoritative comment the report is not believed to have any weight.

Mr. Hoover got away on his fishing trip immediately after Mr. Morrow left Newspaper men did not accompany him. They have made arrangements to keep in touch with the party until it returns Saturday. Mr. Hoover did not want them speculating on the Cabinet while he is trying to sneak up on barracuda, and whatever else is the prey of the fisherman out there.

FARMERS DEMAND HIGH FOOD TARIFF

Rates Would Raise the Cost of Living as Much as $5 Per Capita.

DEMOCRATS GIVE BACKING

There was presented to the ways and means committee of the House yesterday a demand for the highest rates of protective tariff on foodstuffs ever dreamed of in an American-made tariff. It was presented by a fairly well-organized farm group, representing every branch of agriculture and every section of the country. It received the encouragement of Democrats on the committee, as the examination of witnesses proceeded.

A scheme for protecting the products of the seed and grain section, presented by Dr. J. Lee Coulter, president of the North Dakota State Agricultural College, for the four States of Minnesota, Montana and the two Dakotas, and apparently accepted by the other farm groups, would raise the cost of living "only" $5 per capita. This admission was made by the advocates of the plan. Increases in corn, feeds, milk, cheese, cream, eggs, all dairy products and cattle, sheep and meats presented an array of tariff increases which had the advocates of high rates on manufactures figuratively hanging on the ropes.

Farm Groups United.

By a series of conferences held in advance of the hearings, most of the farm groups, who otherwise might be in opposition to each other, are united. Representative Selvig (Republican), of Minnesota, a representative of the wheat section, advocated a 45 per cent general increase on all farm products.

Among the tariff rates advocated was a duty on hides, now admitted free. Representative Selvig recommended 33 1-3 per cent, while more moderate suggestions were 6 cents on green hides and 16 cents on cured hides.

This duty is one which will be reflected in the shoe factories and in every pair of shoes and all leather goods made.

The $5 per capita increase in living costs suggested by Dr. Coulter in a series of duties on grains and feeds, on the basis of a population of 120,000,000 would be $600,000,000. The increases on dairy products and on meats would, it is estimated, add an equal additional cost, or $1,200,000,000 to the annual cost budget.

Raw Material Demands.

The demand of the farming group is part of the demand that raw material shall be placed on the highly protected list, including mining products. In addition, these groups propose to bar every thing that may come into competition with their products.

Some idea of the prohibitive rates demanded by agriculture may be gathered from the attitude of the dairy industry which demands the duty on milk should be increased from 2½ to 8 cents, cream 20 to 60 cents, butter 12 to 15 cents, and a duty on all brands of cheese, including Edam, Roquefort, Swiss, &c., from 5 to 8 cents, according to the brand.

BLANTON MAY JOIN IN GRAFT INQUIRY

mittee is scheduled to hold a meeting this morning to review its work in general, and it is quite probable that Mrs. Blaylock's charges will come up for consideration.

When she determined back in December to make charges against the police captain, Mrs. Blaylock first sought out Representative Blanton. Learning that he had been forced to go to Texas because of an outbreak of "flu" in his family, Mrs. Blaylock then turned to Representative Gibson.

On the night of December 15, Representative Gibson held a conference with Mrs. Blaylock in the Bethesda, Md., police station, a conference that remained a secret until The Washington Post published the facts nearly a month later.

Present at the conference were Herbert D. Brown, chief of the Bureau of Efficiency, and W. H. McReynolds, assistant chief of the bureau. The latter was there to make shorthand notes of what was said.

In substance, Mrs. Blaylock's charges against the police captain were that he had $14,000 in graft hidden away in a safety deposit box, that he had given her a ring which had been seized in a raid, and that he had swindled her in a real estate transaction.

PRINCE OF GAMBLERS IN CASIONS IS DEAD

Athanese Vagliano, Leader of "Greek Syndicate," Dies at Roquebrune.

WON AND LOST FORTUNES

Paris, Jan. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—One of the most spectacular gamblers ever known in the casinos and watering places of the Riviera, Athanese Vagliano, "the Greek," has just died at Roquebrune, his villa near Monte Carlo.

This "prince of the gamblers," as he was known at Monte Carlo, Nice, Deauville, Cannes and Aix-les-Bains, was the principal figure in the world-famous "Greek gambling syndicate," the other members of which were Sir Basil Zaharoff, the mystery man of European finance; M. Zografes and an American named Couloumidjian. Again and again the baccarat banks which they pooled their money to back won and lost millions of francs at a single sitting.

"Tout Va" Vagliano was the most familiar soubriquet for the dead gambler, for whenever he murmured "banco" in Monte Carlo's international Sporting Club or at the maximum table in any other casino the word was always followed by the croupier's announcement that the sky was the limit.

Early Life Only Rumor.

Vagliano's early background remains a matter of rumor. It is known that in his youth he was a humble sailor on Mediterranean sailing vessels and it has been whispered that his forbears were pirates and smugglers. When war broke out he was a large shipowner. After the conflict he sold his fleet and became the best known gambler on the continent.

When M. Camille Blanc, for a quarter of a century dictator of Monte Carlo gambling, was ousted as the overlord of the green baize table there, it was reported that Vagliano and Sir Basil Zaharoff together had acquired 75 per cent of the stock he had controlled.

One of the most serious reverses ever suffered by the Greek syndicate was at the hands of Andre Citroen, the French Henry Ford, who was reported to have won 3,000,000 francs of their capital in a prolonged battle over the baccarat table.

Vagliano, in action at the tables, was a dramatic figure. With a cigar clamped in one corner of his mouth, his olive-skinned, clean-shaven face immobile, he wore a strange air of remoteness, while his keen eyes stonily followed every turn of the cards. He would toss a bundle of notes across the table to a winner of a 100,000-franc bet without a flicker or emotion or drop winnings of prodigious amounts into the wicker basket kept at his hand for the purpose with an almost abstracted expression on his face.

He was always surrounded by a large retinue, including bodyguards and a cashier on salary, who went everywhere with the human "bank." One of his many secretaries, it was said, was kept busy answering proposals of marriage that came to Vagliano from every country in the world.

The late Vicente Blasco Ibanez, the Spanish novelist, was once asked if Vagliano were the "original" of the Greek gambler described in his novel of Monte Carlo, "Enemies of Women."

"All that I will confess," he said, "is that I once watched Vagliano win 1,000,000 francs at a single sitting."

SUBMARINE SALVAGE LOOP HELD SUCCESS

Bureau of Standards Reports Eyes for Chains Stand 236-Ton Pull.

ALSO WAS TESTED ON S-4

Tests of the strength of one of the steel "padeyes," or loops, contemplated for submarines, to which pontoon lifting chains may be attached to pull them to the surface in case of accident, were made yesterday at the Bureau of Standards and were reported, unofficially, as successful.

A padeye of a type recently tested as to accessibility in connection with submerged salvage and safety tests made at Provincetown Harbor, Mass., with the hull of the ill-fated S-4, withstood tractive power of a specially designed machine amounting to 236 tons, before it cracked. This is 76 tons more than the estimated amount it would have to stand in actual salvage operations.

The padeye was riveted to a metal structure of the same thickness, weight and construction as a section of submarine hull, and connected by a salvage chain to the machine which has a maximum pulling power of 2,000 tons.

The machine was set in motion at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued until 5:30, when the rim of the padeye snapped at the 236-ton mark. The padeye was pulled loose from the metal to which it had been riveted. Reports of the test will be forwarded to a special Navy board on submarine salvage and safety.

CAPITAL HUNTRESS GUILTY OF ASSAULT

hour—sat with friends, apparently in good spirits.

She had an air of confidence about her when she stood to hear the verdict read. As the words "guilty of second degree assault" were pronounced she began weeping and soon was ushered from the courtroom to the detention cell, still crying bitterly.

She made no comment whatsoever.

Arguments had begun when court opened this morning. Mrs. Wilson's attorney pointed to the testimony of Dallett Wilson, the husband who was shot, that he had menaced his wife with a heavy bronze paper weight, had used "high language" and that he believed the shooting was accidental. He emphasized the idea of high emotional stress under which Mrs. Wilson had labored during the 45-minute quarrel with Wilson which had preceded the shooting.

He argued that the shooting could not have been premeditated, and that the fact Mrs. Wilson had a revolver with her in no way indicated she had planned an assault upon her husband for she frequently carried weapons to protect the $40,000 worth of jewels which she often wore.

The state argued that there was no evidence, aside from that Wilson had given, to indicate that he had provoked an attack, it gave much emphasis to the fact that Mrs. Wilson came to her husband's office armed despite the fact that she had no permit for carrying weapons; and it made light of her failure to remember the things which happened at the immediate time of the shooting.

The prosecutor was quite skeptical over the possibility of a woman, known as a huntress of big game on five continents, remembering the details of how she had shot lions and polar bears and African dik-diks but forgetting entirely how it feels to shoot one's husband.

The jury retired at 2:49 p. m. and was in with a verdict of second degree assault at about 4 p. m.

The shooting for which Mrs. Wilson was tried occurred in Wilson's offices here last March. The two had separated after many years of more or less troubled married life and after many adventures together in hunting expeditions to remote parts of the world.

Mrs. Wilson went to her husband's office allegedly to demand an increase in his allowance to her. It was said she was receiving $500 monthly from him and she desired the amount doubled. A 45-minute argument ensued, the shooting of Wilson through the arms and shoulder bringing the argument to an end.

Wilson, when called as the first witness at the trial, startled even the court with his declaration that the shooting was accidental and that he had menaced and provoked his wife.

"She would be the last person in the world to do such a thing," Wilson said, "if she were in her right mind."

BORAH ASKS NEW RULING ON SEAS; NAVAL RACE SEEN

on the ground that it means merely building ships on paper and giving Congress a future opportunity to run the gauntlet of pacifist propaganda when the time comes for actually appropriating money for their construction.

At the Washington conference America scrapped millions of dollars worth of first-class fighting ships while the British and Japanese scrapped blueprints of ships not actually begun, according to one version of that conference. If Congress now authorizes the building of American blueprints to balance the first-class fighting ships under construction by Great Britain and Japan, the present plan for adequate national defense will turn out to be something of a comedy, according to the staunch advocates of actual rather than apparent preparedness for the naval defense of the United States.

Sea Agreement Sought.

But it is felt that the Borah program for a conference on freedom of the seas does not add weight to the argument for paper ships. America has been attempting to reach an agreement with the British on freedom of the seas since the first years of America's existence. Woodrow Wilson sought to make a beginning along this hoped-for line when he left for the Paris peace conference. He learned upon arrival abroad that it would take ten or twenty years to lay the groundwork for such an agreement and therefore abandoned the idea. At the Washington conference in 1921-22 the idea was likewise abandoned as impossible of bearing fruit. The same situation arose at the recent Geneva naval conference.

Senators believe that the Borah amendment might lead to real results at the end of a given number of years provided the American Navy is maintained at such a standard that the British see actual parity in naval strength supporting the American arguments for such agreement. But under the most favorable circumstances it would be a matter of years before Great Britain would alter her position on this question.

Senator Borah read his amendment to the Senate prior to making his speech. He did not put in a specific provision asking the President to call a conference on freedom of the seas because he felt that no such authority from the Senate was necessary. The senator's idea, he explained, is to obtain an expression of opinion by the Senate as to the wisdom of such a conference.

On Eve of Naval Race.

"I think, Mr. President, we are on the eve of a naval race with Great Britain," Senator Borah declared at the outset. "The situation is not dissimilar to that which existed between Great Britain and Germany from 1905 to 1914.

"The fact is that we are building a navy looking at England and England is building a navy looking at us. The basic principles of a naval race are already admitted in this discussion."

The senator from Idaho then read extracts from a British book—"Peace or War"—of which Commander Kenworth, of the British Parliament, is the author. These extracts frankly declared that Europe hates America, that Great Britain may later stand at the head of an anti-American coalition and that any nation threatening British sea power incurs the hostility of the ruling classes in Great Britain and that these ruling classes have the support of the British people. The board of admiralty, it was pointed out, is able to force its will respecting naval construction on any British government and succeeded in so doing even when the socialist government of Ramsay McDonald held the balance of power and was in control.

Naval reviews, mimic battles, military tournaments have become the fashion in England, it was emphasized. After reading these statements into the record, Senator Borah said the reason for this uneasiness was fundamentally due to the absence of rules of war to control commerce on the seas.

The rule of force alone prevails on the high seas in time of war, Senator Borah emphasized and he conceded that the advocates of strong navies were justified in demanding that American commerce be at all times protected against interference by any power claiming dominance of the seas. This argument, Mr. Borah asserted, has been and may be successfully advanced by those who advocate great navies.

"The senator surely does not think," interrupted Senator Hale, "that we are trying to build a Navy greater than Great Britains?"

"Yes, but not by this bill," replied Borah.

Senator Hale wanted to know if the senator from Idaho did not favor building an American Navy capable of protecting our commerce.

"I think we should do that," replied Senator Borah. "But before we start building we should first try to reach a complete understanding as to disarmament and also try to reach an understanding with reference to freedom of the seas."

If America should make effort to reach such agreements and fail, Mr. Borah said, "all the arguments in the world would not mitigate against building a great Navy."

At this point Senator Borah announced the specific purpose he has with respect to the pending bill. He wants the time limit for beginning work on the cruisers struck out of the bill so that the administration could choose between building or not building, according to developments in the international situation.

"Does the Senator think we will get farther with paper ships than with the ships under discussion?" Senator Hale asked.

"Yes, I do," replied Senator Borah.

Edge Enters Debate.

This brought Senator Edge into the debate. He declared that the naval arms limitation brought about by the Washington Conference of 1921-22 was made possible by the fact that America was actually building a strong Navy and that Great Britain as a consequence agreed to limitation on capital ships.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, objected to the intimation that the Washington Conference had accomplished great results.

"It is true that the United States made a great sacrifice," Mr. Robinson said. "We scrapped a large number of first-class battleships. But competition in other destructive vessels went right ahead."

Senator Borah said he believes the Washington Conference did some good and that those in charge of it did the best they could.

PARENTS PROTEST USE OF NEWS RACK

"Almost Invites Theft," Mrs. G. S. Rafter Informs Chairman Zihlman.

CALLED MENACE TO CHILD

A second protest against corner newspaper racks as "almost inviting thefts" was sounded yesterday by Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, president of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers, in a letter to Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee.

The protest of Mrs. Rafter was added to that of Judge Kathryn Sellers, of the Juvenile Court, who criticised the racks Tuesday in sentencing two colored boys for stealing papers and money from them.

Referring to the rack system as a "pernicious practice," Mrs. Rafter wrote as follows:

"I have observed with growing concern the many temptations that are placed in the paths of our children.

"One of the greatest of these is the corner news racks, which seems inexcusable because it is of no benefit to any one and is a serious menace to young people, with their many demands for ready money.

"Why are these money boxes allowed in the public streets, insecurely attached to the newspaper racks, and almost inviting theft?

"I understand that this system of selling papers is a loss to the newspaper companies, and we parents consider it a serious menace to our children. So why continue this pernicious practice? Yours most sincerely,

"MRS. GILES SCOTT RAFTER."

Modern-Minded Queen Of Afghans Has Son

London, Jan. 24 (United Press).—A son was born yesterday to the former Queen Souriya of Afghanistan, the Daily Express correspondent at Bombay reported tonight.

Queen Souriya and her husband, the former King Amanullah, are in Kandahar, southern Afghanistan, where they fled two weeks ago by airplane after rebels had forced the king's abdication. Queen Souriya, handsome advocate of European dress and customs in a country which is violently Moslem, was blamed in great part for the uprising which overthrew her husband. She had been active in promoting European customs against the wishes of tribal leaders.

LOST AT SEA

LIEUT. HENRY J. SCHMIDT, of Brooklyn, N. Y., missing from the U. S. S. Arkansas between Hampton Roads and the Panama Canal, as he appeared at the Naval Academy in 1922. The Navy Department has asked British officials in the Bahama Islands to search for his body, and has notified his mother, Mrs. Mary Schmidt, of Brooklyn. He was 31 years old.

Poet Laureate Of Canada Dies

Dr. J. D. Logan Lately Headed English Department of Marquette University.

Milwaukee, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. John D. Logan, 60, poet laureate of Canada and head of the department of English at Marquette University, died at the University Hospital today.

Dr. Logan became ill of pneumonia about six weeks ago and no hope had been entertained for his recovery.

He became a member of the Marquette University faculty in 1926 as a professor of English and in 1927 was appointed head of the English department.

He was born in Nova Scotia in 1869 and after graduation from Pictou Academy in 1886, attended Dalhousie University, Halifax, N. S. In 1894 he attended Harvard University. He won the Price Greenleaf derby and Thayer scholarships in three successive years.

After serving as assistant in philosophy at Harvard for one year, Dr. Logan served as professor of philosophy at Ursinus College in Pennsylvania and as head of the department of English and philosophy at the University of South Dakota.

Funeral services for Capt. George A. Morris, 75 years old, pilot of vessels plying the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, who died Wednesday at his home, 1116 C street southeast, will be held at noon tomorrow at the residence. Burial will be in Loudon Park Cemetery, Baltimore.

He had been in failing health three years. Capt. Morris retired about sixteen years ago. Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Wolfe, of this city, and Mrs. Bertha M. Adams, of Baltimore.

A. V. FULLER, CHEMIST OF DISTRICT, IS DEAD

Short Illness Is Fatal to Member of Department of Health Staff.

FUNERAL IS SATURDAY

Aubrey Vail Fuller, 44 years old, District chemist, died yesterday after a short illness at his home, 3100 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Mr. Fuller had been with the Health Department since February of 1926, when he succeeded Dr. T. M. Price as the District chemist. Previous to this he had served as chemist for the American Sugar Refining Co. in New York City.

The chemist was born in the District and educated in the public schools here, graduating from McKinley Technical High School. While there he edited the school paper, "Hand and Mind." Later he attended George Washington University, where he received a degree.

Some time after finishing his college course he secured employment at the Bureau of Standards. From there he went to the Bureau of Animal Industry in the Department of Agriculture. Some years later he made a connection with the sugar refinery and went to New York. However, he returned to the District in 1926.

Mr. Fuller is survived by his wife, who previous to her marriage was Miss Nell Golder, of Millville, N. J.; his father, Edward J. Fuller, 2318 First street northwest, and a sister Miss Norma Fuller.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his father.

Francis M. Skinner, Navy Veteran, Dies

Former Chief Clerk of Issuing Division at Treasury Succumbs at 84.

Funeral services for Francis Marion Skinner, 84 years old, Navy veteran and retired chief clerk of the issuing division of the United States Treasury Department, who died Wednesday at his home, 454 Tenth street southwest, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the residence. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Skinner served on the U. S. S. Tulip during the Civil War and was an ensign at the end of his services. He was credited with having saved two men from drowning.

He was a past commander of Lincoln Post, Grand Army of the Republic; was an organizer and had held every office in Champion Council, No. 15, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, a member of the Columbia Lodge of the Shield of Honor; had held all chairs in the Crusader Commandery, No. 180, Knights of Malta, and at one time was lieutenant commander of the Naval Veterans Association of the District of Columbia. He also was a charter member of the Old Guard of this city, serving as color sergeant for four years. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Lillian T. Skinner, and two sons, Mitchell A. Skinner and Francis M. Skinner, jr.

MRS. F. M. SHARP'S RITES.

Widow of Confederate Officer Leaves 4 Children and 14 Grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie M. Sharp, 81 years old, who died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. G. Bigiow, 1435 A street southeast, were held there yesterday morning with the Rev. J. E. Copenhaver, pastor of the Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating.

Mrs. Sharp was the wife of the late James W. Gresham, Confederate Army officer, her first husband, and J. R. Sharp, of Mantua, Tex. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. L. G. Bigiow and Mrs. Walter Platt, of Tampa, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. D. H. Dumas, of Sherman, Tex.; two sons, G. H. Gresham and O. P. Gresham, of Temple, Tex.; and fourteen grandchildren.

Securities Sought Amid Street Trash

Bundle Lost by Messenger Worth $27,034; Police Join in Search.

New York, Jan. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—In a vain effort to find missing securities valued at $27,034, detectives of the Old Slip station today joined members of the street cleaning department and gathered all papers on certain streets of the financial district.

Vincent Orr, 17, a messenger, was sent by Kean, Taylor & Co., of Rector street, to deliver securities. He went to No. 15 Broad street, then to Hayden, Stone & Co., at No. 25 Broad street. When he left that concern he discovered he had lost ten Associated Gas & Electric bonds, 4½s, due 1948, worth $11,000; one bond of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, due 1930, worth $1,034, and two Loew & Co. stock certificates for 100 shares each, worth $15,000.

The messenger said he had carried the securities in his overcoat pocket.

Moose Authorize Huge Fund to Aid Children

(Associated Press.)

Expenditure of $2,000,000 in new construction at Mooseheart, Ill., on its institution for care and education of children was authorized yesterday by supervising officials of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The authorizing was announced by Secretary of Labor Davis, who is director general of the fraternal society, following a conference of Moose officials. Mr. Davis said that approximately $750,000 will be devoted to new school buildings, $250,000 is for a new church and the balance for additional housing for boys, nurses and teachers. A resolution was introduced favoring the reappointment of Davis to the Hoover Cabinet, but it was withdrawn at the insistence of the Secretary.

Two Men Fall and Die On Ice in Same Place

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.). On exactly the same spot where a few days ago Edward Lindbloom, 30, slipped on the icy pavement, struck his head and was instantly killed, John Bobos, 23, fell today and fractured his skull, dying soon afterward.

The ice on the pavement has not yet been removed.

WILLARD HOTEL'S TREASURER DIES

RESIDED HERE 40 YEARS

Abram R. Wingate, 68 years old, treasurer of the Willard Hotel Co., and widely known figure in Masonic and patriotic circles, died yesterday evening at his home, 2641 Garfield street northwest.

Wingate, a native of Pennsylvania, had resided in Washington for the last 40 years. He was past master of St. John's Lodge, No. 11, Masons; past potentate of the Shrine, an elder in Gunton Memorial Presbyterian Church, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Sons of Colonial Wars.

He is survived by two sons, Maj. H. A. Wingate, U. S. A., Washington, and A. R. Wingate, jr., of New Orleans, and three daughters, Mrs. A. A. Fenderson, of Washington; Mrs. H. M. Phelps, of New York, and Misses Mary H. Florence and Rose Wingate, also of Washington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Dunton Memorial Church. Interment will be in Rock Creek Church Cemetery.

WOMAN'S WIT IS AID IN HIT-RUN AUTO CASE

ually caused Richardson to pull to the curb and stop.

"You turn around and drive back to that body," Mrs. Newburgh ordered. "Will you go"

"Sure," Richardson answered. The two automobiles, Newburgh maintaining a position parallel and slightly to the rear, retraced Massachusetts avenue to the Harris Hotel. Mrs. Newburgh jumped from her machine and dashed in the hotel, her arms overhead, shouting "Police! Police!" The hotel clerk, startled out of attending to a guest, complied with Mrs. Newburgh's request and called the police.

Returning to the scene of the accident, Mrs. Newburgh reported to Policeman R. B. Strong, of the Sixth Precinct, who arrived and took Richardson in custody. Archive was lifted into a police patrol and taken to Casualty Hospital. He died a few hours later of compound fractures of the skull.

Mrs. Newburgh pointed out to Policeman Strong a long piece of clothing hanging from the rear undercarriage of Richardson's machine. It had been torn from Archive's person when the car struck him down. The Newburghs followed the police patrol to the Sixth Precinct station and Mrs. Newburgh made a detailed report of the accident.

Although shocked by the experience, and inconvenienced, Mr. and Mrs. Newburgh insisted they had done nothing any citizen would not have done willingly. "If it hadn't been for Mrs. Newburgh's presence of mind the man would have got away," Newburgh said. "She was unnerved but she maintained a calm and a forceful manner throughout. It was her work."

Mrs. Newburgh, however, disclaimed any credit. "It was natural to want to stop and try to help the poor man knocked down," she said.

Little information was available about Archive. Police were told he had been out of work for some time. Richardson was held at the Sixth Precinct station pending a coroner's finding.

Eleven-year-old Charles Newburgh was a passenger in the Newburgh car, and acted his part during the experience by keeping still.

MRS. HAMMONDS RAN GOVERNOR, SAYS AID

Called Him Inefficient and Claimed She Saved State, Secretary Holds.

TELLS OF INCENSE POTS

Oklahoma City, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—H. E. Sullivan, private secretary to Henry S. Johnston, suspended governor, testified before a house investigating committee today that Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, the governor's confidential secretary, had said that Johnston was "absolutely incompetent," and that if it were not for her "the administration would go on the rocks."

The house of representatives today voted an eighth article of impeachment against Johnston. The article was based on the issuance of a pardon to Dewey Crossthwaite, escaped convict, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder of a young woman.

Protesting virtually every step of the questioning, Sullivan unrolled intimate stories of the administration personnel heretofore existing only as rumors.

Sullivan said that Johnston had called him into the executive office after the house committee had started investigation of a pardon granted to Dewey Crossthwaite, fugitive convict, last December. The pardon was the basis of one of the ten impeachment charges returned against the governor by the committee. The witness quoted Johnston as saying:

"Damn you, Sullivan, you've got to shoulder the responsibility for the pardon."

"I said I would be damned if I would do it," Sullivan told the committee.

Under protest the secretary told of visiting the home of James R. Armstrong, adviser of the governor and uncle of Mrs. Hammonds, and finding Armstrong in a bedroom draped in oriental splendor. Sullivan said Armstrong lighted five or six pots of incense and hummed as he read a legislative bill that the secretary had brought to him. Armstrong and Johnston have been represented to be students of Rosicrucianism, an Oriental philosophy.

COOLIDGES RECEIVE ARMY-NAVY MEMBERS

distinguished the earlier part of the reception returned. There was no longer any question of sadness. The minutes fled rapidly for the younger officers who whirled in the mazes of the fox trot, while bemedaled generals and admirals observed them from the stag lines. Not all the admirals and generals were content with observing. They encircled their partners' waists and joined hilariously in the merriment.

The evening began and ended well, despite the undercurrent of regret. Mrs. Coolidge, with one of her customary gestures of courtesy, started the reception with a gracious act when she presented Mrs. John Walker, the aged wife of Maj. Gen. John Walker, retired, with the bouquet of white roses she was carrying. The old lady received them with a smile and word of appreciation. She stood—a perfect replica of Queen Victoria, with her lace fichu, wristlets and black satin gown—holding them proudly in the Blue Room during the entire function. It was only when Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge finally left that Mrs. Walker also took her departure.

Unusual List of Guests.

Last night's reception was not, to most of those who attended, "just another White House affair." Because of the fact that it is the last event of the kind during the Coolidge administration, it drew many persons who otherwise might not have gone. Among these were debutantes who "wanted to be able to say" that they had been present at the last reception, and older men and women who had not walked in a presidential line since as far back as the late eighties.

In the constantly shifting groups of visitors were seen such people as Mrs. Marthena Harrison Williams, granddaughter of President Benjamin Harrison, and Dr. Frederic LeClercq, of Karlsbad, wearing the Legion of Honor, who was received at the White House as a young bachelor in the days when President Cleveland acted as host and the buffets of the stately mansion reflected the hospitality of another generation. Mrs. Williams, as a small child, suffered from scarlet fever while visiting at the White House, and for the first time in history the iron gates were closed under the strict surveillance of a medical quarantine.

Memories of other times occurred to many an old veteran last night, as he trod the waltzes almost as spryly as some of the gilded young aids. One or two of the older soldiers were on crutches, and these received special attention and courtesy from the President and Mrs. Coolidge. The foreign contingent of officers added a splash of color to the scene, as they danced in the East Room, or strolled in the Green Room, or strode over to greet the newly arrived Military Attache of the French Embassy, Gen. H. Casanave, who made his appearance, escorted by Maj. Georges Thenault, French Assistant Military Attache for Aviation. Gen. Casanave was dressed in the dark blue uniform of a superior officer, while Maj. Thenault wore the regulation sky-blue of the French army.

Dancing Is Difficult.

Dancing, although less crowded than at the congressional reception, proved more difficult last night, because spurs and cavalry sabers do not readily lend themselves to the light pastime. Even a mouthful of gold epaulette proved uninteresting to some of the dancers. These minor annoyances, however, were met with entire good humor. When the clock pointed to 11, and the musicians of the Marine Band packed up their instruments and left, a laughing, joking crowd of officers wended its way downstairs, with only the least little remnant of a sigh at the thought that there will be no more Army and Navy receptions—until next season.

First Lady Carries Bouquet At Army and Navy Reception

Gives Flowers to Mrs. John Walker; Mrs. Coolidge Receives Guests Clad in Gown of Blue Transparent Velvet, With Long Train.

Mrs. Coolidge last night lent the dominant touch to the elegance of hundreds of well-dressed women who attended the Army and Navy reception, when she received her guests clad in a gown of hydranges blue transparent velvet fashioned on straight lines, with a deep V decolletage outlined with rhinestones. A long train fell from the shoulders and Mrs. Coolidge carried a bouquet of white roses which she later gave to Mrs. John Walker. It was the first reception this year at which the "first lady" has carried flowers.

Mrs. Dawes in Coral Gown.

Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the Vice President, wore a gown of coral transparent velvet, embroidered with gold around the neck and at the waistline; at the waist in back was a pale brown tulle bow, with long streamers.

Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg, wife of the Secretary of State, was in a gown of black velvet, made along straight lines and trimmed with bands of silver bead embroidery.

Mrs. John G. Sargent, wife of the Attorney General, wore a period gown of yellow satin, brocaded in silver, with a full, long skirt and a yellow rose at the center of the corsage.

Mrs. Harry S. New, wife of the Postmaster General, was gowned in black velvet, the corsage made in surplice style, and with a train and draperies falling from a crystal buckle at the left hip.

Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wore a gown of burgundy chiffon, trimmed with spangles of the same shade; the long, full skirt was scalloped and longer in the back and at the waistline was a double band of spangles.

Mrs. William M. Jardine, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, had on a gown of chiffon shaded from shell pink to American beauty; the bodice was studded with rhinestones and at the waist was a design of rhinestones.

Mrs. William F. Whiting, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, was in a gown of black crepe, made on straight lines with a long panel at one side touching the floor and gold and silver beadings at the waist.

BOSWELL DENIES AID TO BIRGER GUNMEN

Accused State's Attorney Says Williamson Peace Was His Only Aim.

TELLS OF TRIP TO GANG

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Testifying that he had sought to "bring peace" to crime-harried Williamson County, Illinois, Arlie O. Boswell, former State's attorney, made emphatic denials today that he had been in a conspiracy with the Charlie Birger gang of gunmen.

Boswell testified in United States District Court where he is on trial with George Bell, former coroner of Williamson County; Hezzie Bryn, former chief of police of Johnston City; Thomas Boyd, former chief of police of Marion Ill., and Pete Salmo, alleged bootlegger, on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act.

Taking up one by one the accusations of bribe-taking, extortion, neglect of duty, plotting and connivance with the Birger gang, hurled at him by an array of 66 Government witnesses, the former prosecutor denied each.

He flatly denied he had received any protection money from the Birger gangsters or from any other persons engaged in law violations. On the contrary, he said, he sought a conference with Birger in 1926 to ask him to stop fighting the rival Shelton brothers' gang "so that we could have peace in Williamson County."

He declared the only time he visited "Shady Rest," the Birger roadhouse, was when he went there with Byrn in the hope of peacefully settling the rival gang warfare. Boswell said that during his term of office he prosecuted eleven members of the Birger gang, obtained one death penalty and six convictions of from one year to life in the penitentiary.

Answering the charges of John Ford, former deputy circuit clerk, that he had viewed indifferently the Herrin election riot of April, 1926, Boswell said he was in Shawneetown, Ill., the day of the riot "on business with a friend," and that he hurried to Herrin immediately upon receipt of information concerning the shooting.

He testified that his purpose in visiting Berger in jail before the gang leader was hanged last year was to get information which might be used against other members of the gang.

"BEST" AVIATOR

would be wide awake at the same hour today, all set to pick up another message from the frozen wastes of the South polar regions.

Byrd Ship Answers.

Redington heard the City of New York calling on its daily morning schedule. He called back asking if the base ship had any message to transmit. In reply he was informed that nothing of importance has occurred and that the station had "no message." The ship thanked him for his offer. No location was given for the vessel. The call was logged in the station call book as made at 12:35, Greenwich time.

Redington, whose station is in his own room, almost slept past the hour of his successful attempt to communicate, but awakened in time. The City of New York "talks" every morning at 6:20 o'clock.

He is the son of Paul G. Redington, assistant forester of the Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Ermina W. Redington, of Falls Church. His interest in radio transmission began less than three years ago. He is now a member and operates an official station of the American Radio Relay League, having obtained his license six months ago.

Apparatus Own Creation.

The apparatus used to communicate with the Byrd expedition is his own creation. It consists of a one-tube low-power Short-wave transmitter and a two-tube one-stage audio short-wave receiver with head phones. Outside his home is a "Zeppelin" type aerial.

At McKinley Technical High School where Redington is a second-year student, he is a member of the school radio club. As the only licensed member, he is the most experienced and frequently lectures to other members on his radio experiences.

Listed in his log book are calls to Germany, Belgium, Texas, Australia, Lisbon, Portugal, Holland, Nebraska, Colorado, Spain, Wisconsin, Newfoundland, Belgium, Antwerp, the Byrd base ship in the Antarctic regions London and Canada in consecutive order, as made since January 19.

He communicates daily on schedule with Station VK5HG at Glenely, South Australia, calling them at 7 o'clock each morning.

ITALIAN NAMED BEST 1928 WORLD AVIATOR

International Honors Go to Col. Ferrarin; Rosendahl Gets Distinction.

EIELSON HEADS U. S. LIST

Paris, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The title "the best aviator in the world in 1928" was awarded by the International League of Aviators today to the Italian, Col. Arturo Ferrarin. After breaking the duration records, he flew from Rome to Natal, Brazil, thus setting a new mark for distance.

The choice of Ferrarin for the honor was made by a margin of only two votes over Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, who commanded the plane Southern Cross, which flew across the Pacific from America to Australia. The 1927 title was awarded to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

This year's trophy for women pilots went to Lady Bailey, but a medal of honor was given to Lady Heath. Both of these British women flew between London and Cape Town.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, who commanded the Graf Zeppelin on its trip from Germany to America and return, was awarded the lighter-than-air trophy for 1928. Belated designation of the 1927 award in this class was given to Lieut. Comdr. Charles E. Rosendahl, U. S. N., for his feats in that year with the dirigible Los Angeles.

"First-flier" trophies were awarded also in various countries. Carl B. Eielson was named for the United States, Capt. Kingsford-Smith for Australia, Bert Hinckler for England, Capt. Jimenez for Spain, Col. Ferrarin for Italy, Capt. Herman Koehl for Germany and Dieudonne Costes for France.

In Latin America the "first-flier" honors went as follows: Venezuela, Capt. Manuel Rios; Ecuador, Capt. Luis Mantilla; Bolivia, Maj. Santalla Estrella; Salvador, Capt. Nunez; Honduras, Garay; Guatemala, Commandant Morales Lopez; Cuba, Capt. Delaborde; Mexico; Emilo Carransa; Peru, Martinez Pinillos.

THE SHIPPING CONFERENCE.

What was acknowledged to be one of the largest and most successful meetings of shipping interests ever held in the United States was brought to a close yesterday in this city. Representatives of practically all the leading shipping organizations of the Nation attended the conference, which confined its attention solely to questions of major importance relating to water-borne commerce and foreign trade.

There have been other shipping conferences in the past. There will be others in the future. But the conference just closed will go down in history as the first concrete demonstration of the fact that, after a long period of uncertainty and doubt, the maritime interests of the United States are at last in general accord as to the best methods of developing the American merchant marine. The significance of this spirit of solidarity, arrived at in the face of the most serious obstacles, will not be lost upon the country generally, or upon Congress, or, for that matter, upon the foreign propagandists and others who have so consistently hampered the work of the Shipping Board and other protagonists of a strong shipping policy. At last the Government's efforts to foster a privately-owned merchant marine are being recognized and applauded by the private interests themselves, and both are now working shoulder to shoulder to achieve a common end, namely, to provide ships of a number and quality commensurate with America's standing as a world power.

Realizing the intimate relationship between naval and merchant vessels, each supplementing the other in all activities relating to the expansion of ocean-borne commerce and the development of trade-routes, to say nothing of national defense, the conference went on record as strongly indorsing the pending cruiser bill.

It was the sense of the conference that future meetings, similar to the one just closed, be held at least annually, and that the present organization be made permanent, as the best medium for aiding the Shipping Board in carrying out the maritime mandate of the American people.

AIR MERCHANTMEN.

The Navy, in advocating the construction and operation of rigid airships, has been actuated by the belief that they are valuable for naval purposes and also that they will have most important use commercially. It has felt that the United States should take its rightful place in airship operation, so that this country will not face a situation in the air that it now faces in regard to the merchant marine. Despite the Navy's pioneering effort with dirigibles, however, it is Germany and England that are first ready to inaugurate commercial transatlantic service.

The Gibbs-Winchester Co., one of eight bidders for the purchase of Shipping Board vessels, listed with its bid a "supplemental offer for airships." In section 409 (c) of the merchant marine act of 1928, the use of airships and airplanes in conjunction with vessels is provided for in cases where the Postmaster General is of the opinion that such use will expedite and maintain satisfactory mail service. In its bid Gibbs-Winchester Co. points out that "the large, rigid airship of the Zeppelin type has been developed to the point where its application to transatlantic service is entirely feasible," and asserts that "the availability in the United States of a perfected and approved design of Zeppelin airship (that controlled by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation) helium gas for inflation, expert construction and operating personnel, combined with recent advances in American meteorological and radio communication science, makes the inclusion of rigid airships as an integral part of a transatlantic transportation business peculiarly opportune."

It is proposed to adopt as the basic design the plans for fleet airships approved by the Navy. With the omission of special naval equipment there will remain available carrying capacity sufficient for fuel for transatlantic crossings in unfavorable weather, and in addition 25 tons for pay load. The ships would be operated as merchantmen of the air, carrying only mail and express until such time as it had been demonstrated that passengers could be carried in comfort and safety. Four ships ultimately would be built, together with alternate terminal facilities in Europe and in the United States, and they would be operated weekly in winter and twice a week in summer. "It is to be noted," says the company, "that a new kind of navigation is introduced with this new type of ship. The airship's course is plotted on a weather map, not a mariners' chart, and local storm areas and head winds are avoided rather than rocks and shoals."

The time has arrived when the United States must decide whether it is willing to let other nations gain the commercial advantage of being first in the transatlantic dirigible field. The Shipping Board would do well to consider seriously any offer that contemplates operation of merchantmen of the air.

CAPT. FRIED'S HEROIC ACT.

Three years ago Capt. George Fried, of the Naval Reserve, wrote his name on the list of American heroes of the sea by rescuing the crew of the British freighter Antinoe during a violent storm. Wednesday night he scored another victory against serious odds and rescued the crew of 32 aboard the distressed Italian vessel Florida. Picking up the S O S of the Florida and steering his course by means of a radio direction finder, Capt. Fried drove the United States liner America 350 miles to the rescue. The storm was so severe that the lifeboats of the America were unable to get alongside the Florida and the freighter's seamen were forced to swim. But all were saved, and only the chief engineer was seriously injured, he having suffered a broken leg.

Italy and America will rejoice with Capt. Fried in his achievement. A man who builds up a reputation for efficiency in rescuing distressed vessels at sea is deserving of the highest praise. But for the prompt action of Capt. Fried the crew might have suffered the fate that befell 111 persons aboard the ill-fated Vestris.

It is recalled also that just 20 years ago the wireless for the first time played a part in rescuing a vessel in distress at sea. Today the radio is invaluable in saving life. A radio S O S sent in time is almost certain to bring nearby vessels to the rescue. As a result ocean travel is safer than ever before. There is no longer excuse for sea tragedies. When vessels founder and sink with great loss of life in this age it is a result of failure to take advantage of all the safety measures that have been made possible by science.

Vessels are always liable to be unprepared to weather a severe storm of wind and waves, and some accidents are bound to happen on the water. It is an honor to the American merchant marine that it contains such skillful and devoted masters as Capt. Fried, who stand ready to risk their lives in saving others.

REGULATION OF TRANSPORTATION.

Regulation of transportation has become one of the foremost problems of the day. Railroad regulation by the Federal Government has become a fixed policy, and the question now before Congress is whether or not measures should be enacted to regulate interstate commercial motor transportation. A bill dealing with the subject is now pending before the House committee on interstate commerce.

Because of the close connection between operation of commercial motor vehicles with the supervision of highways, which is under control of the States, Congress may find this a difficult problem. The desired end is regulation of all transportation facilities in the interest of the public. Looking at the problem in this light, Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, made a suggestion before the American Association of State Highway Officials in Chicago recently which is deserving of thoughtful consideration. He suggests a national transportation board "to take up not only the matter of regulating interstate bus and motor truck transportation, but also the vastly larger question of coordinating all our existing agencies of transportation in such a way as to promote the best utilization of each."

He points out that operation of aircraft is under control of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce; railroads under the Interstate Commerce Commission; inland waterway facilities under the Inland Waterways Corporation, and administration of the Federal highway act under control of the Bureau of Public Roads. Each one of these agencies is directing a different means of transportation, and there is no connection between any of them. If representatives of each of these bodies could join in a study of some of the transportation problems their recommendations would prove of practical value.

IMMIGRATION BILLS.

On Wednesday the Senate passed two bills having to do with immigration. One provides for the issuance of certificates of admission and the other provides that aliens entering the United States unlawfully, following earlier deportation, shall be guilty of felony. Both bills bore the indorsement of the committee on immigration, the Secretary of Labor and the Commissioner of Immigration, and were enacted without debate.

Enforcement of the immigration laws has come to be a major problem of the Government. Hundreds of aliens, ineligible to enter the United States lawfully because of exhausted quota limits or physical, mental or moral disability, slip in surreptitiously. Keeping tab on aliens lawfully within the United States, and weeding from them those in the country unlawfully, has been a practically impossible task. The first of the bills passed by the Senate Wednesday provides that aliens lawfully admitted shall be provided with certificates, "which shall be prima facie evidence of lawful admission," containing the name, date of birth, nationality, and full data regarding the admission, together with a photograph of the alien. Such certificates would protect the rights of aliens lawfully admitted, as well as aiding the authorities in checking up on aliens subject to deportation.

The second measure would provide an effective weapon for use against aliens unlawfully entering the country. It promises to put a stop to the prevailing practice on the part of many deportees in stealing back into the country. Both measures should be concurred in by the House.

LOCAL NORMAL GRADUATES.

There is contained in the current District appropriation bill a clause that would repeal the section of the public school act granting priority to graduates of Washington's normal schools in the appointment of teachers in the secondary schools. The repealing clause provides that priority in appointment shall apply only to graduates of local normal schools who shall, at the time of their graduation, rank within the first 25 of their respective classes. The superintendent of schools is in favor of placing local normal school graduates on a competitive basis with those trained outside of Washington, although he has said that "there are no better trained teachers anywhere than those that come out of the local normal schools." The Board of Education, however, is opposed to repeal of the priority clause, and it is certain that a determined attempt will be made to eliminate the provision.

District taxpayers are interested primarily in seeing that the schools obtain thoroughly competent teachers. They believe that local normal schools turn out competent teachers. If the schools fall down in this respect it is up to Congress to provide for their improvement, so that Washington children can continue under the tutelage of Washington trained teachers.

There is grave danger in throwing open local teaching positions to Nation-wide competition. Politics would enter in, to a greater or less degree, and soon inferior teachers would get the positions. More would be lost by such a change than would be gained by placing local normal school graduates in direct competition with teachers trained outside the District.

MAJ. E. BROOKE LEE.

The effort of disgruntled elements in the Maryland Legislature to make capital of alleged irregularities in the finances of Montgomery County was quickly disposed of by the house after a vigorous statement by the speaker, E. Brooke Lee. By a vote of 93 to 11 the house, in committee of the whole, rejected the proposal to make an investigation, thus stamping as false the reports industriously circulated by insurgent Democrats for political effect. Then the house unanimously adopted the report rejecting the resolution.

Maj. Lee severely castigated the authors of the resolution, who had insisted that there was "nothing personal" in their repetition of the charge that the Montgomery County Commission had wrongfully diverted county courthouse bond funds to the construction of roads which helped to develop properties in which Maj. Lee is interested. The charge was deeply resented by the Montgomery County Commission as well as by Maj. Jee, and was shown to be entirely without foundation. Maj. Lee told his colleagues that he could not admit that the scandalmongers had brought the charge in a "kindly spirit," as they had pretended. The overwhelming vote by which the resolution was rejected was to have been expected by the people of Maryland, who have pinned their faith in Maj. Lee, and whose future political fortunes are a matter of pride to the people of that State.

A deadly poisonous snake died just one month after it bit Marlin Perkins, herpetologist at the St. Louis zoo. Its death was caused partly, according to authorities, by nervous shock, induced, no doubt, by realization of the fact that it was a herpetologist it had bitten.

The judiciary committee of the New York State Assembly killed the bill to permit former Gov. Smith to become a lawyer without taking the bar examination. Al now will be able to devote his entire attention to selling his book.

A tariff cut, manufacturers told the ways and means committee, would speed the return of the 5-cent cigar. In the name of the late Tom Marshall, can the House refuse to act?

The State Department

By F. J. STIMSON

For Ambassador to Argentina, in Scribner's.

The first thing a diplomatic secretary is taught to do is never, in his dispatches, "to put the department in the wrong." But the difference between the undersecretary in the department and the minister at his post is, as an Assistant Secretary of State once lucidly explained to me, that "The department thinks the fellow on the job is a d—d fool, but the fellow on the job knows the department is."

I incline to think the Department is, about half the time, right. This is a liberal concession, surely. But it has traditions—traditions, prejudices, hallowed and secular attitudes—which are unshakable. It pampers Peru, ignores Argentina and meddles in Mexico. It is convinced that we should take trade and give only loans in return.

Secondly, It is a singularly bad correspondent. Mr. Page in London was much vexed by this, though I think it is there in its right. You are there to give it information, not it you.

Thirdly, It publishes your most confidential dispatches in the newspapers. This is indefensible—even if it be done to make a score in home politics.

Finally, It has no manners.

It is harder, though, to forgive Its inability to keep a secret. And harder still, for our vanity, to discover that the Secretary of State—and of course not the President—never reads your dispatches. The young college boy, Acting Assistant Attache to the Secretary of the Third Assistant Secretary of State opens the pouch, distributes the letters and documents (it is already late in the afternoon of a Saturday) and with a sigh settles himself to open your dispatches.

But though It may not read dispatches, It files them away most carefully, and they are all numbered; and the story runs of a certain Minister to Nicaragua (let us say) who, believing that promotion depended on the number of dispatches, spent the day before the mail day crossing the isthmus in a railroad train, his Corona on his lap, typewriting madly a succession of dispatches on any old subject that occurred to him, but dating them on different days. The boys in the department like to have something to read—moreover it is their only chance of putting a minister in the wrong and so hastening their own promotion.

But there were subjects of importance, or earnest recommendations or suggestions I made, which did require attention, sometimes immediate action, by our Government. To get this, I devised a scheme which—though worthy of an exclusive patent—I hereby give over, free of charge, to my colleagues in the career.

It is true, Mr. Knox did not read your dispatches—for several days, if ever—but he did read his Washington Post at the very next morning's breakfast table.

Establish friendly relations with the correspondent of the Associated Press in the country to which you are accredited. When he calls each day for news give him the pressing matter of your dispatch, just sent by cable. That way you will get results!

Silence Is Golden.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Protection of New York.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The vital spot of the American Republic is New York City. The United States of America should possess a Navy capable of protecting the City of New York against any possible combination of hostile fleets. The destruction of New York would mean ruin, for the whole Nation. It is impossible to overestimate its importance. New York is the financial heart of America and the storage place of incalculable wealth. It is also one of the most vulnerable cities in the world. It is close to the sea, and is so placed and planned that it could be raked, fore and aft, by hostile warships, from south to north, throughout its entire length.

Under the fire of modern 16-inch guns, from a distance of 20 miles, it would go down, with its soaring skyscrapers, like a city of glass.

And Congress has not yet decided to build fifteen additional cruisers. Fifteen additional battleships would be more to the point, if that were possible.

"DEFENSE, NOT DEFIANCE."

Should Investigate Fires.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial headed "Investigate the Fires" is a timely warning to the public when so many fires are occurring in our city. Fire in large cities is the most destructive element we have to contend with, and preventive measures should be worked to the limit, not so much on account of the destruction to property, but for the protection of human lives.

While some people are careless enough to throw a discarded cigarette stump in a gasoline can without first being sure that the fire is out, a few may get an idea that it is time for the insurance companies to "get busy."

We live in an age when human lives appear to be depreciating in value with the general run of people. Fires that are responsible for the loss of lives should be thoroughly looked into. Fire-fighting in windy weather is a dangerous occupation, and the noble men who respond to alarms may eat their breakfast on earth and their supper with the angels. They are deserving of more reward than their employes give them here on earth. H. T. McC.

Proposed New Cruisers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why is it before the war when we were considered by all the world as having next to no battleships whatever and England had the greatest battleship navy on earth, that we were not afraid of being swallowed whole by England? Commercially, we were each the greatest asset of the other; also Canada bordered us from ocean to ocean without a single fortress between.

We understood that the English battleship craze was for the purpose of keeping all her colonies from uttering protests.

I am now wondering why England does not attempt to establish mutual benefits in India as cheaper than cannon balls. Why not a home government for them with restricted educational suffrage?.

Let the traffic be in what conduces to health, happiness and universal efficiency. England owes that to India.

The Hoover idea of universal, mutual commercial benefits, together with righteousness and good will, alone will save the earth as far as humanity is concerned.

Let me repeat a short item in my article on this subject which The Post published a few weeks ago. I spoke of the time when apparently our whole country was shaken with the idea that Japan was to swallow us whole. It was called "The Yellow Peril."

The national fright maintained until an article appeared in one of our magazines written by a Japanese admiral. It read substantially as follows: "Our people," said he, "are both surprised and alarmed at the apparent antagonistic feeling of America for Japan. Could but America understand how she is our greatest customer, and for us, how serious would be the loss of her trade; and from a military point of view, what would it avail us to batter down a few Pacific forts when what we would have to fight would be the U. S. Treasury? What we most heartily desire are mutual understandings, ever increasing commercial relations and an everlasting friendship."

MRS. JOHN B. HENDERSON.

No Monument to Jefferson.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While preparations are being made to clear the vista between the Capitol and the Union Station of all unsightly buildings, would it not be worth while of Washingtonians to urge a suitable marker for the place on North Capitol, which Gen. Washington bought with the intention of making it his town residence.

Those who are identified with the building up of the Capital City deserve to be memorialized in the city's history. It seems a shameful neglect that Thomas Jefferson, who did more than any one else to start the infant Capital, should not have a monument in some of the public places to his memory. It was really his effort that determined that the Capital should be located here, when so many wanted it placed in Philadelphia or New York. He bargained with Alexander Hamilton and pledged Virginia's votes for Hamilton's "State Assumption Bank Plan" if Hamilton would give the votes he controlled in the opposing States for the location of the Capital on the Potomac. It was the first political bargaining in our history. If it had not been for the astute Jefferson, one of the larger cities would probably have become the Capital.

About the shabbiest school building in the city has been named for Jefferson, when it was he who really started the public school system in Washington. He gave over half the money that was raised to start the educational plant in the city. The first public school was built on the land of his brother-in-law, Overton Carr, who also gave money as well as a land concession to start the public schools of the city. Yet the fact has been forgotten.

Let us place monuments for those who worked and gave to their limit for the welfare of the city

Moving Toward Peace.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thanks for your editorial titled "No Entanglements." It strikes the right note. The United States can not, must not be drawn or driven into the League of Nations. We must not entangle ourselves in any way in European affairs, other than to do what we can to induce them to keep the peace. So far the League of Nations has been a joke, failing to accomplish any real good. We have offered to join with the nations of the earth in an agreement that war shall indeed be the last method employed to secure claimed rights. If the nations signing that agreement will abide by it there will never come a time when the world will be involved in such a war as the last.

As to the suggestion of former Secretary of War Baker that we should announce that in any future war we will refuse to sell arms or ammunition, Gen. Washington, while he was President, announced the true rule we should follow in that regard. He said, in effect, that neutrality meant that no privilege be granted one nation and denied to another; in other words, that the United States would treat all nations alike.

The tendency among the people of the earth is toward abhorring war, and the people will sooner or later enforce that policy on the governing power. The time is passing when the governing power can declare war without consulting its people and then force the people to fight. It will soon be so that a government undertaking that policy will cease to exist by the action of the people. S. L. WILLOUGHBY.

If an Actor Inherits a Million, He Keeps on Working for Applause.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA needs something that will save her from the evils of prosperity.

I am not one of those who think poverty a blessing. The only blessed thing about poverty is that it hurts and thus inspires a resolve to get away from it. A bent pin in a chair is the same kind of blessing.

Poverty teaches industry and unselfishness and inspires ambition, but these things can be learned without the assistance of an empty stomach and patched pants. You can teach a boy to swim without throwing him out of the boat.

Poverty is a curse, and a disgrace to civilization. To call it anything else is to fool ourselves by making a virtue of our weakness.

But easy prosperity is a curse, also, and a worse one. It destroys nations and individuals—not merely because it makes them soft, but because it encourages idleness, and idleness makes boredom, and boredom turns to vices for relief.

The idle rich man is just a bum in good clothes.

You may argue that the rich man can develop a hobby and make himself useful, but there's no fun in playing a game if you don't care to win, and work itself is a bore if you don't need the wages.

Yet a prosperous people must be encouraged to work, or it will die of its good fortune.

What to do? Well, the universal ambition of mankind is to "be somebody"—to rank above the crowd. To this end men study and labor, discover continents, make inventions, compose music, lead armies.

And Americans struggle for money instead of writing verse or learning military strategy because the way to "be somebody" in America is to have money.

The solution of our problem, then, becomes obvious. Provide a new way to be somebody.

Let the state establish rewards for merit. Let the people earn social distinction by achievement—by doing good work.

When social rank can be achieved and held by means of useful labor—when the discoverer of a cure for diabetes is received in Washington as Lindbergh was—those who have money enough to justify idleness will find inspiration to labor still, and their lives will be happier and the country safer.

A nation of rich loafers is a nation doomed, but the man with a full purse won't labor if his only reward is a blister.

PRESS COMMENT.

Contentment.

Atlanta Constitution: Contentment is about eight parts laziness.

Poor Mr. Byrd.

Detroit News: According to the Volta school of physical science, Byrd is now flying upside down.

Practical.

Florida Times-Union: Optimistic manufacturers are still adding a cork-screw to "four-in-one" pocket knives.

No, Indeed.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: "The Prohibition Bureau has forbidden the delivery of alcohol in tank wagons." Well, a fellow with such a thirst really should not be given encouragement.

Back to Normalcy.

Louisville Courier Journal: Conditions in Oklahoma seem to have returned to normal since the election. They are resuming the impeachment of another governor where they left off.

The Retiring Executive.

Kansas City Star: It won't be long until the news writers will begin speaking of Mr. Coolidge as the retiring President, although for nearly eight years he has been one of our most retiring executives.

Nineteen White Crosses.

Philadelphia Ledger: Nineteen white crosses will mark the spot near Bellevue, Ohio, where as many lives were lost in the collision of a bus and an electric train in Tuesday's storm. The State of Ohio will put them there as a solemn and unmistakable warning to motorists and bus drivers. Hundreds like them may be seen at grade crossings, embankments, cross-roads and other dangerous spots along Ohio's highways.

Several years ago Gov. Donahey conceived the plan of erecting a white cross wherever an accidental death occurred. Today motorists encounter them everywhere, and few drivers will deny that they are shaken by these silent warnings. They are unforgettable reminders of the heavy toll America is paying for carelessness or speed.

Pep Up the Record.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The Congressional Record in its present form is often a cause of innocent merriment, but to introduce cartoons in that venerable publication, as was proposed in the House, would make it a rival to the famous London Punch. A New York member asked permission to print in the Record a cartoon depicting a Michigan judge sentencing a woman to life imprisonment for 'selling a pint of whisky. Representative Tilson, the floor leader, promptly squelched the suggestion by saying that the printing of cartoons in the official record of the proceedings was "simply not being done." He said he had no objection to the member making his point by a full explanation of the cartoon, but that was as far as he would go.

Yet the suggestion is full of possibilities. One can not help feeling that there are many ways of improving the Congressional Record. It is too serious. A series of comic strips might induce many persons to read it and lead to a big increase in its circulation. A puzzle page would also be in order, and a column of "hints to the lovelorn" would surely be popular. Still another feature that should not be overlooked is a sort of official gazette, such as they have in England to report the acts and movements of the king. That would be one of the means of "covering" the White House, and it would be eagerly looked for by aspirants for public office. These are only a few of the features that come to mind, but they indicate what might be done for the Congressional Record by an enterprising publisher with a competent staff of editors and reporters.

THE WALNUT ROOM presents
The Flat Crepe Frock with the draped scarf neckline
Its graciousness and flattering lines are particularly illustrated in this model. The new draped neckline throws its graceful scarf over one shoulder, and affects a smart cape in back. A clever shirred treatment focuses interest on swathed side lines—and a fashion-new "Bennieblu" shade smartly contrasts with eggshell; $75.
THE WALNUT ROOM THIRD FLOOR.

Agnes and Patou inspire the smart combination of felt and straw

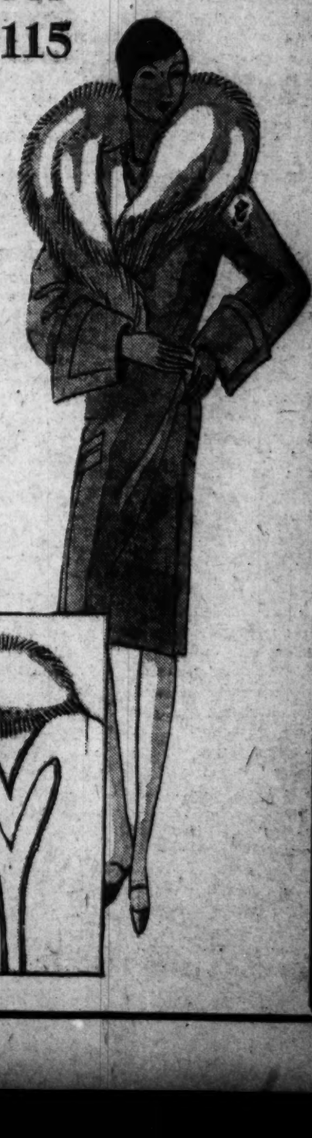
This new group—all smart copies of these two famous designers—features the stunning hat sketched. The brim in a typical French manner surprises one; in front it frames the face in smart linen straw—in back it vanishes entirely, and joins on the crown with a fold of felt; $22.50.
MILLINERY SALON THIRD FLOOR.

Informal Town and Country Shagmoor Coat, $115



Intricate trimmings and particular back interest, and are repeated in their unusual fashion on the cuffs and pockets of this new Shagmoor coat. It is beautifully furred with lynx.

NORTHCOTT TO CALL MOTHER AS WITNESS

Asks That She Be Brought From Prison to Aid Him Fight Death Penalty.

ASKS FOR COUNSEL'S AID

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Gordon Stewart Northcott will present as a witness in his defense for the murder of three boys his mother, who is under life sentence at San Quentin Prison after her confession to complicity in the crimes.

Still cross-examining as his own attorney, Northcott continued his fight today, single-handed, against the death penalty. David Sokol, Los Angeles attorney for whose admittance Northcott petitioned, was given permission to act in an advisory capacity, but not to take part in the court procedure unless Northcott would himself withdraw as counsel. This Northcott said he would not do. Sokol indicated he would remain out of the case unless called back.

The defendant presented motions before the court for obtaining a deposition from Winifred Clark, in Vancouver, and for the return to Riverside of Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, his mother, from the State Prison, where she is serving a life sentence for the murder of Walter Collins. Mrs. Clark is the mother of Sanford and Jessie Clark, important prosecution witnesses.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Earl C. Redwine informed Judge Freeman that the State's case probably would not be completed until some time next week. The court assured Northcott that Mrs. Northcott would be produced without delay when he was ready to call her.

Northcott then asked that he be granted a second continuance over the week-end on the grounds that certain documents pertaining to the trial still were in possession of Norbert Savay, former defense counsel. Judge Freeman denied the motion.

Northcott was in court today for the first time since Tuesday morning, he having been given a continuance to allow hospital treatment for laryngitis and conjunctivitis.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau. Washington, Thursday, Jan. 24—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Rain with rising temperature Friday; Saturday fair and much colder; moderate southeast and south winds, becoming fresh northwest by Friday night.

For Maryland—Rain with rising temperatures, Friday; Saturday partly cloudy and much colder, snow flurries in the mountains; increasing southeast and south winds, becoming fresh to strong northwest Friday night.

For Virginia—Rain with rising temperature Friday; Saturday generally fair and much colder; increasing southeast and south winds, becoming strong northwest by Friday night.

Pressure remains abnormally low from Newfoundland northward to southern Greenland, and southeastward over the ocean to the Azores. Belle Isle, N. F., 29.16 inches. The southwestern disturbance has moved southeastward to southern Texas. Austin, 29.64 inches, and another center is moving northeastward over the middle Mississippi Valley, Cairo, Ill., 29.60 inches. Another disturbance is moving rapidly southeastward with center over British Columbia, Barkerville, 30.48 inches. These disturbances have been attended by precipitation over the greater part of the United States, except California, the southern Plateau region, Florida, and the North Atlantic States. High pressure prevails from the Arctic Ocean southeastward over the British Northwest Territory, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and western Quebec, and thence southward to North Carolina, and from California northeastward to the Dakotas. Fort Simpson, N. W. T., 30.88 inches; Cochrane, Ont., 30.46 inches, and Modena, Utah, 30.38 inches. The temperature has fallen in the Atlantic States, and from Arizona and Utah eastward to northern Texas and the western portions of Arkansas and Missouri, and it has risen from Lake Superior southward to Mississippi and Alabama, and from British Columbia southward to Nevada. The weather continues abnormally cold from the Canadian Northwest Provinces southward to northern Texas and the upper Rio Grande Valley.

There will be general precipitation over the Washington forecast district, except southern Florida, during the next 24 hours. The temperature will rise Friday in the Atlantic States as far south as North Carolina, but much colder weather will overspread the lower Ohio Valley and Tennessee Friday and Friday night, the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region Friday night, and the Atlantic States by or during Saturday. Except for snow flurries in the lower Lake region and the northern Appalachian region, mostly fair weather will prevail Saturday east of the Mississippi River.

Warnings have been issued of a rise in the Ohio River at Shawneetown, Ill., to about the flood stage of 35 feet by January 28 or 29.

THIEF CLUBS WOMAN TO DEATH IN STREET

Chicago Clerk Robbed Only Block From Home; Her Assailant Seen.

TEACHER VIEWS TRAGEDY

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Miss Laura Buchholz, 56 years old, a clerk, was clubbed to death and robbed a block from her home on West 123d street as she was returning from work last night. Her slayer escaped.

The only witness was Mrs. Grace Hanley, a school teacher, who said she heard a girl's scream and looked from her window in time to see "a man in a dark overcoat" dragging a woman's body across the street. Apparently frightened by the sound of the window Mrs Hanley raised, the slayer released his hold on the body and fled.

Physicians found Miss Buchholz had been struck twice on the head. Her clothing was not torn and there were no other wounds.

Miss Buchholz's empty purse, was found about 200 feet from the place where she was attacked. Her hat was lying near the purse.

Detective bureau squad later today went to Blue Island to search for a man described by George Morton, railroad night watchman, near the scene of the killing. Morton said about half an hour after the attack, a man came into the watchman's shack and asked to be allowed to wash his hands.

Mothers—Try Mild Children's Musterole

Of course, you know good old Musterole, how quickly, how easily it relieves chest colds, sore throat, rheumatic and neuralgic pain, sore joints and muscles, stiff neck and lumbago.

We also want you to know CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE—Musterole in milder form. Unexcelled for relief of croupy coughs and colds; it penetrates, soothes and relieves without the blister of the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Keep a jar handy. It comes ready to apply instantly, without fuss or bother.

AUTO SHOW NEAR, AUDITORIUM HUMS

Exhibition Cars Will Begin Rolling In Today for Formal Opening Tomorrow.

DECORATORS NEAR DONE

A seemingly unending stream of motor cars of nearly every make and a wide variety of type will begin rolling into the Washington Auditorium today as one of the final steps preparatory to the start of the ninth annual automobile show which will be formally opened tomorrow evening. Decorators and carpenters are rapidly completing their task of beautifying the immense exposition halls and preparing spaces allotted to the exhibits and individual dealers are hard at work providing settings which will display their entries to the best advantage. One of their chief goals is to place the cars in such a manner that all of the thousands who will pass through the building before the show closes a week from tomorrow will have an opportunity for complete and easy inspection of the various models of the motor car of 1929.

"Today the auditorium will present a scene of exceptional activities on both the auditorium and exhibition hall floors," declares Rudolph Jose, chairman of the show committee and director of the exposition. "Artists and artisans will be putting the finishing touches on booths and the decorative backgrounds. Dealers and members of their staffs will be getting cars settled into the places they will occupy during the week of the exposition. Lighting effects will be tested and corrected as needed to eliminate shadows. The musical director will be present to arrange all details necessary in connection with the show committee's plan to have music on both floors of the auditorium through the week of the show."

The scope and purpose of the ninth Washington show will be explained over radio stations WRC and WMAL this evening by Edward M. Wallace, president of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, and Director Jose. The speakers will detail the plans which have been made to render the show the most representative in the history of these expositions, which are sponsored by the association, and explain points of special interest regarding the exhibits that will be placed on view. Mr. Wallace will go on the air over WRC at 7:45 o'clock, while Mr. Jose's talk is scheduled for 6 o'clock over WMAL.

Additions to the list of education displays are announced. These exhibits will include a wide variety of motors in actual operation, cutaway chassis, brake and transmission systems, lubricating methods and so on.

Serving with Mr. Jose on the show committee are J. E. Dugan, Raphael Semmes and Frank P. Stewart.

Cashier, 65, Given Ten Years, Fined $20,000

Mount Holly, N. J., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Edward B. Reeve, former cashier of the Burlington County National Bank, of Medford, N. J., was today sentenced to ten years imprisonment and fined $20,000 for embezzling $168,000 from the bank. Reeve, a broken figure of 65 years, wept as he was sentenced.

There were 60 indictments for forgery against the former cashier. He pleaded non vult and, taking this into consideration, the court sentenced him on ten of the indictments and suspended sentence on the other 50.

Third Fugitive Caught Near Sing Sing Walls

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—George Price, the last of three prisoners who escaped from Sing Sing Prison Tuesday night, was caught this morning, about a mile from the prison walls. The others were apprehended yesterday.

Price, sauntering down the road along the border of the Frank E. Vanderlip estate, walked into the arms of two prison guards. He had nothing to eat during his 30 hours of liberty. Price was serving from 20 years to life for second degree murder.

Bethlehem Steel Resumes Dividends

First Quarterly Payment Is Declared After Lapse of Five Years.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Dividends on the common stock of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation were resumed today after a lapse of five years. Directors declared a $1 payment for the first quarter of 1929 on May 15 to stockholders of record April 19.

The company closed the most sucessful quarter in its history under the present set up on December 21, Eugene G. Grace, president, said in forcasting greater prosperity for the concern and higher prices for its products in the coming months.

Net income for the fourth quarter of 1928 totaled $6,399,348, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.58 a common share, a new record. This compares with net income of $4,272,528 or $1.43 a share in the third quarter of 1928 and $2,371,371 or 37 cents a share in the fourth quarter of 1927.

Cash and liquid securities held by the company increased last year to $57,698,744 from $47,796,249 on December 31, 1927.

Bethlehem has just completed its huge expansion and rebuilding program into which the greater share of its profits has been poured in the past few years.

Girl's Slayer Takes Body to His Room

Garage Employe Ended Life Beside Victim, Assert Los Angeles Police.

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The mystery surrounding the shooting to death of Andrew L. Davis, 38, a garage employe, and Miss Nell Baer, 24, whose bodies were found in Davis' quarters in a rooming house here, today was believed to have been solved with the announcement of police investigators that it was a case of murder and suicide.

When the bodies were found yesterday it was suspected that the woman might have been slain by a third person. Davis had died from a wound made by a large caliber pistol. A heavy automatic with one empty shell was found at his side.

Police later found Davis' automobile, which they said bore bullet holes, indicating that he had killed the girl in the car and had taken the body to his room.

A note making vague references about his estranged wife, Mrs. Jean Davis, being responsible for the death of the girl, was found. Police questioned Mrs. Davis, but released her immediately when she told them she had separated from her husband a year ago, that a divorce case was pending, and that she had known nothing of Davis' recent affairs.

Auto Show Talks Upon Air Tonight

Four Solo Artists Will Be Featured at 10 P. M. Damrosch This Morning. Gen. Ireland Will Speak on Health at 7:15 P. M.

The Washington Auto Show will be discussed for the benefit of the radio audience over stations WMAL and WRC the early part of this evening. The first named will transmit a talk at 6 o'clock, "On the Eve of the Auto Show," by Rudolph Jose, director of Washington's 1929 Auto Show. Station WRC will present Edward M. Wallace, President of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, on the same subject at 7:45 o'clock.

Henry Burr, noted tenor, will be the guest soloist of the Cities Service Hour, at 8 o'clock this evening, through station WRC. Mr. Burr's selections will be "The Whole World Is Waiting for Dreams to Come True" and Del Riego's "Homing."

The program will open with the theme tune of the hour, "Cities Service March," and the other orchestral numbers will include the prelude to the third act of "Carmen," Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours," from "La Gioconda," and Poldini's "March Mignonne."

The Cavaliers will be heard in "Down by the Old Mill Stream" and "Lampin' the West," while the quartet and orchestra will bring the hour to a close with "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen."

Four solo artists, representing as many types of entertainment, will be featured with the National Concert Orchestra in the weekly National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau Hour at 10 o'clock tonight. Mme. Ludmella Feodorovna, dramatic soprano; William Rainey, tenor; Bernard Osko, violinist, and Mary Hopple, contralto, are the guest stars of the hour.

The Slumber Music program, which immediately follows the concert hour, follows:

"Marche Militaire" and Reverie from "Suite Algerienne," Saint-Saens; selection from "Girofle Girofla," Lecocq; a 'cello solo by Oswald Mazzucchi; "Girls of Baden," Komzak; Larghetto from "Symphony No. 2," Beethoven; "Nocturne," Mendelssohn; and "Solveig's Song," Grieg.

Dr. Walter Damrosch and his symphony orchestra will be heard in the latter part of the RCA Educational Hour at 11:30 o'clock this morning from WRC. The trumpet and horn will be the featured instruments in such selections as the overture to "The Flying Dutchman," Wagner; excerpt from Andante of "Fifth Symphony," Beethoven; and march from "Tannhauser," Wagner.

Capt. Taylor Branson will conduct the United States Marine Band in an hour's concert through Station WRC at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The United Choral Singers will be one of the main attractions from station WMAL at 10:03 o'clock this evening. A winter's night program has been prepared, opening with "The Viking and the North Wind," and continues with "Snow Legend," "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind," "The Wind Blows Cold," "When Icicles Hang by the Wall," and "Winter."

Ann Lang, blues singer, will again be featured with the Thirty Minute Men at 10:30 o'clock from station WMAL. She will sing "The Song I Love" and "Doing the Raccoon." Miss Lang will also be on the air earlier in the evening in the "Then and Now" period. At that time she will sing "Me and the Man in the Moon," "I'll Never Ask for More," and "Old Man Sunshine."

The Honolulans will be featured from the studios of WMAL at 7:35 o'clock.

Station WJSV will broadcast many of its regular Friday night features, beginning at 7 o'clock and including Old King Tut, Clarence Walker, tenor; Emil Jolson, tenor; the Hawaiian Melody Boys, and Bill Thompson and his champion fiddlers.

WOL will sign off early today, its evening features being dinner music, the mirth and melody presentation, and "Amos 'n' Andy" at 7:11 o'clock.

A new feature will be broadcast from station WJZ and a network at 7:15 o'clock tonight, known as a public health forum of the air. Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, Surgeon General of the Army, will be the speaker.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JANUARY 25.

ONE of the noted women educators of the West Coast, Caroline Seely Cummins, was born this day, 1888, in New York City.

Since 1921 Miss Cummins has been the headmistress of Bishop's School, LaJolla, Calif. Prior to that time she was teacher of English and Latin at the school.

After taking her master's degree at Vassar College in 1911 Miss Cummins became a teacher of Greek and Latin at the Cambridge School for Girls.

During the years 1918 and 1919 she was a field executive for the Young Women's Christian Association.

She is a member of the Pacific Coast Headmistresses Association and of Phi Beta Kappa, the honorary scholastic fraternity.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SUSPENDERS.

One pair of suspenders was all he owned
And day by day through the year he groaned:
"Oh, for suspenders enough to wear!
Too long I've done with a single pair.
Give me suspenders, I beg of you,
I care not whether they're red or blue
Or green or black or embroidered stuff,
I want suspenders, and want enough.
Lucky the man to whom fortune grants
A pair for each separate pair of pants."
Christmas came and his thanks to win
His friends and relatives brought them in.
Suspenders, satin and linen and silk,
Suspender, white as the whitest milk,
Suspenders, yellow and red and blue,
Dress suspenders, initialed, too:
Purple, ochre and sepia shades,
Fancy, medium and common grades,
Rubber and canvas and frail and strong
Fell like rain on him all day long.
It seems that his cousins and uncles and aunts
Remembered each separate pair of pants
Suspenders from England, suspenders from Spain
Fell on him all day long like rain.
He piled them high and he piled them wide,
But still came more he must take inside,
And he groaned at night and he said:
"I've h... enough for a troop to wear,
And I wish to heaven that these folks had known
Two pairs of trousers are all I own!"

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

They Look Forward to Marriage.

Here is the question: Do any girls today really look forward to marriage as an end in itself, or do they accept it as a means to some really desired end? How would you answer that question? Several readers declared it ridiculous for any one even to ask such a question, and declared that of course no intelligent girl today looked forward to anything so utterly inconsequential as marriage! Now the girl's step forward to it, and how!

"Do we look forward to marriage? I'll say we do, and just as eagerly as any women ever did. From the time I was 16 years old I have been planning how, when and why I will marry. I know the sort of man I want, how many children I want, where I will live, how the house will be furnished and how it will be run. I am now 22 and have had three sweethearts and two proposals. But the man of my dreams has not yet appeared. When he does, job, good time and everything else will be forgotten. I want to be married—but only to the man of my dreams."

And Beth assures us that marriage to her is woman's only chance for happiness in life. Beth has a career, but is looking forward eagerly to domestic joys. Her letter seems to express well-balanced modern girlhood's ideas of life, and to answer satisfactorily our question.

She writes:

"Do girls look forward to marriage? Indeed they do! If not in their early teens, then certainly later on. I am a professional dancer, quite a success, with still more success in the future, but I have begun to realize that none of the success a woman gains alone can compare with the complete sense of real accomplishment that comes to the wife and mother in the home. I meet many men, admire many, and thus far have loved none. I have, however, a very definite idea of what my husband must an I must not be. I may never meet him, but somehow I feel that I will and am quite content to wait until I recognize him.

"So you see, I am at heart just the same as my grandmother, who could never have been allowed to dance her way to fame and fortune. However, she was just as well off, for much as I enjoy my life I know that the only success in life for woman is found in love, marriage and the home.

"BETTY."

And so we ask: Would you answer as Betty has? Do you look forward to marriage or do you regard it as a last resource, when all else fails? And do you consider it the only real success a woman can find in life?

Silver-Framed Clock.

A clock, which will be a welcome addition to any room, is very large and square, and is inclosed in a frame of silver. The numerals are extremely large so that the time may be seen at a glance.

The 19th Hole.

A pail of crystal has handles, trimmings and ice tongs of silver. Upon the crystal of the pail is etched a delightful scene, which includes a clubhouse and part of the golf course, and the words, "19th hole."

Backless Bathing Suit.

A bathing suit, which is sure to be a favorite upon Southern beaches has smart little shorts and a top of contrasting color that is cut in a deep U in the back. Bias folds of the material form the trimming and end in smart little bows, which are stitched down.

The "Gobs" Cap.

Modeled after the cap worn by sailors is a smart little colored affair designed to wear with the new bathing suits, which have a slightly nautical look.

The Bag Ensemble.

An unusual ensemble consists of a narrow belt, scarf and bag, all covered with black "tie" silk with small white flowers upon it.

Repairs Cut Station Off Air 6 Hours

WRC Forced to Cancel Program to Install New Transmitter Parts; Voices of Past Will Be Heard Wednesday.

Station WRC found it necesary to cancel the programs arranged for yesterday afternoon in order to complete the installation of new parts in the transmitter. The station was silent six hours. The work was started last Tuesday when the station closed down for about five hours because of S O S calls in connection with the distress of the Italian freighter Florida and the American freighter Dannedalke, both off the Capes of Virginia.

This was the second longest period the station has ever been off the air on account of a distress signal, the longest being when the Vestris was in trouble, nevertheless it didn't provide time to finish the work begun. It was thought this work might be completed in the early morning hours but a point was reached yesterday where broadcasting was no longer advisable until the work was finished.

Usually advance notice is given when the station is closed for repair work but since station engineers themselves did not know until a few minutes before it signed off, this was not possible yesterday.

The voice of Dr. Charles Steinmetz, traced on photographic film a few months before he died, will be reproduced by WGY next Wednesday night, at 8 o'clock, and radio listeners will have an opportunity to hear the peculiar, broken speech of the genius, best remembered by the public as "the electrical wizard." On the same evening WGY will transmit a film address by Calvin Coolidge, recorded while Mr. Coolidge was Vice President. The address of President Coolidge was broadcast by WGY Christmas Eve, in 1922, but the talk by Dr. Steinmetz recorded for reproduction at the midwinter meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers never had a public audition, and WGY will now offer it for the first time.

Sound recording on film, in its early phases, was carried on in the general engineering laboratory of the General Electric by C. A. Hoxie, and in December, 1922, his work had progressed to the extent that he brought his laboratory equipment—a combined recorder and reproducer—to Washington.

Vice President Coolidge became interested in Mr. Hoxie's work and consented to give a short talk. This record proved so successful that it was broadcast by WGY, and the message was heard in every State in the Union. Among others whose words were recorded and are now preserved in the library of film records were the late John W. Weeks, then Secretary of War, and Miss Mabel Boardman, of the National Red Cross.

The recorded words of President Coolidge are said to be as fitting today as they were when first spoken. Dr. Steinmetz's talk in a few words outlines the influence on civilization of the declaration of the rights of man by the French Revolution and of the invention of the steam engine, and then indicate how, in the present generation, materials are at hand in electricity, its transmission, distribution and supply, to develop the most perfect civilization known to the world.

Few persons listening to the broadcasting of President Coolidge's budget speech next Monday night, which will be among his last speeches over the air as President, will probably realize that it will be heard in midafternoon in San Francisco.

Notwithstanding this, special preparations are being made for its reception there through Station KFI, and large crowds are expected to gather about the loud speakers in schools and other places there, according to advices from California. The speech will be carried to the Pacific Coast by a special network and the voice of the President, speaking here at 7:45 o'clock in the evening, will be heard in San Francisco at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon.

A novel offer is made by E. L. Rice, living in the Riverside Apartments, telephone Franklin 969. All persons calling him up will be allowed to listen via telephone and without cost to the program of any station that is on the air.

Although no special mechanical devices are used by Mr. Rice in transmitting the programs over the telephone there are certain phases of the idea of this manner of demonstrating the radio sets which he sells that he is endeavoring to copyright.

The Cleveland Symphony Orchestra goes on the air for the first time Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock as a network feature.

A Tschaikowsky overture, "1812," the finale from Stravinsky's ballet suite, "The Fire Bird," and the prelude to act three of "Lohengrin," by Wagner, are three outstanding selections in the program. It will be heard through Stations WJZ, New York City; WBZ, Springfield; WBAL, Baltimore, and WHAM, Rochester.

Wenck, Sculptor, Falls Dead.

Berlin, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Prof. Ernst G. A. Wenck, a leader among modern sculptors, fell dead today at a social affair. He was 64 years of age. Many of his works are mounted in the Berlin National Gallery and in public squares of this city. He gained prizes at the world expositions in Chicago and St. Louis.

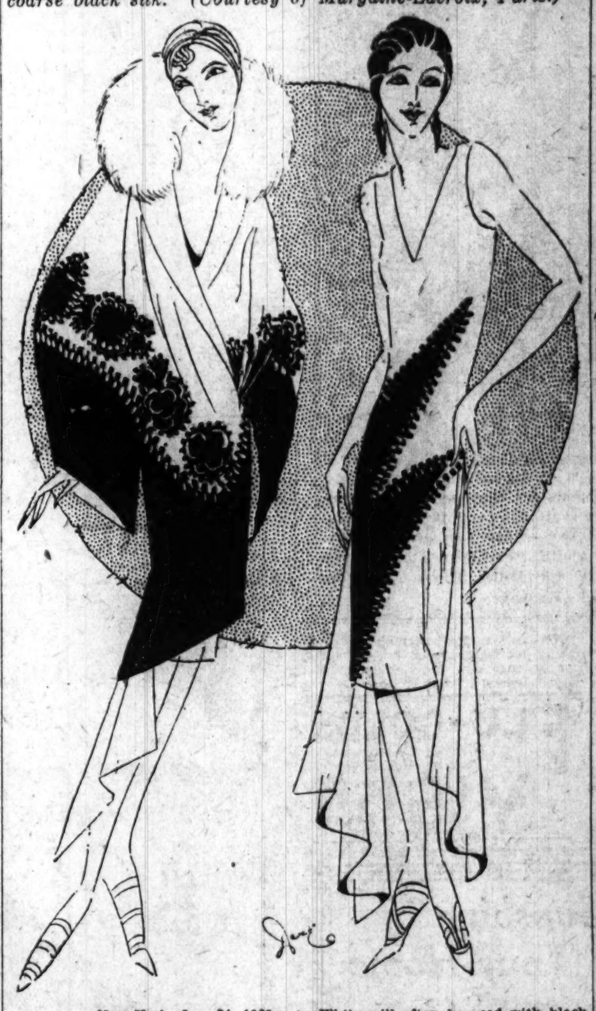
Jane Interprets the Mode

The ever popular and ever chic black and white color scheme is strikingly carried out in this evening ensemble of velvet. The black and white are joined with stitching in coarse black silk. (Courtesy of Margaine-Lacroix, Paris.)



New York, Jan. 24, 1929.

BOWS, bows, and more bows; but oh, very elegant bows, very distinguished bows, altogether intriguing bows, which are different from the larger, languid, and languishing bows of the past—as everything else is now different.

Little tailored bows, for instance, are often used in place of buttons—they actually, or seemingly, pop through buttonholes. Bows finish the front of a collar; a tiny row of flat bows, all arpund a dress at the waist, make a belt, and tiny bows edge Lanvin's famous tulle ruffles.

And encrusted bows, particuarly those seen on satin frocks and made with the same material used in different direction.

Your Lingerie Box.

Hast ever seen all-lace coulottes? O-o-oh, neither had we until we thought of the idea and went to work and made some, and then we had to make a vest to match, adding chiffon and satin ribbon for various reasons—'N' 'en' we had to make an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make this adorable evening set and two more sets of an entirely different type.

A stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring you the leaflet. What lovely lady doesn't want new under-pretties all the time!

Coin de Couleur.

White is extremely important for the coming season, but it is always enlivened by a bright color, either in the garment or in the accessories.

White will often be used with black in such a way that it is more accurate to describe it as white and black, rather than black and white. This white, by the way, is a very intense white, which contrasts gleamingly with the black. And this year it is smart to wear colorful accessories and jewels with white and black, instead of the usual pearls or jet.

Black and white, always expressive, are used delightfully in this evening ensemble from Margaine-Lacroix. The black velvet is attached to the white velvet with big stitches of thick black thread. And black velvet flowers are appliqued onto the white evening coat with the same stitches, very effectively indeed.

If you are a Spanish type of beauty, or wish you were, you will find many gowns which will contribute to your mood. Yvonne Davidson, Bernard et Cie, Redfern—all show delightful evening gows of Argentine influence.

And do remember that you do not have to be black haired and eyed in order to be this type!

A new type of transparent velvet, called broadtail transparent velvet, is going to be used extensively for spring and summer. Because of its pliancy and its nonheat conducting qualities, transparent velvet insists upon retaining its favor.

Mme. Dare's Weekly Fashion Letter appears exclusively in Washington in The Sunday Post. Make a point to read it. Au revoir!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

INFLUENZA AND CONTAGION.

THAT influenza is caused by some form of microbe can not be questioned. In a certain sense it is contagious. That we can accept, provided we use the word contagious in a loose and broad sense. These general statements we can accept. But when we go beyond generalities and into details we are adrift.

It appeared that the wave was in Panama somewhat earlier than it developed in Southern California. A boy came from Panama in December. Neither he nor any member of his family had had the disease in Panama. He first encountered landsmen at quarantine on Tuesday night. Wednesday he was in New Orleans. The epidemic was just starting there. On Thursday he had influenza. If the disease has a four-day incubation period he contracted it at sea. The ship's crew had not recently been in any infected port. If the other cases in the household where he was were secondary to his case they supplied considerable proof of the four-day incubation period.

The writer was so situated that he saw the epidemic develop first in a large city and then in some smaller towns and rural districts. It seems always to appear first in the large cities, but when it comes to the rural districts and the smaller towns it appears to develop simultaneously. It appeared rather suddenly. One day the physician reported no undue prevalence of colds. The next day they were too busy to answer questions.

Ordinary quarantine within the household was wholly ineffective. Those who kept out of the sick rooms and avoided the sick were sick in about the same proportions as those who went in and out of sick rooms.

Sir George Newman said of the epidemic of 1918 that it fell with equal force on the just and unjust (sanitarily speaking). There was a good deal of schoo closing on account of the epidemic, but there was no evidence that doing so either spread the disease or stopped it from spreading.

Some places shut up the churches as well as other meeting places. There is no evidence that this measure accomplished anything in the way of controlling the disease.

The immune seemed to escape and the susceptible to catch it, regardless of whatever was done or said.

REMEDY FOR RINGWORM.

A. L. R. writes: May I draw attention to a homemade remedy for ringworm?

It consists of a paste made of unsalted butter and snuff. Work in as much of the snuff as the butter will absorb and remain a paste, and apply to the affected regions (hairy or nonhairy). Leave on for 12 hours and then wash with soap and water. Expose to the air for 12 hours and repeat. Two or three applications should cure.

REPLY:

Nicotine is a standard substance for killing insects on plants. It may prove efficient against the parasite of ringworm.

SYMPTOMS OF GALLSTONES.

A. B. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of gallstones?

2. Are they cured without operation?

REPLY.

1. Among the symptoms are pain under the ribs on the right side, indigestion, acidity of the stomach, and jaundice.

2. No. But they often cease troubling, which is nearly as good as a cure.

Junks of the Yangtze.

IN China is a mighty river known as the "Yangtze." We may translate that name to mean "the Yank Kingdom River."

The Yangtze is the home of a colorful life, and is one of the great paths of commerce in China. The Chinese do not have many railroads, so they use their rivers more than we do to carry goods from place to place.

A Chinese "junk."

The common river boats of China are the "junks." Boats of the kind have been used for thousands of years. They have sails, but keels are either very small or are absent altogether. This makes it possible to pass shallow places in the river, but the sailors must be careful so that their craft will not tip over.

In addition to the sails, some junks have water wheels which are worked by treadmills. Men run on the treadmills and keep them going. How would you like such a job? I am sure that Chinese "coolies" do not enjoy treadmill work, but they must earn money in some way, or else starve.

Many boats on the Yangtze are painted with "eyes" in the front. As one Chinese explained, "No got eyes, no can see."

On the river are hay boats, rice boats, peddlers' boats and gilded war junks.

During the Feast of the Dragons junks in many colors pass along the river, carrying paper lanterns. People along the shore burn incense and light firecrackers. Children in blue cotton gowns launch paper boats in the evening, each one carrying a lighted candle.

The Yangtze is a dangerous river, for it has eddies and whirlpools. A person who falls overboard from a junk is seldom saved.

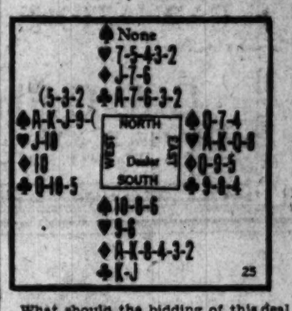
WORK ON BRIDGE

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CONTRACT BRIDGE.

THE QUESTIONS.



What should the bidding of this deal be as Auction and Contract?

What should the play be to the first four tricks?

THE BIDDING.

At Auction: South one Diamond, West one Spade, North two Diamonds, East two Spades, South three Diamonds, West three Spades, North four Diamonds, East four Spades, all pass.

At Contract: South one Diamond, West two Spades, North three Diamonds, East four Spades, all pass.

THE PLAY.

Trick 1. North, Jack of Diamonds; East, the Five; South, the King, and West, the Ten.

Trick 2. South, the King of Clubs; West, the Five; North, the Seven, and East, the Four.

Trick 3. South, Jack of Clubs; West, the Queen; North, the Ace, and East, the Eight.

Trick 4. North leads another Club which South ruffs and saves game. East does not cover North's Jack of Diamonds at trick 1 because that would put the lead in the South hand which would be apt to lead a Club up to East's weakness; it is most desirable from Declarer's standpoint that the Diamond be continued as Closed Hand can ruff the second round and later can discard two Clubs on Dummy's good Hearts and make game.

South, however, should not permit his partner's Jack of Diamonds to win. He can be sure from the bidding that North had three Diamonds and consequently that West had only one. North has raised and consequently must have something in Clubs, so South's best chance to save game is to win the first Diamond and lead Clubs.

Librarian to Replace Mt. Pleasant Speaker

Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Washington Public Library, will speak on "Modern Biography," tonight at 8 o'clock at the auditorium of the Mount Pleasant branch library, Sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest.

He will replace Miss Alice Hutchins Drake, radio speaker, whose talk on "Recent Poetry" has been canceled because of her illness with influenza.

Scottish Clubs Will Honor Memory of Burns

The 170th anniversary of Robert Burns, Scottish poet, will be celebrated tonight by Scottish-American organizations of Washington in a meeting at the City Club. Recitation of Burns' poems, Scottish songs, bagpipe music and folk dances will feature the evening.

The celebration is being given by Clan MacLennan, Order of Scottish Clans; Lady MacLennan Lodge, Daughters of Scotia; the St. Andrews Society of Washington, the Caledonian Club and the Clan Gregor Society. John Gunn is chairman of the committee in charge.

What Today Means to You

JANUARY 25

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 25 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you today are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:15 p. m., from 3:45 p. m. to 4:45 p. m., and from 8:45 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:45 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:15 p. m.

The planetary aspects advise action today. What you have planned and carefully considered, do, leaving doubts and hesitation behind you. "Look before you leap if you like, but if you mean leaping, don't look long," and in this adage may be centered the characteristics of the prevalent influences.

The child born today will be extremely morbid and glum during childhood days. This may probably be traced to prenatal influences, and will be ever present in its subconscious being. The parents should exercise great care in its upbringing, as the slightest harshness will leave an indelible mark on its character and life in later ears.

Strive to be a leader, for nature has fitted you for such a position. You have all the requisites of a born leader—good judgment, kindness, perseverance, vision and thoro- hness. Though you have a hard struggle to attain a position where these traits can be brought to bear advantageously for you as well as for others' good, you should never despair, and you should strive continually to advance. You are inclined to be rather pessimistic at times and should belittle this characteristic as much as possible.

Try to surround yourself with congenial friends, for it is only thus that you will find any degree of happiness. You are rather prone to surrender occasionally to those two malign influences, anger and jealousy, and once under their spell your opinions and judgments are prejudiced. You should try to avoid that to which every leader is subject, arrogance and the sense of all-importance. Bear in mind the saying, "I have never yet come across a person really far above the average who ever became too big for his boots or his Bible."

Your family life will be happy and your home a haven of peace at all times. Your mate will love you sincerely.

BOOTH'S INJUNCTION IS UP IN COURT TODAY

Rival Forces Form for Legal Battle to Control Salvation Army Direction.

COUNCIL WILL SEEK TRIAL

London, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The legal battle which will open in the high court of chancery tomorrow between Bramwell Booth and the high council of the Salvation Army will determine, first, whether the injunction which the deposed general obtained last week to prevent election of his successor shall remain in force. If the injunction is not dissolved, it was understood that the high council would take steps for a speedy trial of the case on its merits.

An authority close to the council said that two affidavits were filed with the court today. One was by the seven defendant commissioners, who signed the requisition for the meeting of the council. This affidavit was designed to justify that action.

The second affidavit was signed by 53 councilors, who voted to depose Bramwell Booth as commander. It affirmed their belief that the general was given fair treatment and that he was properly adjudicated unfit to continue in office.

An attorney told the Associated Press today that should Bramwell Booth succeed tomorrow in retaining the injunction, he would be in the peculiar position of having made the 1904 deed poll of the army invalid in England while maintaining its validity elsewhere throughout the world, including the British colonies. This view was based on the fact that the petition for the injunction attacked the 1904 deed, yet the effect of the restraining order would be to confirm Bramwell Booth as trustee of army property under that deed.

Should the case go to trial on its merits, the high council would follow three main lines of argument. They would first maintain the validity of the 1904 deed poll. Next they would emphasize that the adjudication of the general was fair and in accord with organization principles and laws. The third argument would be that Bramwell Booth as a trustee must accede to the appeal of the beneficiaries of his trust—viz the Salvation Army—that he divest himself of the properties of which he now is sole proprietor.

What the Elementary Schools of Washington Are Doing Educationally

A Series of Brief Articles Prepared Under the Direction of Superintendent Frank W. Ballou.

V—GEOGRAPHY.

Aims and Purposes.

In Washington, D. C., the teaching of geography aims to create a deep and lasting interest in the subject which will contribute to a rich and cultural background for the individual. Its purpose is to acquaint the pupil with the earth in its various relations with man as an individual and as a social factor. Instruction in geography aims to build a better citizenship through an appreciation of the interrelation and interdependence of mankind. It considers it essential that a sympathetic understanding of people in other localities and in other countries be developed to the end that world peace and human brotherhood may be promoted.

Methods of Instruction.

The teaching of geography begins in the third grade. Children in the first and second grades, however, acquire some knowledge incidentally from their observations, such as noting changes in weather and in seasons. As an outgrowth of their experiences they gain simple ideas of directions. In the third grade pupils make and study maps. This study is oriented by their making maps of things they see in their own neighborhood and in their school. In the fourth grade, where a study of river systems is made, children get concepts of real geographic value by going to Haines Point for direct observation and study of the Potomac River. Again, in the sixth grade, when pupils are studying South America, excursions to the Pan-American Building give them first-hand experiences from their own environment that are instructive and broadening. Such contacts vitalize the teaching of geography.

There is a growing tendency to emphasize teaching the pupils to reason through geography material rather than to stress the memorization of certain facts. They are stimulated to propose questions and problems and to collect data from many texts, references, maps, globes, etc. As a result the conclusions they reach are valid and the children are growing in the power to think clearly. The work is carried on in the form of readings and activities, while study habits appropriate to the subject and to the grade are developed.

Time.

Definite periods are allotted to teaching of geography, but there is necessarily much overlapping as geography comes in as a part of the school excursion, of history, of civics, of English, etc. The time varies according to the type of class, to the needs of the individual, and to the subject matter for each grade. The teacher determines such adjustment of the time schedule.

Results.

As a result of this type of work the children develop the power to use facts in understanding and interpreting geographical conditions which influence life in their own and other regions of the world. They begin to realize the interrelation and interdependence of peoples all over the world which is essential in the development of a higher citizenship. An interest is created which stimulates the children to a greater enjoyment and appreciation of the subject.

Committee Approves Bill to Retire Judges

(Associated Press.)

A bill designed to retire Federal judges at 70 years with pay as junior judges still qualified to sit in cases if they wish, or as the press of business demands, was approved yesterday by the Senate judiciary committee.

Under the present arrangement, judges are not required to surrender their duties to a successor at the retirement age unless they elect to do so.

CAR MERGER REPORT IS EXPECTED TODAY

Senate District Committee Is Likely to Favor Plan in Present State.

FILIBUSTER DANGER SEEN

The Senate District committee will meet this morning, and probably will report out the new resolution authorizing a merger of the local street car companies.

From present indications, only one thing can block adoption of the resolution in the Senate itself—a filibuster. And with Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, smarting under the rejection of his amendment to the measure, a filibuster is far from being remote.

The resolution that is to be taken up by the full committee today bears the stamp of approval of the special subcommittee that has been studying the merger question. So far as is known, it also has the approval of the traction companies.

In approving the resolution the other day, the subcommittee took no action on the Blaine amendment to lay down a new valuation rule for the utilities here, but passed it on to the full committee without prejudice.

In view of the telegram received yesterday by Chairman Capper from Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, it seems almost certain that the full committee will reject the Blaine amendment before reporting out the resolution.

Dr. Maltbie, a New York utilities expert, who made a study of the merger for the Senate, was asked by Senator Capper what he thought of the Blaine amendment and whether it ought to be grafted onto the resolution. In reply, Maltbie said:

"Valuation would not be completed for over one year, and code would be amended at any time before commission acted. Hence I see no reason why merger should not be authorized now and code amended separately at any time. Code no part of contract."

In other words, Maltbie thinks that the resolution should be put through as soon as possible and the Blaine measure be enacted later as an amendment to that part of the District code which has to do with public utilities.

PRINCE IS TO MARRY $3,000,000 WIDOW

Mrs. Burchard Announces Engagement to Henry of Reuss, Former Diplomat.

MEETING ON NILE IS NEAR

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Alene Tew Burchard, wealthy widow, of New York and Paris, is to marry Prince Henry VIII of Reuss, a member of one of Europe's oldest reigning houses.

Mrs. Burchard inherited an estate of $3,000,000 on the death of her husband, Anson Wood Burchard, vice chairman of the General Electric Co., in 1927. She is now in Egypt and has chartered a houseboat on which she will be hostess to the prince and five friends on an extended cruise of the Nile. Announcement of the engagement was cabled to friends.

The marriage will be Mrs. Burchard's third. She is a daughter of Charles H. Tew, of Jamestown, N. Y., and was first married to Theodore Hostetter, of Pittsburgh, who died. She had two children by her first marriage, Mrs. Glenn Stewart, who died several years ago, and Theodore Hostetter, an aviator, who died during the World War.

Since the death of Mr. Burchard she has spent much of her time abroad, maintaining a home in Paris and making regular pilgrimages to the grave of her son at Masnieres. In 1927 she dedicated a monument to him and opened a school building which she presented to the town as a memorial.

Prince Henry is a son of Prince Henry VII and the Princess Marie Alexandrine of Saxe-Weimar, Duchess of Saxe, both of whom were close friends of Bismarck. He had a notable war record, was seriously wounded and later entered the diplomatic service, being attached to the German embassies in France, Japan and Austria. He was married in 1913 to Princess Victoria Marguerite of Hohenzollern, whose father was a cousin of Emperor William II. She died in 1923, leaving two children.

The house of Reuss until the revolution of 1918 ruled for many centuries over two principalities near the Polish border.

Airplanes Fail to Find Fisherman on Ice Floe

Petoskey, Mich., Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Three planes, circling over the gray waters and ice floes of Lake Michigan, had found no trace today of Louis Sweet, Alanson fishing guide, who is believed to be adrift on a huge ice field.

Sweet was fishing Tuesday with two friends, Chester Lee, of Petoskey, and Walter Scott, of Alanson, on an ice formation off Crane Island, when a blizzard arose, sweeping the ice field into the open lake. Lee and Scott escaped to the mainland, but Sweet, who remained to "land one more trout," was carried along on the floes.

To produce furniture of individual character and intimate charm, W. & J. Sloane announced the founding of two factories—one to reproduce the fine furniture of past periods, the other to recreate early American and other popular furniture forms. ¶ The response to the artistic work of our Company of Master Craftsmen in Flushing, and the Oneidacraft Company at Oneida, N. Y., has been great, and we express our sincere appreciation. ¶ On our floors the furniture of these two great factories of our own can be seen. The beauty of the construction and the grace of the design are evident. And by eliminating 'in between' profits we have reached the very reasonable prices that everything carries.

WE SUGGEST INSPECTING THIS UNUSUAL FURNITURE—AND THE EQUALLY UNUSUAL VALUES.

LATE SELLING WAVE FOLLOWS RECOVERY

Metal and Mining Shares Stage Closing Rally; Trading Slows Up.

CALL MONEY 6 PER CENT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 24.—Sharply reactionary before midday, stocks made a partial recovery in the afternoon dealings on the New York Stock Exchange today, bringing many of them to levels well above their lows for the day. At the finish losses extending to 14 points outnumbered gains by about 3 to 1. Activity abated markedly during the heavy selling periods of the day, the total turnover being approximately 4,200,000 shares.

Buying spurts in individual issues carried about a score of them into new high price territory for the year or longer, but very few of them held their gains to the finish. An outstanding feature of the session was the rapid rise, under a very heavy turnover, of National Cash Register A, which touched a new peak price at 141½ and closed at 139, for a net gain of 14 points. Many high priced industrials which were prominent on the upside yesterday were sold in large volume today at declining prices.

Before the market opened it was learned that the Bank of England had retained its old rate which Wall street regarded as foreshadowing no change here. Perhaps stock traders anticipated buying orders as a result and decided it was a good time to sell. However that may be, offerings at the opening were heavy and the early irregularity turned into general weakness, which lasted until about noon, when the selling appeared to wear itself out and a rally set in which held sway until near the close, when another selling wave hit several quarters of the list, and at the close the market was unsettled.

Call Money Holds at 6 Per Cent.

Call money held at 6 per cent despite the calling of about $25,000,000 by the banks. The money market tone has been firming up gradually for the last day or two, and when the full force of the month-end settlements is felt it would not be surprising if the market would see another flurry in rates, with 10 to 12 per cent for a day or two at least. Possibly the prospect of a period of stiff money turned attention of the market to the matter of borrowed money. Increases in margin demands by brokers also was a factor in the situation.

At any rate, the street seemed to be much concerned over the brokers' loan account. Most people expect a good-sized increase, in view of the rise in the stock prices during the week and the establishment yesterday of new record highs, both for industrial and railroad sections. Even a small increase would mean a new high level for the loan total, which might have some adverse sentimental effect.

Nearly $1,500,000 in gold was purchased today in the London open market for destination in the United States, according to advices from that city, although no such purchase was announced by any New York bank. If this additional gold is brought to New York it will bring the total taken from London this week to $9,000,000.

Many Sufferers Rally.

Metal and mining shares bore the brunt of the early selling, but many of them rallied in the afternoon. Kennecott was dumped over in large lots, as was St. Joseph Lead, but both found a rallying point. Steels, chemicals, amusement shares and specialties also were weak, and even the utilities felt the selling pressure.

The day's net losses included Du Pont, old, 14 points; Wright, 7; Radio, 4; Case Threshing, 4¾; Columbia Graphaphone, 3¾; Adams Express, 4; Kennecott, 4⅜; General Electric, 3¼; Johns-Manville, 3; Du Pont, new, 3⅛; General Asphalt, 2¾; St. Joseph Lead, 3⅜; Owens Bottle, 5¼; Warner Pictures, 3; Union Carbide, 4⅜; U. S. Steel, 2¼; Ludlum, 2½; Republic, 2; Gimbel Bros., 3⅜; Motor Products, 4; Sun Oil, 4; General Motors, old and new, 2 and 5⅝, respectively; Chrysler, 1⅛; Midland Steel Products, 11; New York Central, 2¾; New Haven, 2; Wabash A, 2¾; Delaware & Hudson, 2; Southern Pacific, 2⅞; Montgomery Ward, 4; Kroger, 2½; Loose Wiles, 2⅛, and so on.

Principal gains on the day were made by Mathieson Alkali, which touched a new high for all time at 214, but sold off to close at 211½, up 13½ net; Gillette Safety Razor, also at a new top, with a net gain of 6 points; American Water Works, 6½; American Power & Light, 2⅜; Cotv, 2¾; Ingersoll Rand, 2½; International Harvester, 4⅜; Keith preferred, 6; Liquid Carbonic, 2¼; Royal Baking Powder, 2¼; National Power, 3⅜; Macy, 2¾; Spiegel, 5½; U. S. Tobacco, 3¼; Nash, 4; Commercial Credit, 3⅜, and a few others.

Canadian Pacific Snaps Back.

Canadian Pacific spurted to a new high at 254¾ in the morning, but snapped back to close 249 under heavy profit taking.

The market for sterling exchange was quiet, depending to a great extent on bids of $4.84 15-16 for cables for actual business. According to some interests these bids in nearly all cases are against prospective gold imports. Swiss and Dutch were strong and made advances of one-half point and a point, respectively. German, Italian and French francs also improved slightly, but Austrian eased. Japanese again was under pressure, falling 10 points. Havana moved up to one-sixteenth premium. Canadian recovered another shade to 99.78.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A slight early advance on a continuation of the buying of yesterday afternoon was followed by declines in the cotton market under liquidation and some selling said to be partly for Southern account. March contracts declined from 20.18 to 20.01 and closed at that figure. The general market closed easy at net declines of 4 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at 5 to 8 points net advance on a decline of 4 points. The old crop was relatively firm on overnight buying orders, apparently brought in by the firmer tone of yesterday's late market. Covering by January shorts and some buying attributed to price-fixing sent the price of that delivery up to 20.22. The near-month firmness probably helped the tone of later deliveries. July sold up to 19.80, making best advances of about 10 points on the old crop positions. The market met considerable Southern selling and a renewal of realizing or liquidation at these prices. The volume of business tapered off after the early demand had been supplied. While prices worked gradually lower, reaching the lowest levels of the day in the late trading, rallies developed from 20.05 and July sold up to 19.65 from the lowest, a couple of points off the lowest for the day on later deliveries. No particular news factor was mentioned in connection with the decline from the rally tops. Perhaps the failure of demand to broaden more importantly on the rally from the low level of yesterday was a disappointment to recent buyers. The continued lack of spot demand, which had been a factor of some importance in checking yesterday's decline below 20 cents, was less in evidence in today's trading. Southern trade advices continued to come from the British goods market. According to private advices a fair though by no means active business was reported in these lines here, but these factors apparently failed to make much impression on the market. Exports today, 28,584, making 3,473,804 since Aug. 1 this season. Port receipts, 23,428. U. S. port stocks, 2,260,262.

KNOCKOUT OF CHRISTNER TONIGHT SHARKEY'S TASK

G.U. Conquers Emmitsburg Five, 33-19

Takes Lead at Outset Despite St. Mary's Baffling Passing.

Score at Half Is 19-10; Meenan, McCarthy Chief Scorers.

GEORGETOWN played good, bad and indifferent basket ball against the Mount St. Mary's Basket Ball Team, of Emmittsburg, Md., last night, but at that the Hilltoppers were masters of the visitors throughout, gaining the decision by 31 to 19 on the American University court.

When they were "right" the Hilltoppers found little or no trouble in sinking the ball and managed to keep ahead of the Saints from the outset. They gave their supporters some headaches for a change, but still provided enough smiles to send them home happy.

Contrary to custom, Georgetown did not maintain speed nor smooth passing for the entire 40 minutes, and Coach Ripley was forced to shake things up by inserting several of his capable reserves. They went in with orders to "pep it up," which they did, the Blue and Gray benefiting immediately upon their entrance.

Mount St. Mary's Passing Fast But Shooting Is Erratic.

While Mount St. Mary's exhibited a fast and fancy passing game, its effect did not show in the scoring, for twice as many of the Saints' shots fell wide or short of the net as those that dropped through. The visiting team worked the leather close to the basket times innumerable, only to fail to sink it because of erratic shooting. Added to this was a little tough luck, the ball hesitating on the rim and then falling off the wrong way.

The lead went to Georgetown in the first minute when Dillon connected from the foul stripe, and only twice did Mount St. Mary's threaten to cut it down. With six minutes to go in the first half, the Saints staged a spurt which drew them to within 3 points. At the same stage of the second half, after having trailed by 11 points, a sudden flurry of goals pulled them up on the short end of a 25-to-19 score, this causing Coach Ripley to make one of his substitutions.

Dillon, Leary and Scalzi entered the fray at that point to inject new life into the home club. Only Leary hit the hole, but all three played a heavy hand in a rally which saw Georgetown win going away.

Dillon was in the starting line at center and scored a foul and a fielder before giving way to Dutton, who was shifted from forward. Dutton, McCarthy, Mesmer and Meenan added to Dillon's points to give Georgetown a lead of 9 points midway in the first half.

Georgetown Uncorks Rally Before End of Half.

Capt Hemler scored first for Mount Saint Mary's with a follow shot, but this was all of the Saints' attack for the first fourteen minutes. Then Connell, McCall and McGarrigan uncorked three difficult heaves which gave the game the complexion of a real contest.

This lasted but a moment as Dunn, Meenan and Mesmer rang the bell in quick succession for Georgetown before intermission, making the score read 19 to 10.

With the Hilltoppers riding far in Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The National Boxing Association, which controls the sport in 27 states and has working agreements with the New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and California commissions, under which they respect one another's rulings when they feel like it, has just discovered that it has a rule requiring champions to defend their titles at least once in six months; the New York Commission has a similar rule which got horse laughs from the heavyweight champions, Dempsey and Tunney, but which it has made sporadic attempts to enforce among the lesser fry.

Now the N. B. A. announces that Tommy Loughran, Mickey Walker, Joe Dundee and Sammy Mandell must defend their championships in the light heavy, middle, welter and lightweight divisions respectively, before March 21 or forfeit their titles.

"Logical Contender" in Gotham May Be Rated "Ham" on Coast.

The purpose of the boxing authorities is laudable enough, but the order in its present form lacks body. If they themselves were able to agree on the logical contender in each class they might get somewhere. The logical contender in one jurisdiction may be rated as a ham in another. The New York commission, for example, kept dandling George Courtney on its lap as the logical contender for Mickey Walker's crown after a couple of the neighbors' middleweights had belted him around plenty. They might still insist that Walker first meet the Oklahoma adonis, while the California Commission was insisting that Ace Hudkins, of Los Angeles, get as many more cracks as he needs at Mickey, who gave him one chance at the crown.

If the affiliated boxing boards of 31 States ruled that a champion must lay his title on the line every time he steps into the ring, they would rid the ring of the artful dodgers in short order. This rule would have its disadvantages, but it is a question if they would offset the benefit it would confer on the sport.

Unnecessary Nontitle Bouts Would Never Be Missed.

For one thing, it would deprive fans in the smaller boxing centers of chances of seeing champions in action, but most of the nontitular bouts in which a champion engages are of the sort that might just as well be missed. The champions themselves might insist that they absolutely require the "tune-up" bouts a heavyweight titleholder never gets, but that argument will not hold water. They should be allowed "tune-up" bouts between more important engagements, but always with the title at stake and with opponents above the absolute set-up class.

A real champion—and that is the only kind the sport should be interested in—can make plenty of money in legitimate defense of his laurels and does not need to traipse around the country pushing over stumblebums.

Authorities Strangely Silent In Case of Ray Miller.

Ray Miller, of Chicago, who has knocked out McLarnin, Grogan, Tenorio and Terris since Mandell last defended his title against McLarnin, stands head and shoulders above the

Lieb, Notre Dame Star, To Be Coach in East

Madison, Wis., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Tom Lieb, former Notre Dame star and University of Wisconsin line coach since 1926, said today he expected to accept a football coaching position at an Eastern university. He would not say which university other than that it was a "large institution."

Joe Dundee to Defend Title on February 22

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, will defend his title against either Jackie Fields or Young Jack Thompson here February 22, Max Waxman, his manager, informed Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, today. Waxman promised McArdle that Dundee would sign the contract Friday.

Fields is considered to have first call for the title bout despite the fact that Thompson scored a knockout victory over the champion at catch-weights last November.

Palm Beach Golf Finals Between Yates-Butler

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Arthur "Ducky" Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., and Jack Butler, of West Palm Beach, emerged victorious from the semifinal round of the annual Lake Worth golf tournament at the Palm Beach Golf Club course here today, and will meet in the title match tomorrow morning.

Yates defeated O. L. Brailey, of Toledo, Ohio, 6 and 5, while Butler won, 5 and 4, over Robert Crosbbie, of Newton Center, Mass., who yesterday turned in a victory over Clive Alvord, of Greenwich, Conn., the tournament medalist.

"Jock" McLean Advances To Semifinals in Tennis

Ormond Beach, Fla., Jan. 24.—"Jock" McLean, 13-year-old son of Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, today advanced to the semifinal round of the Ormond Beach men's championship tennis tournament, beating D. L. Monroe in impressive fashion, 6—1, 6—2.

Young McLean's victory was his second of the tournament in straight sets. In his first match, he eliminated H. L. Dayton by 6—1, 6—4. The youth, in competition with adult players, has played a consistently fine game, aided by a hard service that has baffled both his opponents.

Gold Cup Race Awarded Red Bank, N. J., Club

New York, Jan. 23 (United Press).—The Gold Cup Yacht races will be held on the Shrewsbury River at Red Bank, N. J., August 24-25, C. F. Chapman, chairman of the racing committee of the Columbia Yacht Club of New York, cup defenders, announced today. The cup was won in 1927 by George H. Townsend, but his failure to defend it on a challenge from the Columbia Yacht Club in 1928 caused the trophy to pass to the latter organization, which placed second in 1927.

The Gold Cup race was awarded Washington at last fall's annual meeting of the American Powerboat Association, but owing to the failure to raise funds necessary to the construction of a representative Washington speed boat, the proposed staging of the classic here was abandoned.

Eleonora Sears Beaten In Squash Racket Play

Boston, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Miss Eleonora Sears, of Boston, was eliminated from the women's national squash rackets championships here today by Mrs. William F. Howe, jr., also of Boston, in a quarter finals match. Miss Sears' defeat was the biggest upset of the championship play, which started last Monday with a field of 64 players entered.

Mrs. Howe was one of three Boston women to enter the semifinals, Mrs. George W. Wightman, of Boston, defeated Anne Page, of Philadelphia; Miss Louise Waterman eliminated Mrs. Lothrop Withington in an all-Boston match and Miss Ruth Hall, of Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. Homer Albers, of Boston.

Mrs. Howe was slated to play Miss Waterman in tomorrow's semifinal and Mrs. Wightman was due to face Miss Hall.

Dempsey Offers Gallagher Place on Miami Fight Card

MARTY GALLAGHER, Washington heavyweight, has received an offer of a place on the Sharkey-Stribling card at Miami February 27.

Jack Dempsey, who is helping promote the last venture of the late Tex Rickard, yesterday telegraphed Gallagher an offer for a match in one of the preliminaries. Gallagher, at present training in New York City, has not yet announced his acceptance but is believed to consider the offer favorably.

Dempsey first met Gallagher in 1927 when the former world's heavyweight champion was training at Saratoga, N. Y., for his bout with Sharkey. Gallagher was one of his sparring partners.

Meanwhile the legal battle between Gallagher and John S. Blick over the right of the latter to continue as his manager, goes on in the District Supreme Court. Gallagher seeks to be freed from a managerial contract signed with Blick three years ago. He filed suit here recently after having lost out in Baltimore where the Boxing Commission of Maryland recognized Blick as the only man who could manage him in that State during the four-year period of the existing contract.

Today Justice Gordon, in equity division No. 1, District Supreme Court, will hear a plea by Gallagher's attorney, W. Gwynn Gardiner, for a temporary injunction restraining Blick from managing the fighter's activities until the suit comes to trial.

Blick knew nothing of the Miami offer until apprised by The Post last night. He stated that he would not relinquish efforts to retain Gallagher under his management, admitting, however, that it is doubtful if he would be successful in so far as the proposed bout is concerned.

Blick revealed the hope that a boxing commission exists in Florida which would support the opinion of the Maryland commission. The boxing commission of Pennsylvania, New York and several other States are allied with the Maryland body, and therefore uphold its decisions, thus giving Blick support.

Tech Is Facing Last Test in Western

Furious Battle Looms Today in School Court Series.

Tech Won Last Game by Point; Central Meets Business.

By GARRETT WATERS.

WITH the championship in the offing, the Tech Quintet will face its last serious obstacle today in the high school series when it meets Western in the Tech Gymnasium at 3:15 o'clock. The game, the first of the semiweekly doubleheader, will feature the program, which also has on schedule a clash between Central and Business.

Winner in all of its five starts in the series, Tech thus goes into the fray the heavy favorite this afternoon, according to past performances, but a victory over Western is by no means certain. The last time Western played Tech it forced the latter to the limit before succumbing by a 25-to-24 score.

Today's clash offers Western a two-fold opportunity for revenge of the past defeat and to reestablish itself in the running for the title. Western advanced to even terms with Eastern for second place with three wins against two losses, by virtue of its victory over Central on Tuesday.

Fight for Team Supremacy Overshadows Individuals.

Although it is hardly conceivable that such a contest could be duplicated as that between Tech and Eastern on Tuesday, the game today promises plenty of action and one which will hold the followers of both teams on edge throughout.

There will be no fight today between Goldblatt and Cappelli, one of the sidelights which made Tuesdays game colorful, but there will be a fight between two combinations as a whole for supremacy. Goldblatt will be in the vicinity again for Tech, with MacCartee, Johnson, Talburtt, Brown and Edelblut to flank him. For Western there will be the Thompson brothers, Herbie and Jimmie, a pair of the most versatile athletes to come to the high schools in several seasons; the ever-dependable Mike Hunt, who has been a tower of strength to the team this year, and Freeman, Baer and Capt. Woods.

All in all, the game stands out as one of the most interesting of the series, despite Tuesday's clash between Tech and Eastern. For Tech it doubtless will mean the ultimate winning of the championship, while for Western it may mean its last stand for contention in the race.

Central Seeks First Victory In Battle With Business.

Both of them out of the fight, the brush between Business and Central will just be in the nature of finishing out their strings in the series, with a win giving Business a little better percentage mark in the standings or a win for Central breaking the ice for that team which has yet to get into the winning column.

It is an utter shame that such a team as that which the Stenographers flashed in the early going should be forced to lose its games in the manner in which it has. Beating Central in its debut, the Stenographers rose to unknown heights against Tech in falling by an 18 to 17 score but games since played have been lost in the usual haphazard Business fashion. Coach Woodworth has a pair of fast forwards in Newman and Lucas while the remainder of the team including Payne, Lewis and Singman are fast but erratic players.

Central, in the throes of the worst season it has ever experienced, has yet to show a consistent brand of good basket ball. The many combinations Coach Coggins has tried to date have all seemed to lack punch. He has two likely looking players in Lampson and DeLisio, guards; with the remainder only mediocre. Even Captain Ken Fisher has failed to play in the form expected of him which might have a great deal to do with the reason for the team's poor showing this year.

Purchase of Baltimore Club Aim of Corporation

Baltimore, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Selection of Milton A. Reckford, adjutant general of Maryland, as president of a corporation to purchase the Baltimore International League Club and of Fritz Maisel to be Oriole manager under the new ownership was announced today by Carlos Ferrer, promoter organizing the corporaiton.

Purchase of the club from Mrs. Jack Dunn, widow of the owner-manager, had not been completed, but Ferrer announced that all arrangements for the deal had been made. Beside taking over the Orioles his plans included building a new ball park and sports center which would provide for league hockey games and boxing, on the present ball park site.

PROFESSIONAL COLLEAGUES —Sharkey and Christner— GAMBOL AT GARDEN TONIGHT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The first heavyweight prize fight in Madison Square Garden since the death of Tex Rickard will be held tomorrow evening, Jack Sharkey and K. O. Christner being the celebrants. Christner's front name is Myer and, beyond the fact that he recently took a long reach at the dangling chin of Knute (pronounced Nude) Hansen and laid him down in a comatose condition, little is known of him here. His manners are not quite polite, as he does not speak of his adversary as a professional colleague, referring to him, on the contrary, as a big bum.

But that need not signify that he will do much to Mr. Sharkey, because Gene Tunney sometimes referred to very pronounced bums as professional colleagues, and he was a pretty good prize fighter. What I mean to imply is that one can not always judge the contents by the label.

At any rate, they are making much of this prize fight in New York, and poor Tex Rickard's beloved fine people will turn out in their dinner jackets and gardenias and scent the atmosphere of the ringside with the fumes of rare old Bacardi for the first time since he died. Though Tex lies in a quiet plot in Woodlawn, beyond the machinations of little politicians and the yapping cynicism of such as me, his spirit, or at any rate his program, goes marching on, according to his elastic plan.

Florida, Here I Come— If Christner Wins.

If Christner should chance to scrape Mr. Sharkey's chin and strew him Friday night, Christner will don the garish colors of the heavyweight runner-up and proceed to Miami Beach in place of Sharkey to fight Willie Stribling on the night of February 27. If Christner should prove to be merely a bum, Sharkey will proceed to Miami Beach, as planned, and nothing will have been proved beyond the fact that a bum is a bum in any surroundings.

In doing what he did to Nude Hansen, Mr. Christner seems to have done nothing in particular, for Nude had never done much, if anything, himself. He had a fine, slim figure and he was a devil at the body-bag but he derived his only importance from the fact Mr. James I. Bush, the No. 1 millionaire among Rickard's cherished 600, once remarked that Mr. Walter Chrysler, the automobile manufacturer, a high-ranking millionaire himself, had subsidized his career to the extent of a few thousand dollars.

However, I never saw Mr. Chrysler walk down the aisle to Nude's corner in a striped sweater, with a ripe-smelling towel dangling from his hip pocket to attend his man in the ring, so I came to the conclusion that he had merely taken a few shares in the same way that less pecunious persons sometimes drop a few quarters in a slot machine while waiting for the 5:15.

Finger of Suspicion Points to Region of Sharkey's Courage.

If a man will not wear a striped sweater and walk down to the ring with a bucket behind his fighter, his interest can not be very lively.

Still, nobody could have knocked anybody into a more comatose condition

Ruth, Near Playing Weight, To Taper Off on Golf in South

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth today resumed the serious task of preparation for the baseball season of 1929, a summer he hopes to make long and hard for American League pitchers. A few more days of gymnasium work and he will go South to taper off on golf before the spring training grind begins.

"I may go any time now," he said. "I'll decide one day soon to go the next day, and that will be all there is to it."

"I'm going down to St. Pete (St. Petersburg, Fla., spring home of the Yankees) and play a lot of golf.

"I can't afford to take off much more weight up here. I weigh between 220 and 230 pounds now and I must have something to work on when the real training begins. I ought to play at from 222 to 225 pounds. I can't do my best work under 220. I was down to 218 a while last year and I wasn't so good."

The Babe had not heard of Secretary Barrow's plan to put big numbers on the backs of the Yankee players. "It's O. K. with me," was his comment.

Artie McGovern, his personal trainer, suggested that having a number on his shirt would be good insurance against another player getting it. "Nobody ever gets my shirt," said the slugger, "and I can't get any other fellow's, either."

Numbers O. K., Nobody Gets My Shirt Anyway, Says Ruth.

Ruth went to school with K. O. Christner, the Akron slugger, who boxes Jack Sharkey at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The alumni stick close together, for the Babe came to bat with a boost for his boyhood playmate. "He may upset Sharkey, at that," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised, not a bit."

The baseball player will not see his fellow alumnus meet Sharkey, but if the Boston sailor is not "upset," he may drop in on the Stribling-Sharkey fight at Miami Beach next month, he said.

California U. Outfielder Signs With Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Jack Hill, of Oakland, Calif., University of California outfielder, was signed by the Cincinnati Reds today for a spring training tryout.

President C. J. McDiarmid, of the Reds, announced that negotiations were completed today for the transfer of Bernie Neis, veteran outfielder obtained from Seattle, to the Columbus American Association Club. Details of the negotiations were not given out.

Women to Promote Bout Featuring Sam Mandell

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Woman's Club of Rockford, Ill., is going in for boxing promotion to raise funds for charity with Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, as the leading attraction.

The State Athletic Commission today granted a license to hold the show Saturday night. Walter George, secretary of the commission, said the women were endeavoring to raise funds for a "settlement house."

Mandell, favored citizen of Rockford, has tendered his services for a four-round bout. There also will be other four-rounders between professionals.

A. A. U. Officials to Meet Here Today With Spitzer

Officials of the South Atlantic Amateur Athletic Union will meet today at the Lee House to confer upon future activities in this section with Ernest J. Spitzer, newly appointed athletic commissioner of the A. A. U. for Washington.

An energetic program proposed by Spitzer will include a meeting in the near future of leaders in Capital sports circles to discuss events under A. A. U. sanction and the enforcement of A. A. U. rules. Athletic directors and coaches of the colleges, schools and clubs of the District are to attend. Spitzer has said that violations of the amateur code among District athletes have been frequent and passed unnoticed.

Hoppe Beats Champion, 400-384, at 3 Cushions

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe defeated Johnny Layton, the world's champion, in their 400-point three-cushioned billiard match, completed here tonight. The final score was 400 to 384.

Hoppe took six of the eight blocks, but Layton's high run of 10 in the second block was the best cluster of the match.

Wide Signs Entry Blank For Games in New York

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Edvin Wide, Swedish distance runner, will make his first start in the United States at the Masonic games here next Saturday night. He signed an entry blank late today.

Wide has been training at Georgetown University for the past two weeks but does not feel that he has reached the top of his form yet. A special field of high class distance men is being arranged to oppose him.

The Masonic meet was the one for which the entry of Paavo Nurmi was sought. Some controversy followed the charge made by a member of the Masonic committee that the Finn had been unduly influenced to run at Boston instead. The charge was disproved.

Skinker Bros. Eagles List Cumberland Casey Five

The Skinker Bros. Eagles will have a real attraction on Sunday for their Sabbath Day game in the Congress Heights Gymnasium. The Cumberland Knights of Columbus Five will be entertained at 3:15 o'clock.

The Cumberland Caseys will come with one of the strongest teams in this section, having recently held the Cleveland Rosenblums, of the Professional Basket Ball League, to a close score. Johnny Long, former Catholic University luminary, is one of the players with the Caseys.

The Eagles will line up with their usual dependable array of Faber, Bennie, Sweeney, King, Thompson, Streeks and Krumm.

Boston Boxer Held Heavy Favorite

Wagering Even Sailor Will Stop Opponent in Garden Bout.

Disaster Lurking in Punch of Christner If He Finds Mark.

By JACK FARRELL.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Jack Sharkey, the ex-deck swabber from Boston, arrives at the crossroads of his heavyweight title tour tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

A dangerous obstruction in the person of Meyer "Kayo" Christner, a former top sergeant in the Army and graduate of the rubber pits of Akron, Ohio, threatens to ruin the loquacious Lithuanian's trip.

If Sharkey can not remove Kayo from his path and with enough force and finesse to satisfy the great army of skeptics who have been contending that the Boston battler is overrated, the result will be disastrous to him and far reaching in its effect on the heavyweight situation.

It would kill the proposed Sharkey-Stribling fight at Miami Beach February 26 deader than cock robin and it would mean the ruination of Sharkey not only as a leading contender for Gene Tunney's vacant title but as a headline attraction.

Christner Does Not Figure To Hit Sharkey Cleanly.

The betting is at long odds that Kayo doesn't stop Sharkey in ten rounds, and even money that Sharkey wins by a knockout. Nobody gives Christner anything but the outside chance that any ordinary fighter must be given against his equal in poundage—the possibility of winning with a lucky punch. If Sharkey doesn't flatten his man in five rounds he ought to go back home and take up crocheting, in the view of Eastern boxing critics.

Christner doesn't figure to hit Sharkey with a clean punch, if Sharkey is right. Kayo has nothing but a heart and a right-hand wallop. He must match these against one of the best left hands in the division, a very clever, shifty performer as heavyweights go, and a fairly resilient chin. Sharkey has been flattened but once since he got into the big money, and then by the master puncher of them all—Jack Dempsey. And Dempsey had to catch Sharkey with his hands down before he could drop him.

Westerner Is Mauler and Proves He Could "Take It."

Kayo is a fighter of the rough-and-tumble type. He doesn't fight according to the book because, as one of his intimates put it, "He never needed the book." Knute Hansen will attest to the potency of his right hand. It is loaded with dynamite. That he can take it was evidenced in his fight with Knute. A few of the boys who saw that fight tell us that Kayo took everything Hansen had, and some flush on the chin, before he let his right fist explode on the point of the Dane's jaw.

But aside from the fact that Christner kayoed Hansen there isn't an incident recorded in his pugilistic biography that gives him the right to be in the same ring with Sharkey.

Both lads finished training today and are right on edge. They will weigh in at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"Pa" Stribling Will Scout Sharkey From Ringside.

"Pa" Stribling will occupy a seat in the second row at ringside to scout Sharkey for his son, Willie. He is quite certain nothing will happen tomorrow night to necessitate a revision of the Miami Beach program.

The ten-round semifinal will show Emmet Rocco, from Elwood, Pa., against Jack Gross, Philadelphia heavy. Billy Murphy one of Sharkey's stablemates from Boston, boxes Canada Lee, the wire-haired negro, in the first ten.

Matchmaker Tom McArdle today completed the Garden program for February 8. Al Singer and Bud Taylor meet in the ten-round main bout and behind them in two other tens will be Joe Scalfaro and Archie Bell and Irish Bobby Brady and Jackie Schweitzer.

Paolino Uzcudun is ready to sign to fight Tom Heeney as soon as the latter says the word. The New Zealander is having tough times trying to decide whether he will fight again or quit the ring.

FOUR WINNERS OF MEETING REPEAT AT MIAMI TRACK

Feature Won By Common Sense

Sterling Silver, From Havana, Wins at Odds of 10-1.

Whitney Group Arrives Today With Workman.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Jan. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Repeaters, horses that had won previously at the meeting, were in evidence in the winners' circle in front of the judges' stand at the Miami Jockey Club's track here this afternoon. El Ricario, Charming Lady, Figaro Wing II and Common Sense captured their second purses of the meeting in the course of the afternoon.

A. W. Wentzel's Common Sense gave the smartest performance in winning the Hollywood Purse, for 3-year-olds, at 5½ furlongs, the feature of the program. Fritz Weiner stepped him off in front and he held his field safely all the way, beating Lew Black, a cast-off of the H. P. Whitney Stable, by a length and a half, with Fire Line third. The time was 1:07 1-5.

If many of the arrivals from Havana show up the horses that have been running here the way Sterling Silver did, they will have a big following. Sterling Silver arrived from Cuba early today, and for that reason he was quoted at 10 to 1, although he had won four races recently at the Havana American Jockey Club track. However, he made a show of Red Leather and Northland, both winners here within the week, beating the former by five and a half lengths and stepping the mile in 1:39 2-5.

Sterling Silver Makes Show of Field to Win Easily.

M. J. Barron's El Ricario, which won the first race for 2-year-olds at this meeting so impressively on Monday, scored as smartly today in the event for juveniles at 3 furlongs, that was first on the program. Breaking like a seasoned campaigner, she led all the way to beat R. T. Wilson's Play Ball, with W. J. Salmon's Ponder third. Bud Fisher's Woody Long, which was second to El Ricario on Monday, was beaten off. This time he had no excuse.

The horses of H. P. Whitney that M. Goldblatt campaigns on the winter tracks arrived here from New Orleans today. Goldblatt and Sonny Workman and Tommy Root, who will do the stable's riding, are due here tomorrow.

EL RELICARIO went around her opposition with a rush on the stretch turn, opened a commanding lead with little effort and won with speed in reserve. PLAY BALL, away forwardly and in closest pursuit of the winner in the final quarter mile was unable to improve his position. PONDER, away fast, entered the stretch wide and was tiring at the finish. MARIE STEVENS finished well on her own courage. WOODY LONG was slow to find his stride and lost much ground entering the stretch. LEO FANNING was not persevered with.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 2:58. Off at 2:60. Winner, E. E. Major's ch. f. (3), by Capt. Alcock—Jessie Louise. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Overweight—CHARMING LADY (1), CHOIR INVISIBLE (4).

CHARMING LADY, well up in the early running, slipped in between the leaders entering stretch and, closing gamely, outlasted PLAY B in final drive. Latter dwelt when break came and crowded back attempting to go through inside leaving back stretch, came extremely wide in final quarter mile, but finished with a rush and just failed to get up. LEVITY held her opposition safe for speed and opened a good lead under restraint first half mile, but then tired suddenly in the last furlong. FANTA finished going well. SWEET LACRUSE saved ground the entire trip and raced prominently to the furlong pole where he weakened as if short.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:26. Winner, Sundheimer & Parshall's b. g. (4), by St. Henry—Daytoria. Trained by E. McCuan. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25.

STERLING SILVER forced a rapid pace and took command with a rush rounding lower turn and won as his rider pleased. RED LEATHER improved his position steadily, disposed of NORTHLAND through the stretch. NORTHLAND held his field safe for speed, but ZATESLO did not permit him a free rein and he stopped suddenly after going six furlongs. FRIEDJOF NANSEN had no mishaps. VIMONT displayed early speed but retired after going a half-mile.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. The Homestead. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 3:58. Off at 3:59. PIGEON WING II took command at once and drew out into a good lead after rounding the first turn running close to the inner rail, was raied in front thereafter and always held sway, but tried to bear out through the final furlong. EASY MONEY, a distant trailer for six furlongs, closed gamely on the inside after entering the stretch and held BLACK FRIAR safe. Taral lost both stirrup irons on the first furlong after going six furlongs and was unable to do him justice. REJUVENATION had no excuse. MOROCCO was scratched.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. The Hollywood. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:18. Winner, A. W. Wentzel's ch. g. (3), by Royal Canopy—Lady Fern. Trained by R. B. Odom. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:47 2-5, 1:07 1-5.

OLEE CLUB	107	6	4	5h	6	6	6	Long	20	5	7-5

COMMON SENSE went to the front at once and was rated in front thereafter, winning with speed to spare. LEW BLACK, always prominent, held on gamely through stretch under strong pressure. FIRE LINE made a bold bid after straightening out in the stretch, but then weakened in closing strides. BEGIN OVER, under slight restraint in the early running, was taken off the rail the last furlong and, coming to outside, finished with a belated rush. JOHN B closed resolutely. OLEE CLUB raced on his own courage entire trip.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place easily. Went to post at 4:47. Off at 4:50. Winner, Mrs. W. A. Overweight—ARCADE (2½), FAIR ROWENA (1½), MACK'S BABY (1½), RAMBLE (3), TOSCANELLI (2), HALF PINT (1).

MACK'S BABY, slow to find her stride, slipped through on the inside the first half-mile and saved much ground, went around leaders entering stretch, disposed of FAIR ROWENA after a mild drive. The latter, a forward contender all the way, made a game effort when called on, but hung as if short when the final issue came. HALF PINT gradually improved his position and, closing with a rush through stretch, easily disposed of the others. RAMBLE finished well. ARCADE, away well and saving ground rounding first turn, displayed good speed under steady restraint, but stopped badly after going about six furlongs. MICHAEL B quit after going a half-mile.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAURIE, $11.36, $4.98, $3.28; BUTTERED TOAST, $3.74, $3.14; BRAGGADOCCIO, $3.30.

LAURIE broke well, was rated along to stretch where he came fast and, bumping his way through between BUTTERED TOAST and BRAGGADOCCIO, was up to win in last stride. BUTTERED TOAST, on the outside, had no mishap. BRAGGADOCCIO had plenty of speed, but weakened in last sixteenth. BEECHWOOD finished strong.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SISTER ZOE, $19.98, $5.78, $3.90; TETRA GLASS, $3.16, $2.50; BLACK FLYER, $4.46.

SISTER ZOE worked her way up, closed with a rush in final furlong and won going away. TETRA GLASS was shuffled back on paddock turn, moved up fast at far turn, was blocked by BLACK FLYER, got through, took lead and weakened in last twenty yards. BLACK FLYER ran a good race. SALONA had plenty of speed but quit badly in final quarter.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Flight. For 6-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:01. Winner, M. Tansor's ch. g. POLO PLAYING RULES ARE MODIFIED Sole Right of Captain to Protest Is Chief Change in Code.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (A.P.).—Several changes in the rules of polo most of them designed to clarify the wording of the rules, have been approved by the executive committee of the United States Polo Association and will be effective immediately. The changes were submitted at the association meeting last week and the approval was announced today.

Perhaps the most important change is in General Rule No. 5, Section B, which has been shortened to read: "Captains shall have the sole right to discuss with the umpire questions arising during the game." A reference to the right to enter protests with the referee is eliminated.

8-Minute Rest Between Fourth and Fifth Periods Instituted.

Another change allows for a half time rest period of eight minutes between the fourth and fifth periods of a game. A note is added to this rule explaining that the umpire's whistle rather than the bell determines when play shall stop in all periods except the last. To shorten the code of general rules, Nos. 10 to 15, dealing with tournament conditions, have been transferred to the by-laws.

Field Rule No. 16, Section F, has been altered to allow a greater margin of safety when one player enters the line of the ball in front of another. He is permitted to do so only when it "does not involve the possibility of a collision or danger to either player." The former ruling permitted such cutting in as long as the player in possession of the ball was not forced to pull up to avoid a collision. Other changes in the field rules make it clear that the umpire must put the ball in play by bowling it "underhand and hard."

Devitt, Friends Engage In Junior Prep Contest

The Devitt Prep School Juniors will engage the Friends School Five this afternoon in the Epiphany Church Gymnasium at 3:30 o'clock in a Junior Prep School League clash.

Devitt players will assemble at their school on Upton street at 2:15 o'clock to go to Epiphany, while players of the Friends School Five are requested to report at Epiphany by 3 o'clock.

Emerson Five Defeats Augusta Cadets, 51-21

Fort Defiance, Va., Jan. 17.—Emerson Prep basketers made it two straight on the trip through Virginia by defeating the Augusta Military Academy Cadets here tonight, 51 to 21, in a one-sided game. Buscher and Galotta were high scorers for the winners with 17 and 12 points, respectively. Emerson moves on to Staunton, Va., tomorrow for a game with the Staunton Military Academy Five.

GAME TONIGHT SOUGHT.

National Circles have use of a gymnasium and desire a game for tonight. Arrangements may be made with Manager Andrews at Lincoln 9892.

Gaylor, Maryland, Ill, Not to Face St. John's

University of Maryland will not have the services of Bob Gaylor, its star forward, for its basket ball game with St. John's of Annapolis at College Park tomorrow night.

Gaylor, who was the big gun in Maryland's recent victory over Virginia, was too ill to play against Johns Hopkins last Friday night and has not returned to practice.

Coach Shipley, of the Old Liners, still is undecided as to his line-up, but doubtless will start Radice and Evans as forwards, Hetzel at center and Heagy and Madigan or Dean as guards. Hetzel has shown well in practice this week in the center job, which has worried Shipley from the start of the campaign.

Jack Faber's unbeaten Freshman aggregation will meet its severest test of the season thus far when Maryland State Normal School of Towson is met at College Park today at 4 o'clock.

Maryland State Normal held Gallaudet to a close score in a game at Kendall Green prior to the holidays and has not been beaten since that time.

Chalmers, one of Faber's best players, is on the sick list, but Rooney, who was kept on the bench in the last contest, is available.

Berger, center; Rooney and Ronkin, forwards, and May and Wilson, guards, are slated to start for the yearlings.

Original Eagles to Play Under Colors of K. of C.

The Original Anacostia Eagles, at the invitation of Zube Sullivan, Knights of Columbus athletic director, last night agreed to play on Sunday afternoons under the Casey colors of the K. of C., and will tackle their initial opponent Sunday at 3 p. m.

The Eagles, however, will continue to represent Anacostia in all other contests, and intend to continue their schedule on Fridays at Congress Heights. Morris Clarke, Earle Moser, Emmett Mader, Sally Hanback, Leo Fitzgerald, Eddie Nealon, Larry Boerner, Tuck Dalglish and "Bum" Enright are the court artists who will perform as Caseys on future Sabbaths.

Washington Grays Play Woltz A. C. in League

The Washington Grays engage the strong Woltz A. C. tomorrow night in a Community Center League game in the Eastern High School gymnasium at 9 o'clock. This tilt may decide the winner of the first half of the league schedule. The Woltz Five, in second place, has a chance to come to even terms with the Grays in the event of a win.

The Grays, with six consecutive victories in the league, feel confident of making it seven straight tomorrow for the first half title. Sweeney and Stewart, of the Woltz, and Macdonald and Banta, of the Grays, are feature players who will be seen in action for the two teams.

Howard U. Wins, 33-32, Over Clark College Five

The Howard University Five won an uphill game from the Clark College Basketers last night, 33 to 32, in the Howard gymnasium. The visitors led 20 to 15 at the half and held a 16-point advantage, 27-17, eight minutes before the final whistle.

Louis Coates' floor work started a rally for the Howard tossers in these last minutes and it was the second of two baskets made by him, that eventually decided the issue.

HILLTOP BOXERS OPPOSE W. MARYLAND TONIGHT

Match to Test Caliber of G. U. Team

Ekaitis, Visitors' Ace, to Battle Greeves; Seven Bouts.

Attendance Limited; Formal Dress Has Been Requested.

COLLEGIATE boxing will make its 1929 bow here tonight when the ring teams of Georgetown and Western Maryland, of Emmitsburg, Md., clash in a program of seven bouts in Ryan Gymnasium at the Hilltop. The first bout will commence at 8:30 o'clock.

Elaborate preparations have preceded the inaugural. Director of Athletics Lou Little, of Georgetown, looks for a crowd that will tax the limited seating capacity of Ryan Gymnasium. There will be seats for about 1,200 and admission will be by special invitation or presentation of the regular passbook of the G. U. Athletic Association. Those desiring to purchase books which entitle the bearer to witness all winter and spring sports events of Georgetown may do so today at Little's office at the Hilltop.

An atmosphere more appropriate for a wedding or a debs' coming-out party will prevail. Formal dress is requested. When the fighters make their entrance they probably will look out of place, but the stage will be theirs for the evening nevertheless.

Georgetown's First Match of Season to Be Acid Test.

It will be Georgetown's first match of the season and Western Maryland's second. A mixed team of veterans and newcomers will wear the silks of Georgetown, while a more experienced team will represent Western Maryland.

Human nature will have a fight on its hands, too. The rules of amateur or collegiate boxing prohibit any sort of applause by spectators during the actual fighting. Only between rounds is it allowed. More than one fan will find it hard to suppress his feelings when a good, healthy sock lays some gladiator low.

Especially will this be true in the feature bout of the program between Bob Greeves, of Georgetown and Bob Ekaitis, of Western Maryland, who will fight in the middleweight class. The visiting boxers are known as the Green Terrors. By himself Ekaitis is terror enough for a whole team.

Greeves Must Face Ekaitis, Star of Western Maryland.

Greeves will have the honor, also the job, of meeting Ekaitis. He will do the job well if he holds Ekaitis to something near an even point score. The star of the Terrors is one of the hardest punching middleweights in college ranks and he has won six of the nine victories of his career by knockouts. He has been defeated twice, both times by decisions.

The order of the bouts is arranged according to weights, the lightest contestants fighting first. Thus the Greeves-Ekaitis match which probably will be the best will occupy a middle position on the card. Another likely thrilling bout will be that between Charley Fish of Georgetown, and Capt. Dick Norris of the visiting team. They are welterweights.

Following is the program:

118 pounds—Tardugno (G.) vs. Callahan (W. M.).

126 pounds—Haggerty (G.) vs. Crosby (W. M.).

135 pounds—Murphy (G.) vs. Hart (W. M.).

145 pounds—Fish (G.) vs. Norris (W. M.).

160 pounds—Greeves (G.) vs. Ekaitis (W. M.).

175 pounds—Posso (G.) vs. Klepaic (W. M.).

Unlimited—Tierney (G.) vs. Downer (W. M.).

Hyattsville Guards Win From Woltz A. C., 30-22

The Company F Team of the Hyattsville National Guards, defeated the Woltz A. C. Five in a fast Washington City League game last night, 30 to 22, in the National Guard Armory at Hyattsville. Woltz was held without a field goal in the first half and trailed, 15 to 4, at intermission. In the second half, Woltz threatened to tie the score, but the Guards drew away at the end. All of the Company F regulars had a hand in the scoring.

FOE OF G. U. HEAVYWEIGHT

"JIGGS" DOWNER,

Camden, N. J., youth who was runner-up for the American intercollegiate heavyweight boxing title last season, is the representative of the Western Maryland boxing team who will meet Jack Tierney, Georgetown heavy, tomorrow night on the program of bouts at the Hilltop.

Women Bowl Men's Team At Georgetown Tonight

Asking no handicap, the crack Commercial Team bowlers of the Washington Ladies League will roll against Sam Benson's team, at present leading the Georgetown Recreation League, in a special match tonight on the Georgetown Recreation drives. Some of the best women bowlers of the city are included on the Commercials. Immediately after the team games a double match will be contested between the well-known Bradt-Frere combination and the Benson-Bradt Team, with the former being conceded an even chance to win.

A. R. E. Basketers Play Richmond Team Tonight

The American Railway Express Five will entertain the strong Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Quintet, of Richmond, Va., tonight in the Terminal Y gymnasium at 7:30 o'clock. The visitors come with a long winning streak and also a series of Y games for Y championship.

The local Expressmen will be well fortified for the Virginians with Pepco Barry and Howard Miller, forwards; Eddie Colliflower, center, and Dick Hughes, Engle, Devoe and Stonewall, guards.

The Expressmen will entertain the McDonough Alumni Five, of Baltimore, tomorrow night in the Terminal Y gymnasium at 8 o'clock. Last night the Expressmen defeated the Company C Five of the District National Guard, 33 to 21.

Two American U. Stars Ruled Out of Navy Game

American University will be unable to use two of its stars when it engages the Navy Five at Annapolis on February 2. A rule governing sports at the Naval Academy prohibits either the Midshipmen or their opponents using freshmen.

The rule affects Forrest Burgess, forward and leading scorer, and Dave Lichliter, center, one of the dependables of the Eagles' passing game. Both are newcomers to American U. this year, although Lichliter is a transfer student and pursues the junior course. They would have to put in a full term before becoming eligible to play against Navy.

PECKS BEAT GUNNERS.

Al Rosendorf's basket in the last few seconds of play won for the Peck Seniors over the Seaman Gunners last night, 21 to 20, at Bolling Field. Rosendorf's timely basket featured an uphill game of the Pecks, who had to come from behind in the last two quarters after leading, 15 to 13, at the half.

Special Matches Listed For Holy Rosary Bowlers

Two teams representing the Holy Rosary and Avenue Valet Shop will roll tonight on the Convention Hall drives in a return match in their series of team matches. Last week the Rosary Regulars fell before the Valet Shop Regulars but the Rosary Reserves won easily over the Valet Shop Reserves by a large margin.

Tonight's games will find all of the teams concerned ready to wreck havoc with the other in the matter of winning or losing the series. Joe Delisi, who was erroneously placed on the ineligibility list last week, will once more be in the Rosary's line-up tonight.

Goldblatt Proves It's Points, Not Appearances, That Count

Tech High Captain and Star of Series Had Desire to Shine.

JACOB GOLDBLATT is not lazy. If he was, he wouldn't be playing basket ball. Then, again, few lazy boys get passing marks at Tech High. But Jacob Goldblatt does appear lazy on a basket ball floor. Jacob Goldblatt is not slow. If he was he could not continually outscore some of the fastest players in the high school series. But Jacob Goldblatt did appear slow on a basket ball floor.

Regardless of appearances, the Tech High captain produces. In fact, Tech has five straight interscholastic series victories, and four of them can be traced to this apparently lazy and slow player. Twice with his team's point behind and with defeat gripping the hearts of most Tech rooters, he has supplied the tying and winning points. And on another occasion, when an inspired foe sought to tie a game, he contributed a field goal which clinched the game.

Goldblatt Again Proved Hero In C. U. Freshman Game.

The only game that Goldblatt did not play a prominent role in was Tech's first contest with Eastern. He was sick and did not play.

Just to prove that he was not just lucky, Goldblatt found the Tech team a point behind and a few seconds to play with the Catholic University Freshmen as opponents, unbeaten to that game. He again proved the opportunist, dropping in a field goal to win the game.

Cornered and pressed for an explanation of his coolness under fire and his uncanny ability as a "money player," Goldblatt tried to explain that he had played more basket ball than the rest of the high school boys. The fact is that he has not.

But Goldblatt has studied the game and has made full use of his opportunities to play, always striving to play with boys older and larger than himself. His first team connection came four years ago with the Kanawha Midgets, operating in the 100-pound class. The next season he played with the Kanawha 145 and unlimited teams and the last two seasons with the Jewish Community Center Fives in the South Atlantic tournaments.

Had Suppressed Desire to Work Pivot and Block Plays at Tech.

He was a regular guard for Tech last year. He was impressed with the fact that his position then was defensive and he had little to do with the scoring. But he did have a suppressed desire to play like he had seen "Horse" Haggerty, of the Washington Professional Team and Earle Moser, former Central star, play.

Just before the present series began, Goldblatt was in a practice game and tried his now famous pivot shot. He made a basket and Coach Artie Boyd, of Tech, was quick to see the advantages of the play. He ordered Goldblatt to practice the play. Goldblatt's pivoting and working of the block play has made him the outstanding schoolboy player of many seasons.

WEST FIVE WINS IN LEAGUE.

The West Company Five avenged an early season defeat by winning over the Y. M. C. A. boosers last night, 30 to 24, in a Washington City Amateur League game in the Y gymnasium. Banta starred for the Westmen with 10 points.

J. C. C. FLASHES SEEK FOE.

The J. C. C. Flashes, winners in 18 straight games to date, have the use of the Congress Heights gymnasium for Wednesday, February 6, and would like to arrange a game with a 130-pound opponent as a preliminary to the Skinker Eos. Eagles-Y. M. C. A. game of that night.

The Bos Club Standards, Optimists, Whirlwins or any other team in the 130-pound class, are challenged. Manager Tasi can be reached at Cleveland 5732 afte 6 o'clock.

EPIPIANY FIVE TRIUMPHS.

Epiphny basketers nosed out the Lightnig A. C. tossers, 26 to 25, in a close game at Epiphany last night. Katzman, with 12 points, starred for the winners.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, M. D.
The Parent Counselor.

A Dream in Two Parts.

PRELUDE. The eternal triangle of mothers, daughters and boys. But let's not condemn too hastily. Very respectfully the girl says, "Mother and I are very congenial and I enjoy being with her. We always read and discuss your column and have reached through you many wise decissions." But let's hasten.

First Act.

Brother Bill is seen leaving the living room on this, as every night, for a good time with girls with the assumption that he is his own child. But not this freedom for the daughter.

The telephone rings; the daughter rushes up to answer, whereupon mother, beating her to it, lifts it from the hook, listens for a moment, and then loudly says, "You are never to call Patricia again. Do you understand? Never, never, never!"

Curtain.

Now, folks, that's a pretty short act. The boy is a classmate and of good sort. Even if Patricia didn't reach the phone first, she's no dumbbell, for she averages over 90 in her subjects, plays the piano, sings and is studying dramatic art. That mother is just "set" against boys is evidenced by the fact that she's been waiting for that phone ring, after she had forbidden Patricia from going with the boy to the Y. P. U.

Second Act.

On second thought I'll not attempt to write it. The possibilities are too numerous to be satisfied with one writing. As one who has occupied a seat for years in the baldheaded row and watched this eternal triangle performed on the stage of life, I should choose one of the following motifs for the second act.

Twenty Years Later.

1. A bachelor Patricia, with a strong mother fixation and hating men. Embittered, disappointed in her lifework, lonely and venting her distrust and disgust on every male business associate. For obvious reasons, she answers no telephone calls for daughter.

2. A Patricia unhappily married, who hitched herself to the first available man after the apron strings had been worn out, because she imagined that he was the most perfect specimen she has ever met (which out of her limited experience was true).

When she answers her daughter Jane's phone call it's "Oh, Billie, my dear boy, come right up to the house. The old man is away and Janie and I'll be tickled pink to see you."

3. A Patricia, now happily married, who learned to know boys after she went to college and because of her inherent good sense, made a wise selection, and now realizing that the emotional life of her growing daughter must be controlled by the positives of wise counseling and deep understanding and not by negatives.

Her answer when she goes to the phone is, "I am Frieda's mother. She often speaks of you. Will you not accept this most informal invitation to come to tea next Sunday afternoon? Frieda wants to talk to you."

Postscript.

I support, today, our Patricia because she is wholesome, well-intentioned and intelligent. I know her mother is going to let her answer the phone next time, and that the daughter will add, "Jack, listen. Mother wants to say just a word." And then mother adds, "Call a bit early next Sunday evening and have supper with us before you take Patricia to the Young People's Union meeting."

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
Swing O'er.

My 4-year-old takes his fairy tales very seriously. He is very imaginative and has a good mind to reason with. I wonder if it is wise for me to tell him too many fairy stories? What do you think? DEVOTED MOTHER.

Answer—Fairy tales not bad, but better swing over to adventure stories.

Helping the Kid Brother.

Some day won't you write a word to help us older sisters who have to help the younger ones with their home work? Just how do we go about it? BIG SISTER.

Answer—"What's your lesson today?" See that he tells you accurately. "What are the main points in the lesson?" Wait patiently until he tells you, and see that he tells you definitely. "What is your particular trouble?" Here's the place where you will need a great deal of patience while he paws the air, gets frazzled nerves and the lesson may end up in a rumpus. "What did the teacher tell you, or what does the book tell you about the solution?" Here again you will have to listen to, "Teacher didn't tell me," "don't know," "can't understand," "book doesn't show." But sit back and wait. Now let him work it out, then if it is mathematics make him prove his result; or if it is English have him read over his composition. In other words, you are to teach him how to study and how to get the high spots.

Mother Finds Child Suffocated.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 24 (Special). With her face buried into the pillow, Mary Jacqueline, 7 week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shircliff, was found suffocated by the mother and Mrs. A. R. Lateman, Mrs. Shircliff's mother, upon returning from visiting a sick neighbor across the hall in the apartment. They had left the child sleeping a few minutes before. The father of the child is in Phoenix, Ariz.

FIRMER TONE RULES QUIET BOND MARKET

Some Investment Buying Develops; Sugar Issues Are Stronger.

MOST OILS MOVE OFF

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The bond market today again turned dull, with traders displaying their customary Thursday uneasiness over the Federal Reserve brokers' loans figures. There was some investment buying, but speculative issues were quiet. The market, however, exhibited a somewhat firmer tone apparently in anticipation of further gold shipments from England. Sales dropped to $10,838,000.

Anaconda Copper 7s, which have advanced sharply in the past few sessions, slumped to 199 and closed at 201 for a net loss of a point. Chile copper 5s also were easier. Bethlehem Steel issues closed fractionally lower in the face of a resumption of dividends on the common stock and reports of the best quarter in the history of the company's present set-up. Sugar issues were stronger, with Warner refunding 7s climbing 1¼ points. Improvement also was shown by the rubbers.

New York State Railways 6½s went up 3 points to a new peak. Others to show improvement in the stronger utility list included the New York Telephone issues and Ohio River Edison 6s. Public Service of New Jersey, after selling down to 194, finished the day at 196¾, fractionally under yesterday's closing.

Reports of a $100,000,000 holding company for the railroad securities of the Van Sweringen Brothers failed to halt selling of rails involved in their merger plans. Pere Marquette 5s A sold down to a new low at 102½. Other rails were firmer.

Most of the oils were lower, Barnsdall 6s with warrants slumping 2 points.

The foreign list was quiet, with the feature the advance of Montecatini 7s with warrants.

U. S. Government obligations were slightly firmer.

DECREASE IS SHOWN IN HOLDING OF BILLS

Reserve Board's Statement Also Bares Decline in Banks' Deposits.

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Decreases for the week of $39,700,000 in holdings of discounted bills, of $27,000,000 in bills bought in the open market and of $36,300,000 in Government securities, were reported last night by the Federal Reserve Board in its consolidated statement of condition of the twelve Federal Reserve banks on January 23.

Member bank reserve deposits declined $55,700,000, it was stated; Government deposits fell away $13,400,000; and Federal Reserve note circulation decreased $36,300,000. Cash reserves, however, increased $20,900,000. Total bills and securities were $103,800,000 below the amount held on January 16.

The principal changes in holdings of discounted bills for the week were decreases of $64,500,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; $4,600,000 at Philadelphia and $3,900,000 at Cleveland. There were increases of $15,200,000 at Boston; $8,300,000 at Chicago; $6,900,000 at St. Louis.

The system's holdings of Treasury notes declined $24,100,000; of Treasury certificates, $11,900,000; of United States bonds, $300,000. All of the Federal Reserve banks reported decreases in Federal Reserve note circulation, the largest declines being $11,700,000 at Chicago; $6,900,000, at Boston; $3,900,000 at New York, and $3,300,000 at San Francisco.

Loans to Brokers and Dealers.

Loans to brokers and dealers reached the high total of $5,443,000,000 for the week ended January 23, an increase of $48,000,000 over the $5,395,000 reported for the week preceding, according to statements filed with the Federal Reserve Board here yesterday by the New York banks.

Loans "for account of others" soared $127,000,000 to a total of $2,579,000,000 for the week, the statements showed. On the other hand, loans "for own account" developed a decline of $74,000,000, falling to a total of $1,010,000,000 for the week, and loans "for account of out-of-town banks" fell $6,000,000 to a total of $1,853,000,000.

Trading Relatively Heavy.

Trading was relatively heavy in a restricted number of stocks that came out yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange. Stock prices were irregular and there was no activity in the bond division.

A fractional gain was registered in Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred, which sold at 108½ and 108¾. After opening at 104¼, Mergenthaler Linotype fell to 104. American Security & Trust held firm at 475, and National Mortgage & Investment preferred moved fractionally to 5¾.

There was a turnover of more than 100 shares of Washington Railway & Electric preferred at 99½ and 99½. Capital Traction receded to 106⅞, and Columbia Sand & Gravel preferred, after selling Wednesday at 98½, closed yesterday at 94¾. Federal American Co. common brought 55¼.

Tells of Farm Loan System.

President George A. Harris, of the Potomac Joint Stock Land Bank, told directors of the institution at its annual meeting that the farm loan system as a whole is in a favorable condition, and that much constructive work is being done to perfect and improve it. Agricultural conditions in Virginia and Maryland are stable, he said, and there is an improved demand for good farms.

The following directors were elected by stockholders of the bank: John B. Cochran, Arthur Peter, John I. Cassedy, Thomas P. Hickman and George A. Harris, this city; F. C. Bedinger, Boydton, Va.; John P. Saul, jr., Salem, Va.; Shirley Carter, Winchester, Va.; Vernon Gowin, Vienna, Va.; J. Murray Hooker, Stuart, Va.; Carroll Pierce, Alexandria, Va.; J. T. C. Hopkins, jr., Port Deposit, Md.; C. Thomas Summers, Frederick, Md.; Charles Edward Hilliard, Hagerstown, Md.; Joseph A. Wilmer, La Plata, Md.

The following officers were reelected by the directors: George A. Harris, president; John I. Cassedy, vice president; Vernon Gowin, secretary-treasurer; Miss Audrey Carroll, assistant secretary-treasurer. Capital, reserve and deposits of the bank are in excess of $550,000, and mortgage loans in excess of $6,700,000.

Bankers to Attend Dinner.

Frederick P. A. Siddons, of the American Security & Trust Co., chairman of the new fiduciaries section of the District of Columbia Bankers' Association, yesterday announced final plans for a dinner meeting of the section Tuesday night, at 7:30 o'clock, at the Willard Hotel.

Reuben A. Lewis, deputy manager of the trust company division of the American Bankers Association, will address the members, outling the purposes and achievements of 41 similar sections now operating in other parts of the country.

Another speaker will be Robertson Griswold, president of the Corporate Fiduciaries Association of Baltimore, and vice president and trust officer of the Maryland Trust Co., of Baltimore. Aubrey D. Carter, who handles trust functions work for the Treasury Department, will be a guest.

Arrangements for the dinner are in charge of B. L. Colton, trust officer of the District National Bank. Officers of the association, members of the council of administration, presidents of Washington banks, and chairmen of the new auditors and safe deposit sections will be invited to attend.

The council of administration of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will meet with President Robert V. Fleming this afternoon at association headquarters. The first regular meeting of the new safe deposit section since the group was organized some weeks ago was held yesterday at headquarters, with Chairman Charles E. Howe presiding.

Water Works Investments Favored.

The water works industry is seen as a desirable field for investment by L. Edgar Detwiler, of Detwiler & Co. In an analysis of the field made public yesterday he stated that less than 5 per cent of the water works properties of the country have been taken over by the water works systems that have developed to date. In contrast to this, he points out that 85 per cent of the entire electric light and power output is controlled by seventeen major holding companies.

"Almost never is it found that water companies operate under competitive conditions," his statement reads. "They have no credit risks that might impair their financial stability. There are no labor problems because few employes are necessary. There are no inventory losses on the product, because the product itself costs the company nothing. The water works property represents an investment in the certain use of water by the people living in the community served."

SIMMONS' SCHOOL PROVISION IS HELD VIOLATION OF LAW

Clause to "Import" Teachers Is Regarded as New Legislation.

NUMBER OF ELIGIBLES FROM CITY IS REDUCED

Such Provision, Officials Contend, Would Be Too Harsh and Drastic.

The action of Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, in writing into the District appropriation bill a provision to throw open 75 per cent of the teachers' positions here to outside candidates appeared yesterday to be clearly in violation of one of the most important rules of the House.

This rule provides that appropriation bills shall be limited to appropriation items and shall not contain new legislation. In the opinion of House parliamentarians the Simmons proviso is clearly legislation.

The proviso gives priority of appointment only to the 25 per cent of normal school graduates who stand highest in their classes. The other 75 per cent would have to vie with teachers from outside of Washington for the remaining places. At present the schools are supplied entirely with graduates of the two normal schools here, and even so there are not enough places to go around.

Would Be Too Harsh, It Is Held.

While they think the law of 1873, which gave Washingtonians a monopoly on teachers' positions should be modified, school officials hold that to give priority to only 25 per cent of the local women would be entirely too harsh and drastic.

If Washington gave the same training to its would-be teachers as to some of the States, the school officials say, the situation would be different. But, they explain, the teachers' course here is only for two years, while in many States it is four years. Consequently, they argue, teachers from such States would have a tremendous advantage over the local normal school graduates when it came to competing for places here.

In the opinion of Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Charles F. Carusi, president of the Board of Education, the way to solve the problem is to increase the normal school course here from two to four years, and then let the local graduates take their chances in the competitive examinations.

Provision Almost Defeated.

The record of the debate on the District appropriation bill Wednesday shows that the Simmons provision was almost defeated on a point of order. When it was reached in the bill, Representative Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, arose to make a point of order against it. Chairman Simmons, however, finally dissuaded him.

Bankhead said that, in his opinion, the provision was clearly legislation. He reminded Simmons that whenever some member not on the appropriations committee offers an amendment to an appropriation bill, the committee members are quick to scotch it if it smacks of legislation. He then expressed the opinion that the committee members ought to be consistent and guard against legislative items when introduced by somebody on the committee.

Simmons admitted that the provision was legislation.

Another Course Suggested.

"Has the gentleman ever thought of the propriety of having legislation to this effect from the District committee instead of putting the proposition into an appropriation bill?" Bankhead inquired. "The gentleman admits it is legislation."

"It could go to the District committee, yes," said Simmons, "and would, if the gentleman wants to take that position."

Simmons told Bankhead that the provision would permit teachers from other States—Bankhead's, for example—to get a position here if they can show that they are superior to 75 per cent of the graduates of local normal schools. Thus, he said, the local schools would get the very best teachers obtainable, whereas now the most mediocre normal school graduate here gets the place in preference to the best teacher from any of the States.

Simmons made no mention of the argument that had been advanced by school officials at the hearings on the bill—that is, that the way to get good teachers here would be to extend the present course in the normal schools from two to four years.

Agrees to Withdraw.

Bankhead, having only Simmons' side of the argument, agreed to withdraw his point of order.

It is now too late to challenge the Simmons provision in the House, as it has been agreed to. However, there is still a chance that it will be defeated in the Senate, and that the House will agree to the Senate's action when the bill is returned.

The appropriation is scheduled to be passed today and sent to the Senate. First, however, there probably will be a skirmish in the form of a motion by either Representative Griffin, of New York, or Representative Casey, of Pennsylvania, to send the measure back to committee and insert an item of $165,000 to give District employes the raises Congress promised at the last session.

Eclipse Expedition Will Sail Monday

Commander Keppler Leader of Party En Route to Philippine Islands.

The Washington Naval Observatory scientific expedition, under Commander C. H. J. Keppler, United States Navy, which will study the solar eclipse on May 9 in the Philippines, will sail from San Diego Monday aboard the Navy transport Chaumont, according to word received here yesterday.

Astronomer Paul Sollenberger, of the Washington Naval Observatory, is a member of the party. Others are Lieut. H. C. Kellers, Navy Medical Corps; Prof. William A. Cogshall, of the University of Indiana, and Mrs. Cogshall.

Headquarters will be at Manila. The eclipse, of unusually long duration, will not be visible in the United States, but will be seen for five minutes from the northwestern end of Sumatra, across the Malay state of Kedah, over Siam and southern Cambodia to the middle of the Philippine Islands.

Burglars Take $400 Loot.

Clothing valued at $400 was stolen sometime early yesterday morning from the home of Mrs. Pauline Zimmerman, 2440 Eighteenth street northwest. The robbers entered through a rear window. The loot consisted of ten dresses and twelve pairs of silk hosiery.

'DUDE' BANDITS GET $30 IN STORE LOOT

Leader Tosses Back Money as Manager Empties Pockets of $4.

TAKES ORANGE IN LEAVING

Two tall, unmasked dapper looking young men early last night held up six clerks and eight customers in the Atlantic & Pacific store at 1519 Seventeenth street northwest. They escaped with about $30 taken from two cash registers.

Leaving his companion on guard outside, one of the men entered the store shortly before it closed at 8 o'clock. He walked up to the manager, Julius Owens, of 1718 Corcoran street northwest prodded him in the stomach with an automatic revolver, forced him to open a cash register and looted the till of about $15 before the other clerks and customers knew what had happened.

Turning around, the bandit ordered the clerks and customers, most of whom were women, to keep still. Then turning to Owens, the bandit asked him, "Is this all?" When Owens assurred him it was he ordered him to dig down in his pockets. Owens produced $4 of his own money and gave it to the bandit. It was tossed back to him with the remark, "It's yours, I don't want it."

Turning again to the startled clerks and customers, the bandit walked across the store to another cash register. He took about $15 from it. Again ordering every one to keep still, the bandit reached for an orange, stuck his revolver in a coat pocket and sauntered to the door. Once outside he and his companion bolted toward a waiting automobile in which they escaped.

Neighbors told police they noticed the two bandits patrolling the vicinity of the store for about half an hour before the hold up. Owens told police a young man, whom he suspected of being the bandit who entered the store early yesterday afternoon and looked around. When asked what he wanted the man said nothing and walked out.

Dry Agent Taken During Own Raid

Capital Man Released After Baltimore Disorderly Conduct Hearing.

As a result of a raid on a Baltimore night club early yesterday morning, John Weigel, a prohibition enforcement agent, living at 2019 I street northwest, Washington, was given a hearing yesterday afternoon at Northwestern Police Station, Baltimore, on charges of disorderly conduct and assault on Harry Barnes, a night club employe. Barnes also was tried at the same time on charges of disorderly conduct and assault on the dry agent.

Both were freed on the disorderly conduct charges. Barnes, however, was forced to post $250 bond for appearance before the grand jury on the assault charge, while Weigle was released on his own recognizance.

At the trial witnesses testified that when Weigel and three other prohibition agents entered the club Alabam Barnes inquired if they had a search warrant. An argument was said to have ensued, in which Weigel was alleged to have broken a blackjack over Barnes' head and Barnes was said to have hit Weigel with an ice pick and his fist.

MEMORIAL HIGHWAY TO FOLLOW ROUTE OF POTOMAC RIVER

Capital's Bicentennial Commission Plans Opening February 22, 1932.

AFFAIR TO BE FEATURE OF 200TH ANNIVERSARY

$4,800,000 Already Authorized by Congress for Road's Construction.

The Memorial highway from the Virginia end of Arlington Memorial Bridge to Mount Vernon will be laid on the Potomac River route, 15.4 miles, through a picturesque section famous in the Nation's history.

In making known selection of the route yesterday, the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, meeting in the White House, presided over by President Coolidge, disclosed plans for opening the highway on February 22, 1932, as a feature of a Nation-wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Authorizing the President to appoint a special committee of five members to formulate plans for the celebration, the commission also approved a resolution drawn by Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook for a committee of three members selected by the President to consider plans of the National Wakefield Association for restoring Washington's birthplace at Wakefield, Va., and its conversion to a national shrine.

Congress has authorized an appropriation of $4,500,000 for construction of the Memorial highway. The route selected passed through historic Alexandria, crosses Hunting Creek and follows the Potomac to the postern gates of Mount Vernon. The route traverses Columbia Island, passes under both the Highway Bridge and the Railroad Bridge shore spans, and follows along the river as closely as topography alignment, grades and plans for future development will permit.

In choosing the river route in preference to the "upper" route along the line of hills above the river, the commission estimated that difference in construction cost would permit use of $700,000 more than had been anticipated in beautification of the highway and its connection. It was pointed out, too, that should Gravelly Point be selected as an airport, the highway is so laid out as to make this location available.

The Bureau of Public Roads, which will supervise construction under delegation by the Secretary of Agriculture, describes construction plans as follows:

"At no point on the highway will the grade be greater than 6 per cent. For a considerable portion of the mileage the grade is less than 1 per cent.

200-Foot Right of Way.

"The right of way of the Memorial road, except in Alexandria City, will be 200 feet wide, with a 40-foot pavement and two 10-foot shoulders. Where conformation of ground is more suitable, the 20-foot pavements will be constructed on different levels. The higher road will overlook the lower and the space between will either be used for parking or suitable planting.

"Between Washington and Alexandria the road will have two levels near Abingdon House, the birthplace of Nelle Custis, and near Four-Mile Run, and at two or three points south of Alexandria.

"Seven masonry bridges will be constructed, monumental in design, and harmonizing with the Arlington Memorial Bridge. They will carry a 60-foot roadway, with a 5-foot sidewalk on either side.

"Automobile parking places will be designated along the route between the highway and the river's bank, particularly at the most attractive spots. Suitable planting, dictated by soil conditions, will likewise be provided along the route."

Republicans Plan New National Club

Senator Dale, McCumber and Mondell Sponsor Meeting Tonight.

Republicans in Washington will meet at the Carlton Hotel this evening at 8:30 o'clock to form a National Republican Club, under a call sent out by Senator Porter J. Dale, of Vermont; former Senator P. J. McCumber, of North Dakota, and former Representative Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming.

Ogden Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, has been mentioned for temporary head of the club and an organization committee is advised that some members of the Cabinet and of Congress will attend the meeting.

Former Representative Mondell will preside.

Tenor Martinelli Ill, Concert Is Postponed

The concert of Giovanni Martinelli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., which was scheduled for Poli's Theater this afternoon, has been postponed, owing to the illness of the singer. This postponement was announced yesterday by Mrs. Wilson-Greene after receipt of a telegram from the tenor in New York.

It was said the Martinelli concert will be given on a date to be announced later. His illness is said to be due to an attack of influenza.

Man Hurt as Heavy Machinery Hits Foot

William Rollison, 20 years old, 923 Ninth street northeast, was injured yesterday afternoon when a piece of heavy machinery fell on his foot while he was working in the Baltimore & Ohio freight office.

Rollison was treated at Emergency Hospital for a crushed foot. He is employed as a talleyman and while moving a piece of machinery dropped it on his foot.

Miss Mary Culberson Held On Drunk-Driving Charge

Miss Mary E. Culberson, 26 years old, daughter of the late Senator Charles A. Culberson, of Texas, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Traffic Court yesterday on charges of driving while intoxicated and leaving after colliding. She was freed in bond of $1,000 for jury trial.

After a wild chase through the downtown section, Miss Culberson was arrested in front of 916 Pennsylvania avenue northwest Wednesday night. Policeman G. W. Ward, of the Traffic Bureau, said he pursued an automobile driven by Miss Culberson for six blocks before overtaking her.

Prior to her arrest, Miss Culberson is alleged to have struck five automobiles. The only charge of "hit-and-run" placed against the young woman was based on the complaint of Harold Southard, of 3621 Newark street northwest, owner of one of the cars damaged.

Post-Pickford Prize Sought in Close Race

17,433 Ballots in Day for Trip to Star's Home; Closes Tuesday.

A total of 58 votes was all that separated the leader and the runner-up in the Washington Post-Mary Pickford Contest following a tabulation of 17,433 votes cast yesterday. To date, a total of 93,041 votes have been tabulated.

With the contest closing at 6 o'clock Tuesday night, the many contestants are doubling their efforts to close the gap between themselves and the leader, Miss Hilda Phillips, who has received a total of 5,498 votes.

The winner of the contest will be the guest of The Post on a two-week trip to Hollywood, where for seven days she will be the guest of Mary Pickford.

Officials of the contest have arranged an itinerary for the winner that promises to please with many thrills. She will ride across the country in a special train of the Sante Fe Railroad to Hollywood. During her week's stay at Pickfair, the delightful estate of "Doug and Mary," she will be a special guest at a series of teas, dances, theater parties and studio parties arranged in her honor.

The winner of the contest also will be a special guest at the filming of Mary Pickford's newest photoplay, "Coquette."

The following shows the standing of the leaders in the contest up to 6 o'clock last night:

PADLOCK VIOLATION CASE BEFORE ROVER

District Attorney Is Unable to Decide Action on Findings in Raid.

TRIAL DATA CONSIDERED

District Attorney Leo A. Rover and his assistant, Harold W. Orcutt, yesterday declined to state whether or not action would be instituted against Frank McCormick, prominent in local sporting circles, on grounds of violating a padlock injunction.

McCormick, according to testimony of Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman in Police Court on Tuesday, was found hatless and coatless in a barroom at 312 Ninth street northwest last October 19. The premises were padlocked through a temporary restraining injunction of the District Supreme Court several weeks before the police appeared and McCormick was forbiddn by the injunction to possess and sell liquor in the place.

McCormick, according to Letterman, "escaped" after asking the sergeant "to give us a chance." Letterman admitted on the witness stand just before testimony of the "escape" was introduced that "there is something funny about this case."

Rover said he was unprepared to state whether or not any action would be taken against McCormick. Sergt. Letterman and Detective William F. Burke, who was also in the raid on the Ninth street establishment, have made affidavits before Capt. Orcutt concerning McCormick's presence in the place in the event action will be taken.

Demonet Elected Reservists' Chief

Wins by but One Vote Over Maj. Lester Wilson, Who Becomes Vice President.

Maj. Charles Demonet was elected president of the Reserve Officers' Association last night at a meeting in the auditorium of the Interior Department building, Eighteenth and F streets northwest. He was elected by a margin of only one vote, Maj. Lester Wilson, Air Corps, running second.

Maj. Wilson was automatically made vice president. The officers elected Maj. H. K. Bentley, finance section, as treasurer, and Lieut. Charles L. Riemer, secretary.

Members elected to the executive committee were Maj. Frederick Livingston, infantry; Maj. Luther Leisenring, quartermaster corps; Capt. W. W. Bercaw, cavalry; Maj. C. P. Skemp, engineers; Lieut. Col. T. S. Troy, medical corps; Maj. F. A. Frost, finance section; Maj. William Walker Smith, military intelligence; Maj. Harry W. Hart, signal corps; Capt. Arthur Adair, coast artillery; Capt. Milton J. Landvoigt, field artillery; and Lieut. Col. Robert P. Parrott, judge advocate general's department.

Doctor Says Casualty Hospital Needs Funds

The new Casualty Hospital, at Eighth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast, is in need of $100,000 to insure completion and equipping of the $250,000 building, Dr. Joseph Rogers, president and chief surgeon, said last night.

At the time the new building was started many persons offered to aid "when it was needed." The time has now come, Dr. Rogers said, when the money is urgently needed, and the directors of the hospital will meet tomorrow night to decide on plans for raising the needed fund.

CHEST WORKERS GET FINAL INSTRUCTIONS

Campaign for $1,343,348 to Open Formally on Monday.

STREET MAPS OUT PLANS

Final instructions to "key men" in the Community Chest campaign for $1,343,348, which will open formally Monday and continue through February 6, were given last night at a banquet meeting at the Willard Hotel. A total of 202 local firms were represented by approximately 250 persons, who will solicit employes of the business establishments.

Methods of solicitation were outlined by Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest. The principal address was made by Frank J. Hogan, attorney, whose subject was, "The Human Significance of Community Chest Giving." He cited instances where the organizations which will be financed through the Chest have given a helping hand to the sick, the jobless, the poor, the delinquents and the homeless, which inspired the Chest workers.

Frank R. Jelleff presided at the meeting. Capt. John R. Curran, of the Salvation Army, detailed activities of that organization.

Colored citizens of the District will hold a mass meeting and rally tonight at the Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church, M street near Sixteenth street.

Department heads of the Hotel Mayflower held a rally yesterday to discuss ways and means of raising contributions among their coworkers.

Additional pledges of $500 or more were announced yesterday by the special gifts unit as follows:

Parker, Bridget & Co., $500; Potomac Electric Power Co., by W. F. Ham, president, $12,000; Washington Railway & Electric Co., $3,000; Columbia Sand & Gravel Co., $750; Peoples Life Insurance Co., $500; Garfinckel & Co., by Julius Garfinckel, $3,500; Capital Traction Co., by John Hanna, president, $3,500; Woodward & Lothrop, by Donald Woodward, president, $7,500; Mrs. Alex Rogers, $1,000; G. Coolidge May Attend Bar Association Dinner

President Coolidge, Attorney General Sargent and justices of the various courts have been invited to attend a testimonial dinner to Gurney E. Newlin, of Los Angeles, president of the American Bar Association, by the District Bar Association tomorrow night in the Willard Hotel.

Maj. Julius I. Peyser, newly elected president of the local association, will preside. District Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty will extend the District's welcome to the guest of honor and Daniel W. O'Donoghue will speak on behalf of the local attorneys.

Bowling Alley Robbed.

The Lucky Strike Bowling Alley, 1721 Fourteenth street northwest, was robbed early yesterday morning. Howard Campbell, manager, reported to police. The burglars stole a quantity of cigars, cigarettes and the contents of a money box, the amount of which is unknown. Entrance was gained by a rear window.

CONSTRUCTION MEN BLAMED AS FLOOR FALLS, KILLING ONE

A. T. Rogers and J. J. Widmayer, Architect, Held on Manslaughter Charges.

CORONER'S JURY POINTS TO CARELESS METHODS

Investigators Unable to Learn Whether Faulty Props Were Nailed.

John J. Widmayer, 38, architect, and Ansel T. Rogers, 36, assistant District building inspector, were held yesterday by a coroner's jury for the grand jury on charges of manslaughter resulting from the death Tuesday of Henry Roberts, colored.

Roberts, employed as a bricklayer's helper at the building under construction at Connecticut avenue and Porter street northwest, was killed when the concrete flooring collapsed upon him. The two men were released in $500 bond each.

Widmayer was employed as an inspector by Harry Bralove, builder, and was on the scene at the time of the collapse. Rogers is said to have visited the building the morning before the accident and had passed upon it.

Inspection Inadequate.

The coroner's jury declared "that the death of the said Henry Roberts was the result of inadequate inspection of said construction on the part of John J. Widmayer and Ansel T. Rogers" after two days of hearing testimony and visiting the building.

The jury sat three hours Wednesday listening to testimony of workmen, builders and inspectors, but reached no conclusions after retiring 45 minutes.

At the request of the foreman of the jury, the inquest was continued until yesterday morning, when, by appointment, all the jurors met at Connecticut avenue and Porter streets to inspect the ruins.

Returning to the morgue, Widmayer and Rogers were again put on the stand, while Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, Assistant United States District Attorney Gallagher and members of the jury questioned them.

Props Investigated.

Efforts were made to learn whether or not the props holding up the concrete flooring, forms and steel reinforcement were nailed down. Although Rogers and Widmayer inspected the place they could not tell whether the props were nailed. Neither could workmen or the foremen on the job supply this information.

Roberts was wheeling a load of brick beneath the section of the flooring that gave way. Firemen and fellow workmen dug out the body.

The office of the building inspector investigated the accident. Col. Oehmann, building inspector, filed his report with Col. William Ladue, Engineer Commissioner, in which he outlined what his men had done.

Members of the homicide squad of the Detective Bureau also made an investigation and reported at the inquest.

Rogers gave his address as Alexandria, Va. Widmayer lives at 3890 Livingston street northwest.

Report Fails to Satisfy.

Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner of the District, yesterday said he was dissatisfied with the report submitted by Rogers and Widmayer on the collapse of the apartment-house floor.

The inspectors speculated on the cause of the collapse, but offered no definite conclusion, and added that while the support of the floor "was not the best," what had been done was in accord with "existing practice" and "all reasonable precautions had been taken to avoid accidents."

"I am going to get more information about the matter than is contained in that report," Ladue said after studying it. Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, will be assigned to conduct the investigation Col. Ladue is determined to have made.

Informed later of the action of the coroner's jury holding Rogers and Widmayer for the grand jury, Col. Ladue said he had no comment to make at this time. He intends to push his investigation, he said.

Two Youths to Get Hearings in Deaths

C. M. Whalley, of This City, Charged With Murder; Other Manslaughter.

As a result of two fatal automobile accidents in Arlington County, two youths will face Judge Harry R. Thomas in Arlington this morning, one charged with murder, the other with manslaughter.

Charles M. Whalley, 18 years old, of 429 M street northwest, Washington, is defendant on the murder charge, which was booked following a crash in which his two alleged companions, Daniel Weston and Francis Hill Slaughter, both of Washington, were killed.

Roy Estes, 17-year-old Ballston, Va., youth, is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Herbert L. Bowbeer, who was struck down and killed in Clarendon, Va., by an autobomile operated by Estes.

New Measure Strikes At Lax Road Cutting

A new system regulating and greatly restricting cuts permitted in sidewalks and roadways and in general bringing into closer coordination all branches of highway work is provided for in orders the District Commissioners are expected to adopt today on motion of Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner.

"Under the new system we expect to eliminate 90 per cent of the cuts which now are being made in new or comparatively new sidewalks and roadways," Col. Ladue said yesterday.

Under the new system there will be set up a coordinating administrative machine, including an official who will be charged with issuing all permits for cuts. Not only private persons will be required to get permits, but public utilities and all District departments will have to get approval of the central office. Another new job will be that of a coordinator, whose task it will be to see to it that each of the several departments having to do with work on or below the streets make their programs fit into a logical and well-thought-out plan.

The plan already has received the general approval of the Commissioners and was worked out by a special committee headed by Capt. H. O. Whitehurst, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, in charge of the highway department.

New regulations also are to be made governing the manner in which holes in the streets are to be refilled with earth. Penalties will be assessed against persons failing to comply with the regulations.

The new plan was prompted by the discovery of a large number of cuts which have been made in the last year in newly laid paving, officials declaring that such cuts materially reduce the life of the roadway and consequently add to the cost of paving and maintenance.

Property owners along streets which are to be repaved are to be given written notices a month or more in advance of starting the work.

Not less than a week in advance of starting repaving each street will be posted and warning given that permits to cut into the new road will not be granted after the work is completed. Efforts are to be made to induce owners of properties not having light, gas and water and sewer connections to at least carry such connections from the street conduits to the sidewalk line, whence they can be carried farther without material damage at any time.

COMPROMISE SEEN ON PAY ACT BILLS

Civil Service Committee of House to Consider Six Measures Today.

SENATE VOTE IS BLOCKED

The hopes of Government workers will be centered in the office of the House civil service committee today. At 10:30 o'clock, the committee will meet in executive session and start drafting a bill to correct the Welch pay-raise act.

For a while yesterday it looked like the Senate might pass the bill which its civil service committee has offered—the measure drafted by Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa. But when it was reached on the unanimous consent calendar, several senators objected. One objection was enough to block passage.

The fact that these senators objected, however, did not mean that they were opposed to the bill; they simply did not want to see such an important measure passed without thorough consideration and debate. When the bill finally gets the right of way in the Senate, it is almost certain to pass.

The Brookhart bill is one of six which the House civil service committee will have before it today. Of the others, the one that will be given most consideration is that of Representative Lehlbach (Republican), of New Jersey, the chairman.

The employes are virtually unanimously in favor of the Brookhart bill, because, in their opinion, it is the fairest and the most simple of all that have been introduced. However, there is some question as to whether President Coolidge would approve it if it reached him, and this is being borne in mind by the committee members.

A number of members of the committee already have announced that they will fight for inclusion of the pay-raise feature of the Brookhart bill in whatever legislation is finally drafted. At the same time these members concede that certain features of the Lehlbach bill should be accepted. Hence the prospect is that a compromise measure eventually will be reported out.

President Coolidge yesterday sent to Congress recommendation for an appropriation of $17,364,196 to meet expenses incident to salary raises granted employes of the Government under the Welch act. The recommendation specified that $4,607,000 of the sum will go to Treasury employes and $3,831,000 to persons employed in the executive office and independent establishments.

Two Navy Yard Men Hurt in Auto Crash

One Is in Critical Condition After Collision in Arlington County.

Two navy yard electricians were seriously injured yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was in collision at the intersection of the Alexandria and Columbia pikes, in Arlington County, Va., with a motorbus.

They are Albert Jost, 34 years old, of 1916 Maryland avenue northeast, who auffered a possible fracture of the skull, hip and back, internal injuries, lacerations to the scalp and punctured wounds to the arm, and William McOsker, 43 years old, of 614 D street southwest, who received fractures of the ribs and possibly of the spine, and lacerations about the head.

The injured men were brought to Emergency Hospital in this city in passing automobiles and treated by Dr. I. Rutkoski. Jost's condition was believed to be critical, and although McOsker is not so badly hurt, his condition was undetermined last night. The bus is said to have been operated by William C. Veas, of 214 North Royal street, Alexandria.

INAUGURAL PARADE'S COURSE ANNOUNCED WITH REVIEW PLAN

Hoover to Precede Marchers to Stand to Be Placed Before White House.

GROUPS WILL ORGANIZE IN SOUTHEAST SECTION

Reservation Facilities Ready; Several More Concerns Contribute to Fund.

The official route of the inaugural parade which will march past President Herbert Hoover on March 4 was announced late yesterday by the general inaugural committee.

The head of the parade will start at New Jersey avenue and B street southeast, on the south side near the House Office Building. Proceeding across the Plaza to B street northeast the marchers will travel west on B street to First street northwest, south on First street to Pennsylvania avenue; west along the avenue to Fifteenth street; north along Fifteenth street to Pennsylvania avenue and then west to Nineteenth street where the parade will disband.

Hoover to Precede Parade.

The presidential party will precede the parade to the presidential reviewing stand in front of the White House from which the column will be viewed.

The committee made known that free seats will not be available. Reservations for places in the reviewing stands are to be had at committee offices in the Transportation Building beginning today. Tickets have not been printed but reservations will be made and the tickets delivered as soon as available.

Reduced railroad rates to Washington for the inaugural period are now in effect east and west of the Mississippi River, the committee is advised.

Contributors to Fund.

Hijacking Attack Reported by Man

Decatur Heights Police Say Capital Resident Told of Carrying Liquor.

Clyde R. Clark 23 years old, of 913 Fifteenth street northwest, was held up and thrown from his automobile early yesterday morning on the Defense highway, near Decatur Heights, Md., by three hijackers.

Limping 3 miles into Decatur Heights, Clark reported the robbery and assault to the police there. Police say that the injured man told them that he and a friend were driving a carload of whisky into Washington.

Before reaching Decatur Heights, another machine drew alongside of them and three men with pistols in hand forced Clark to stop. Clark's companion leaped from the machine and fled, he said. The hijackers got into Clark's machine and ordered him to stand on the running board. After the car had picked up a little speed he was knocked off.

Kiwanian Refutes Story by Mencken

Baltimore Man Tells Club Here That Author Is Wrong in Claims.

Wilbur Van Sant, trustee of the Kiwanis Club of Baltimore, took exception to H. L. Mencken's attacks upon the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs in an address yesterday before the Washington Kiwanis Club in the Washington Hotel.

Van Sant quoted an article in which Mencken had written of the "dull and witless blather of Rotary and Kiwanis," and has asked why the business men of the country hadn't "horned in themselves, and so made it plain that such childish organizations do not actually represent them."

James B. Evans, chairman of the orthopedic and welfare committee, told of the difficulty his committee had had in getting crippled children to the Children's Hospital for treatment. Only recently the District Chapter of the Red Cross drove twelve children to the hospital for the club, he said.

Garbage Plant Workers Given $14,500 Increase

Wage increases for employes of the District garbage reduction plant totaling $14,500 for the balance of the current fiscal year were announced yesterday by Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the District Engineer Department.

The new wage scale announced by Brennan follows: Engineer, $4.34 to $4.72 a day; fireman, $4.16 to $4.64; laborer, $3.44 to $3.92; cook, $4.16 to $4.64; greaseman, $4.16 to $4.64; seamstress, $2.32 to $2.72; pressman $3.92 to $4.48. The new scale was recommended by the District Engineer Department wage board of which C. B. Hunt is chairman, and was approved by the Commissioners. It becomes effective on Sunday.
